COUNTDOWN FOR CLEANLINESS AUDIT BEGINS

As Chennai gears up for the 10th edition of Swachh Survekshan, a reminder that participation of its residents will go a long way in improving its ranking. P5

THE BINS ARE STILL THE BEST BET

For Chennai residents given to long drives on ECR, the beachside expanse at Therkupattu is a familiar bivouacking spot. The patch is plagued by littering, particularly during weekends. The garbage bins are largely ignored by visitors but the solution ironically lies in having more of these bins. P6

Britannia Nagar residents reiterate call for re-routing S67

They point out that effecting the suggested changes in the current route will hugely benefit school and college students

Britannia Nagar residents in front of the small bus.

V. VAIRAMUTHU

The current route of S67 does not command impressive commuter patronage and it is not unusual to see the bus carry just two to three passengers on a trip. The reason is not far to seek: the route accounts for around 1.5 kilometre of a highway road (Red Hills Highway Road). The current route: Madhavaram Roundtana-Cycle Kadai Bus Stop on Red Hills Highway Road-Puzhal Camp Road-Collector Nagar-Britannia Nagar; and the end point is Ambattur OT. The effectiveness of this service would go up by leaps and bounds if one leg of the route is overhauled. Residents of Britannia Nagar, Senthil Nagar, Rasi Nagar, Collector Nagar and INTC Nagar seek the following route for the small bus.

Madhavaram Roundtana-Ponnammanmedu-Retteri-Vinayakapuram-Collector Nagar-

Britannia Nagar, and from there the bus can finish its trip at its original end point, which is Ambattur OT. Eight months ago, we made a representation to MTC seeking this change and also met with Madhavaram MLA S. Sudharsanam. The MLA in turn spoke to MTC officials asking them to revamp the route; he also formally sent a letter to MTC detailing the changes that ought to be carried out. We hope MTC acts on this directive without any delay, as the re-routing of S67 would benefit many school and college students. On this suggested route, Velammal Group has four schools and one college. Currently, residents of Retteri seeking to reach Ambattur OT, take a share auto to Puzhal Camp Road, where they board a bus. If the suggested route is accepted and operationalised, they would be spared this ordeal.

V. Vairamuthu is joint secretary of Britannia Nagar Residents Welfare Association.

‘Staircases of bridge in Thandurai out of bounds’

K.S. GOPALAKISHNAN

The staircases of the vehicular bridge over the railway track in Thandurai near Pattabiram railway station is in a squalid state.

The bridge connects South Bazaar Road (also known as Thandurai Main Road) and CTH Road in Thandurai. Therefore, it witnesses considerable pedestrian movement.

The staircases are a haven for tipplers.

Alcohol bottles and food leftovers can be found.

Further, hair of animals, carcasses of rats and birds add to the filth. One of the staircases is misused for drying clothes. The staircases are poorly lit.

To avoid this disgusting experience and due to safety reasons, pedestrians have stopped using the bridge and instead they take the risk of crossing the railway tracks.

The area under the staircase is also misused by traders at the market to dump all kinds of waste.

Further, the footpath on the bridge is also littered.

REPUBLIC DAY CELEBRATION

Road safety and sanitary issues discussed at meet

Flood mitigation measures was one of the main issues that Anna Nagar Western Extension B Sector Association discussed in a recent meeting held as part of Republic Day celebration.

“Stormwater drains are not connected and that causes waterlogging. There have been instances where sewage enters houses in case of heavy rains. First Street, Second Street, and Third Street are worst affected. The main cause is stormwater drains on Park Road and First Street are not connected. Further, Otteri Nullah, a water channel, that plays a key role in mitigating floods in our neighbourhood, is plagued by encroachments,” says A. Chockalingam, the association’s general secretary.

The meeting also discussed about road safety issues relating to speed breakers and encroachments.

“Some of the speed breakers are not painted and pedestrians’ space is usurped through encroachments. All these raise the risk of accidents,” adds Chockalingam.

Sanitary issues such as overflowing garbage bins, sewage overflowing on to the roads, and unkempt vacant plots providing a conducive environment for mosquito breeding were discussed during the meet.

Further, a human chain was formed as a mark of request to TANGEDCO to prevent power cuts and attend to faults without much delay.

The image shows a live electricity cable at Vasantha Garden Second Lane in Ayanavaram lying exposed raising the risk of electrocution.

The cable was laid six months ago when a water pipe-laying work carried out at this street damaged the electricity cable, which was then replaced. Instead of laying the cable underground it was laid over the road.

This is quite unsafe. Tamil Nadu Generation & Distribution Corporation Limited (TANGEDCO) should address this issue at the earliest to avoid any untoward incident.

‘Not a smooth walk to the school’

K.V. SAIKRISHNA

An approach road to decades-old P.J. Gupta's School, Old Bank of Baroda Street in Ambattur is marked by the presence of a public toilet and garbage bins. Besides, the street is being gradually subjected to encroachment by vendors. A school had its entrance on Old MTH Road. But with the rising number of vendors at the market on Old MTH Road, the school had to close that entrance. The same problem is now cropping up on Old Bank of Baroda Street.

