Tax Bill to widen steps to attract foreign investment

MONIKA YADAV & ARCHIS MOHAN
New Delhi, 3 August

The government is set to propose a fresh set of tax measures to attract long-term foreign investment, by widening the scope of the Income-tax (Amendment) Ordinance, 2026 to cover electronics manufacturing, data centres, rough diamond trading and offshore investment funds through the Taxation and Other Laws (Amendment) Bill, 2026.

The Bill, listed to be introduced in the Lok Sabha on Tuesday, goes well beyond the Income-tax (Amendment) Ordinance, 2026 issued in June. The ordinance primarily granted tax exemption on interest income and capital gains earned by foreign institutional investors (FIIs) and the Bank for International Settlements (BIS) from investments in government securities (Gsecs).

The Statement of Objects and Reasons says stakeholder representations received after enactment of the Finance Act, 2026, and continuing global trade disruptions prompted the government to introduce additional taxation measures beyond those contained in the Ordinance. "A need has arisen to undertake certain immediate taxation measures with a view to mitigate the impact of external economic shocks, ensure stability in the domestic economy, and support key sectors affected by the prevailing global conditions, which require certain amendments to the provisions of the said Act to be carried out on an urgent basis in the larger public interest," the Bill, a copy of which was reviewed by Business Standard, said. Payments Act amendment may be a precursor to MDR on UPI

AJINKYA KAWALE
Mumbai, 3 August

The Taxation and Other Laws (Amendment) Bill, 2026 listed for Parliament on Tuesday could empower the Centre to decide which digital payments methods will remain free of charges and which ones will incur charges.

This could replace the list drawn from the Income-tax Act, potentially paving the way for a merchant discount rate (MDR) on unified payments interface (UPI), said sources. The Bill does not specify fees, rates or a timeline for any payment instrument, and the prohibition on charging any fees for instruments like UPI stays.

"While this will undoubtedly lead to a debate, it is important to remember that both Brazil's Pix and China's real-time payment systems have always had merchant charges of 30-40 bps (basis points)... Looking at the near-zero investment scenario over the last six years, the pace of growth is naturally slowing, even though there is still an opportunity to increase penetration by almost 3x across both consumers and merchants," Amrish Rau, CEO, Pine Labs, said in a post on X.

On Monday, fintech stocks closed higher ahead of the Bill's introduction.

From Oct '28, new vehicles may need to talk to each other

DHRUVAKSH SAHA
New Delhi, 3 August

New vehicles manufactured starting from October 2028 may have to be fitted with vehicle-to-vehicle (V2V) communications systems, according to a draft notification issued by the Ministry of Road Transport and Highways. It lays out the phased implementation of the road safety technology announced by the government earlier this year.

According to the draft amendment to the Central Motor Vehicle Rules, 1989, category L, M and N vehicles manufactured on or after October 1, 2028, would have to be fitted with V2V communication systems conforming to AIS-230.

The system has been developed with enabling features to specify the minimum technical, functional, performance, environmental and security requirements for V2V communication systems installed in vehicles operating on Indian roads.

The draft guidelines added that starting October 2027, vehicles, if fitted with V2V communication systems, shall comply with AIS-230, as amended from time to time. This suggests that compliance will be optional till 2028 for newly manufactured vehicles.

The government has given stakeholders time till the last week of August to submit their comments to the proposed rules, after which it will issue final guidelines on V2V systems.

The phased approach will provide vehicle manufacturers and other stakeholders adequate time to prepare for the implementation of the new requirements, the ministry said.

The 5.875 Gigahertz (GHz) to 5.925 GHz frequency band has been considered for V2V and other intelligent transportation system applications. The Department of Telecommunications exempted the use of this frequency band from licensing requirements in June.

AIS-230 covers factory-installed onboard units using Cellular Vehicle-to-Everything (C-V2X) technology in the 5.875 GHz to 5.925 GHz frequency band. It also provides for the phased introduction of safety use cases such as emergency brake alert, forward collision warning, wrong-way driving, and emergency vehicle alert.

Mumbai, 3 August

Banks' reliance on Certificates of Deposit (CDs) appears to be easing as the mobilisation of Foreign Currency Non-Resident (Bank), or FCNR (B), deposits gathers pace.

Banks and financial institutions raised around ₹95,000 crore through CDs in July, sharply down from ₹1.8 trillion in the previous month, while CD rates have softened by as much as 70 basis points since the end of June.

According to Prime Database, CD issuances had risen steadily from ₹45,700 crore in April to ₹1.11 trillion in May before peaking in June, as banks scrambled to shore up liquidity amid tight funding conditions. The credit-deposit growth gap had also widened during this period, with credit growing much faster than deposits, pushing banks to borrow more from the CD market.