Considering the wellbeing of the students, Greater Chennai Corporation and the State Education Department should do the needful.

The school is close to both Ambattur railway station and Ambattur OT bus terminus.

We request the authorities concerned to remove the TASMAR-run liquor shop in Thalam Kinaru Street in Villivakkam because two schools are located close by. The distance between the school and the liquor shop will be approximately 100 metres. Further, vegetable market and Villivakkam railway station are located in the vicinity. Drunken brawls are common here; therefore, considering the safety of women and children, the authorities shift the shop.

Ensure easy movement, residents tell Railways

The chaos is mainly due to the parking of trucks used for the movement of coach manufacturing equipments of ICF, on both sides of Ambedkar Road

T. SAJEEV

The Ambedkar Road junction near ICF, a crucial connect route for many residents of Kolathur, Villivakkam and surrounding areas and a roadway for residents of Thirumalai Nagar, Moorthy Nagar among other neighbourhoods, is often jammed with heavy traffic, hindering the movement of school and college students, office goers, general public and emergency services such as ambulance.

The chaos is mainly due to the parking of trucks used for the movement of coach manufacturing equipments of ICF, on both sides of Ambedkar Road many of the days in any given month.

There have been debates around who has a primary claim to this road. The road might belong to the Railways, but the travelling public can call it theirs too.

Since this is a critical connect road for the general public and to the residents based in and around this road, and there are no other routes for the users of this way, at this point in time, the Railways should honour the requests of the residents' associations across this road. Parking of trucks has to be closely monitored and regulated, which includes only one-side parking, something that has been agreed upon.

Urgent need of small-sized speed breakers at vantage points to stem the speed of the vehicles preventing any kind of untoward events. Better lighting is required: vehicles parked during night with minimal lighting poses a safety and security threat to men, women, children and elders.

For better management of these issues, the Railways and Greater Chennai Corporation should arrive at an understanding of their responsibilities pertaining to this road. While earlier discussions on this issue might have resulted in a deadlock, residents humbly request the authorities to give a serious look into this and have this perennial issue sorted out.

Remembering the teachers

Old students of St. Bede's Anglo-Indian Higher Secondary School celebrate their 40th year reunion

The alumni of St. Bede's Anglo-Indian Higher Secondary School in Santhome, who passed out in 1985, celebrated their 40th year reunion at a grand get-together held at MRC, Guindy.

Thirty Bedeans of 1985 batch participated including the six from the U.S. and the U.K. Members of the batch are well placed in various professions and as a mark of gratitude presented mementos to 10 teachers, three of whom are headmasters. They are former headmasters Fr. P.J. Sebastian, Fr. K.J. Antony and Fr. Santhosam John, along with teachers Rajamoni, F.Samuel, G.Ramamurthi, N.Devdoss, T.Amalraj, J.Tharcus and Mary Nathan.

Several alumni expressed their deep gratitude to St. Bede's for providing them with a strong academic foundation, discipline and opportunities in extracurricular activities, which played a crucial role in shaping their careers and personal lives.

M.A. Sivakumar from the batch recalled how the priests were very considerate when he lost his father while pursuing Class X.

"We were the early batch when the school was transitioning into a higher secondary school and many changes were effected in the curriculum including an extended academic year. The teachers gave their best. For instance, Amalraj sir, gave us the foundation in accountancy and was against we enrolling in tuition classes. Being attentive in his class was more than enough," recalled Sivakumar.

Fr. P. J. Sebastian, in his address, said that even after 40 years, he could still recognise and remember many of the students, and expressed happiness at seeing them well settled and successful in their careers. Fr. K.J. Antony fondly recalled teaching history to the batch and expressed pride in their achievements, while Rev. Fr. John Santhosam reminisced about teaching Mathematics to the students during their higher secondary years.

The Class of 1985 collectively contributed funds, which will be utilised to support the education of needy students of St. Bede's School by assisting with school fees, added the release.

The city is back on the examination table as another edition of Swachh Survekshan 2026, the annual survey conducted by the Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs to rank cities on cleanliness, hygiene and sanitation, is under way.

Those working on the ground with Greater Chennai Corporation say the outcome will depend as much on citizen's civic sense as on the civic infrastructure, reminding residents that cleanliness starts at home.

The city's performance has not been promising in the last few editions. From fifth position in 2023, the city slipped to a dismal 104 in 2024. Last year, Chennai's ranking improved, but still did not prevent it from being a laggard in the area of cleanliness: it was placed in the 38th position.

Before a team from the Central Government visits the city between mid-February and March, a lot of work is intended to be done. The 'New Swachh Survekshan' indicators emphasises parameters such as visible cleanliness, waste segregation, collection and transportation, waste processing, dumpsite remediation, waste water treatment, reuse and faecal sludge management cornerstone of the initiative, but what pulls down Chennai is the poor participation of residents.

"People do not take the effort to fill the feedback form, and we lose out on account of that. Whatever be the feedback, filling it shows the level of engagement among citizens," says the superintendent engineer, Solid Waste Management, GCC.