CDs are short-term money market instruments issued by banks with maturities ranging from seven days to one year. Banks primarily use CDs to manage liquidity, bridge asset-liability mismatches, and diversify funding sources.

The moderation in CD issuances coincides with a sharp acceleration in FCNR (B) mobilisation. Turn to Page 6 ▶

'Extract after extract in Manmohan's 1991 speech was from my mini Budget'

Q&A Yashwant Sinha served as finance minister in the Chandra Shekhar-led government and prepared a "mini-Budget" in December 1990 that laid the ground for Manmohan Singh's July 24, 1991, Budget. He also served as the finance minister from 1998 to 2002 and later as the external affairs minister (2002-04). In an interview at his Noida home, Sinha tells Archis Mohan and Giresh Chandra Prasad how his Budgets aimed at spurring demand through infrastructure investments. He says reform should be a continuous process and bemoans the trajectory of India's economy and its foreign policy. Edited excerpts:

Is it true that the same team worked on your "mini Budget" and the one Singh tabled on July 24?

■ The Budget speech is prepared in two parts. Part A is written by the chief economic advisor (CEA), and Part B by the revenue secretary. Then it comes to the finance minister, whose job is to put the entire speech in his own language.

When the Chandra Shekhar government came in, Montek Singh Ahluwalia was in the Prime Minister's Office. Subramanian Swamy said he would take Montek as the commerce secretary. So, S P Shukla, who was commerce secretary, came in as finance secretary. We had Deepak Nayyar as CEA. There were also Suresh Mathur, the industry secretary, K P Geethakrishnan, the expenditure secretary, and P K Lahiri, the revenue secretary. Most of this team survived (when the P V Narasimha Rao government came in).

It was Nayyar who wrote both the speeches (Sinha's and Manmohan Singh's), and you will find extract after extract common between Singh's speech and mine, such as the assessment of the economic situation, imbalances, and options in front of India, which were limited. But then there is fate. For the launch of my autobiography, Relentless, I had invited Pranab Mukherjee, who had by then become a former president. He noted that if the Congress hadn't blocked me, I could have been India's first reformist finance minister — the original reformer. Turn to Page 16 ▶

Cost discipline remains core as IndiGo goes premium

DEEPAK PATEL
New Delhi, 3 August

As IndiGo enters its third decade, the airline says it will retain the cost discipline that made it India's largest carrier even as it expands into business-class and long-haul operations. It also called for a rethink of how airport charges are structured at new airports, saying the current model puts pressure on airlines' economics.

"I think the next logical step... would be to premiumise. So, this is what the pivot is about. We are moving from a pure, low-cost, quick-turn business to a more premiumised offering... This we want, we will ring fence, we will make sure that this part of the business continues to operate the way it has operated, with the cost discipline, with the operational efficiency that we've had. And build the rest of it, overlay the other pieces on top of this core," Aloke Singh, chief strategy officer at IndiGo, told Business Standard. The "ring fence" approach means IndiGo intends to protect its core low-cost domestic business while adding premium cabins and wide-body aircraft for long-haul international routes. Singh said the airline's domestic narrow-body operations would continue to be the backbone of the business even as it expands into new segments.

That philosophy also shapes IndiGo's premium products. Singh described Stretch as "the IndiGo version of a business class", saying it "may not have all the bells and whistles that you have for a traditional business class", but is "what the market wants" and is "priced appropriately". He said the airline intends to apply the same cost-efficiency principles to its premium products as it has to its economy operations.

IndiGo Stretch is a tailored business-class service featuring a 2x2 seating layout, 38-inch pitch, and priority perks on select routes.

"WE ARE MOVING FROM A PURE, LOW-COST, QUICK-TURN BUSINESS TO A MORE PREMIUMISED OFFERING"

Aloke Singh
Chief strategy officer, IndiGo

The strategy marks a new phase for an airline that has expanded rapidly since commencing operations on August 4, 2006. From operating six Airbus A320 aircraft and serving 13 destinations in its first year, IndiGo today has a fleet of more than 440 aircraft, operates nearly 2,200 daily departures, connects over 140 destinations, and carried more than 123 million passengers in financial year 2025-26 (FY26). Since inception, the airline has flown over 880 million passengers.

The strategy is closely linked to the airline's long-term ambition of becoming a global player.

"The first 20 years have been... a journey of establishing a stable foundation and then growing to becoming one of the largest airlines in the world. But now we have to convert this airline into a global player, which means driving connectivity between India and the rest of the world, and really bringing home the value of India's geographic position," said Abhijit Dasgupta, senior vice-president (planning and revenue management) at IndiGo.

While IndiGo has already outlined its international expansion plans, executives said the broader objective is to position India as a stronger international connecting hub while continuing to expand the airline's overseas network.

As the airline pursues those ambitions, Dasgupta identified airport economics as a key issue facing the industry.

Dasgupta said new airports such as Navi Mumbai and Jewar are strategically important because they unlock fresh catchment areas and future growth opportunities. However, he argued that the way airport charges are currently structured creates difficulties for airlines.

Airport operators typically recover a significant part of their investment through higher charges during the initial years of operation. Airlines, however, cannot simply pass those costs on to passengers because travellers compare fares between airports serving the same metropolitan region.

Willie Walsh takes charge as IndiGo CEO

Nearly five months after former Chief Executive Officer Pieter Elbers stepped down following a major operational disruption at the airline, IndiGo on Monday announced that Willie Walsh has assumed charge as its new CEO.

The airline had announced Walsh's appointment in March after Elbers resigned, with Managing Director Rahul Bhatia serving as interim CEO.

Walsh formally assumed office after completing his tenure as Director General of the International Air Transport Association (IATA).

IndiGo said Walsh will lead the airline's overall management and strategic direction, with a focus on accelerating its global growth, strengthening operational performance, expanding its network.

Welcoming Walsh, IndiGo Managing Director Rahul Bhatia said the airline is entering its third decade and is poised for the next phase of growth. "As IndiGo enters its third decade and stands poised for the next phase of its growth, I am delighted to officially welcome Willie as the airline's Chief Executive Officer," Bhatia said. Adani plans ₹1.5 trn investment in Odisha's N-power projects

HEMANT KUMAR ROUT
Bhubaneswar, 3 August

After the Tata conglomerate, the Adani group wants to invest in nuclear power in Odisha.

To this effect, it has given a proposal to the Odisha government to set up two nuclear-power plants, each with a capacity of 2,800 megawatts (Mw), with an investment of around ₹1.5 trillion.

The conglomerate has also suggested setting up an ultra-supercritical thermal-power plant and a series of pumped storage power projects in the state.

If approved, the proposal would mark one of the largest private investments in Odisha's energy sector and place the state at the centre of India's next phase of nuclear-power expansion.

An Adani group delegation led by Subrat Tripathy, president (business development), Adani Ports and SEZ, presented the proposals to Kanak Vardhan Singh Deo, deputy chief minister holding the energy portfolio, in Bhubaneswar, officials said on Friday.

The state government has already approved Adani's 1.8 gigawatt (Gw) pumped storage project in Nayagarh district.

The company estimates that the projects together will create more than 22,000 direct and indirect jobs, besides substantially augmenting Odisha's power-generation capacity.

Officials said this was the second proposal from a private entity on nuclear-power projects the state had received so far.

Apart from Adani, Tata Power has also proposed to set up a nuclear-power plant — in Malkangiri district — while NTPC has also evinced an interest in investing in nuclear energy in the state.

"The proposal from Adani will undergo detailed discussions on project feasibility, land availability, regulatory clearances, environmental approvals and implementation schedules before any final decision is taken," a senior official of the energy department told Business Standard.

The nuclear proposal assumes significance because it is among the first major investment plans announced after the enactment of the Sustainable Harnessing and Advancement of Nuclear Energy for Transforming India (SHANTI) Act, 2025, which opened up India's civil nuclear power sector to regulated private participation.

The piece of legislation forms a key pillar of the Centre's Nuclear Energy Mission, which targets 100 Gw of nuclear power capacity by 2047, compared to India's installed capacity of less than 10 Gw now.

W Asia conflict weighs on Jindal Stainless' Q1 sales

SAKET KUMAR
New Delhi, 3 August

Jindal Stainless Ltd (JSL) on Monday reported a 7.6 per cent year-on-year (Y-o-Y) increase in consolidated net profit for the first quarter of financial year 2027 (FY27), as higher realisations and a richer product mix helped offset a production disruption caused by industrial gas shortages following the West Asia crisis.

The country's largest stainless steel producer by revenue posted a consolidated profit after tax (PAT) of ₹769 crore for the quarter ended June 30, compared with ₹715 crore a year ago. Revenue from operations rose 10.5 per cent to ₹11,279 crore, while earnings before interest, tax, depreciation and amortisation (Ebitda) rose 1.5 per cent to ₹1,329 crore.

Finished goods sales volumes, however, declined 7.3 per cent year-on-year to 580,805 tonnes after disruptions in the availability of LPG and propane forced the company to temporarily curtail production.

DLF Q1 revenue dips 52% on lower sales booking

SANKET KOUL
New Delhi, 3 August

Real estate major DLF reported a 4 per cent year-on-year (Y-o-Y) rise in consolidated net profit to ₹793.9 crore for the June quarter of financial year 2027 (Q1FY27), even as the firm looks at expanding its housing and commercial portfolio.