This time, feedback is being sought through the year, including through digital platforms. The effectiveness of the grievance redressal mechanism is also counted, accounting for 10% of the total marks.

Citizens can share feedback through multiple platforms, including the Vote For My City App and Portal, MyGov App, Swachhata App and QR codes.

The bins are still the best bet

For Chennai residents given to long drives on ECR, the beachside expanse at Therkupattu is a familiar bivouacking spot. The patch is plagued by littering, particularly during weekends. The garbage bins are largely ignored by visitors but the solution ironically lies in having more of these bins

PRINCE FREDERICK

Thambi, the respectful, palms-folded, horse-faced, dhoti-clad mascot of the 44th chess Olympiad at Mamallapuram in 2022, has found the cleanest spots in Therkupattu on East Coast Road: the garbage bins. There is no dearth of litter on the beachside of Therupattu hugging ECR like a legging. It is found everywhere only rarely in the garbage bins. In effect, Thambi has been given the pride of place. No left-handed

Efforts to arrest the waste-flinging hands of bivouackers mid-throw have been made by the Therkupattu panchayat and even NGOs compliment here, not even a faint whiff of it.

Inveterate day-trippers from Chennai with the addiction of a caffeine fiend to long drives on ECR cannot but be familiar with Therupattu, drawn as much to its lazy sands by the side of the arterial road as to its sequestered beach. It is the closest bivouacking spot on ECR from Chennai. And as with any unregulated bivouacking spot, visitors leave traces of the good times behind on the soft beach sands of Therkupattu. It is largely plastic waste; and the wisps of garbage are found mostly by the side of ECR and the shoreline is largely clean. Efforts to arrest the waste-flinging hands of bivouackers mid-throw have been made by the Therkupattu panchayat and even NGOs such as Hand In Hand. By the side of the road, garbage bins and boards blaring exhortations against littering are the visible signs of these efforts.

The most striking demonstration of this effort is a drum “welded” into an alternative role as a garbage bin. A neat slot, enclosed by a swinging metal flap has been created for garbage to be slipped in; and an opening has been carved on the rear side for the garbage to be cleared.

Human beings imitate the majoritarian action more than they initiate original action thinking for themselves. So, rather than keeping the discards with them till they reach any of the garbage bins, they would take the cue from those around them and fling those plastics and cardboards in the sands. The learning and the action happen subliminally, the imbibitor and the initiator unaware they are following cues.

The garbage bins might be ignored, but strangely, the solution lies in having more bins across the vast bivouacking terrain. That is the only way to increase the visibility of the better and socially responsible cue of people taking the trouble to use the bins.

Lit for Life Mobile Library takes reading to classrooms across Chennai

SRIMATHI SRIDHARAN

The Hindu's Lit for Life (LFL) Mobile Library continued its outreach across Chennai in January, bringing the joy of reading directly to students in schools and colleges across the city. The initiative, which is part of The Hindu Group's larger commitment to inclusive learning and access to books, reached a diverse mix of government-aided, private, and higher education institutions.

Between January 8 and 20, the Mobile Library visited Kaligi Ranganathan Montfort School, Perambur; St. Joseph Matriculation Higher Secondary School, Poonamallee; Vidyodaya Girls Higher Secondary School, Thyagaraya Nagar; Orchids-The International School, Manakkam; Alpha Techno School, Puzhal; and Sri Bala Vidyalaya, Perambur. In addition, Stella Maris College, Gopalapuram.

At each campus, students were introduced to a curated collection of books spanning fiction, non-fiction, biographies, children's literature, and inspirational writing. The Mobile Library served not only as a lending space but also as an interactive reading zone, encouraging students to browse, explore, and engage with books beyond their prescribed curriculum.

Teachers and school administrators noted the value of the initiative in fostering reading habits at an early age, particularly at a time when digital distractions often compete for students' attention.

At Stella Maris College, the Mobile Library sparked conversations around reading as a tool for critical thinking, empathy, and lifelong learning, aligning closely with Lit for Life's emphasis on inclusive literature and diverse voices. Students shared reflections on how access to books can shape perspectives, improve language skills, and provide emotional refuge.

The Lit for Life Mobile Library is an extension of The Hindu Group's flagship Lit for Life festival, which champions literature, inclusion, and social awareness. By taking books directly to schools and colleges, the initiative bridges gaps in access and reinforces the belief that reading should be available to everyone, regardless of age or background.

The response from students and educators underscores a simple truth: when books meet readers where they are, stories find new life – and learning travels far beyond the page.

Children from rural schools go sightseeing

Hundred and twenty children from Government Higher Secondary Schools Thammanur, Seethanancheri, Vishar and Periyannatham visited Chennai on an educational tour organised by Dream India on January 24. The children began their day with a fun-filled metro ride from Koyembedu to Airport. Following this, they visited Anna Centenary library where they spent time understanding the various facilities provided in the library.

The children then had a great time at Birla Planetarium where they enjoyed the shows on the solar system and 3D shows. The children then visited Patterns Cognitive, Chennai-based machine learning product company, where the team addressed the children on various aspects of career options and gave away gifts as per the wish list of the children.

The visit concluded with Besant Nagar Beach.