Addressing shareholders at the 61st Annual General Meeting (AGM) on Monday, also commemorating 80 years since the company was founded, Chairman Rajiv Singh said that the company was in a position to capitalise on the business opportunities to be unlocked from the government's focus on infrastructure projects.

"Our development and annuity businesses continue to focus on growth and expansion in their respective areas of operations. We remain confident of achieving our business goals, while maintaining a cautious eye on the overall macroeconomic developments," Singh added. In a statement to the exchanges on Monday, India's largest listed real estate developer by market capitalisation said its revenue from operations fell 52 per cent Y-o-Y to ₹1,280.34 crore in Q1FY27, compared to ₹2716.7 crore in the same quarter last year.

The revenue was impacted by new sales bookings, which stood at ₹657 crore for Q1FY27, reflecting the timing impact of deferred launches. This is down from the ₹11,425 crore new sales bookings recorded by DLF in Q1FY26, on the back of high demand in its Gurugram-based luxury offering Privana North.

Rera extension may save stalled projects from insolvency risk

SANKET KOUL
New Delhi, 3 August

The Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs' (MoHUA's) advisory allowing state Real Estate Regulatory Agencies (Reras) to extend timelines for registration of realty projects by four months may help save buyers from possible insolvency risks.

"For homebuyers, the main impact is that developers will not be treated as 'in-default' for this four-month period if the extension is granted. That means the window during which buyers can claim delay compensation is reduced for the extended period. At the same time, the move can help prevent a wave of stalled projects, which indirectly protects buyers from insolvency risk," said Alay Razvi, managing partner at legal firm Accord Juris.

The advisory issued by MoHUA is different from a directive, which means that project developers under Reras will have to adhere to the directions issued by the respective authorities. While the decision is intended to provide additional time for project completion, legal experts said that it should not be construed as permitting developers to increase prices for units already sold under registered agreements.

Existing homebuyers continue to be protected by the terms of their agreements and the safeguards under Rera.

"Unless the agreement specifically provides for a permissible price adjustment or the increase is due to statutory levies, developers cannot pass on higher construction costs to existing purchasers," said Vaibhav Suri, partner at law firm Cyril Amarchand Mangaldas.

This comes after MoHUA clarified last week that the government has classified the West Asia conflict as war for the purpose of invocation of force majeure clauses.

According to market watchers, developers have been accounting for a four to six month delay in project completion timelines, depending on the stage of construction and the availability of key materials and equipment. Completions have been stalled due to price hikes caused by supply chain challenges and sourcing delays.

Realtors add that there has been a 15-30 per cent rise in construction costs since the start of the conflict in February this year, with labour costs seeing a 15-20 per cent hike.

"The cost of constructing the buildings has gone up due to the fact that there have been increases in the prices of raw materials like steel, cement, aluminium, fuel, imported materials, and even in logistic charges," said Ashish Bhutani, chief executive officer (CEO) at Noida-based Bhutani Infra.

While prices of a few commodities have eased slightly in recent weeks, the overall cost environment remains well above pre-February levels. "The extension gives them the flexibility to complete projects without facing regulatory penalties for circumstances they did not create," said Parveen Jain, president of the National Real Estate Development Council (Naredco).

He added that the most significant use of force majeure provisions in recent years was during the Covid-19 pandemic, when construction activity had come to a near standstill.

While the current situation is different, Jain said that the sector is once again facing exceptional challenges due to global supply chain disruptions, rising input costs, and delays in material availability.

Govt considers duty parity for SEZ units on domestic market sales

KRITY AMBEY
New Delhi, 3 August

The government is considering allowing units in special economic zones (SEZs) to sell goods in the domestic market on a duty-forgone basis, a move that would largely align the Customs-duty treatment for such sales with that applicable to manufacturers in the domestic tariff area (DTA), according to a government official.

Under the proposal, units in SEZs will pay Customs duty only on imported inputs used in manufacturing goods sold in the domestic market instead of paying it on finished products, which is the current practice.

The inter-ministerial committee (IMC), comprising representatives from the Department of Commerce, the Department of Revenue and the NITI Aayog, formed in February to frame SEZ Policy 2.0, is expected to shortly discuss the proposal.

"The commerce ministry is readying a consolidated report to present to the IMC. This report will comprise several policy recommendations, including allowing SEZ units to make sales in the DTA on a duty-forgone basis," the official told Business Standard.

As SEZs are treated as foreign territories for Customs purposes, units can import raw material duty-free. However, when they sell finished goods in the domestic market, they have to pay Customs duty on the finished products.

Since duties on finished products are often higher than those on raw materials, the change would lower the duty burden on domestic sales.

"If domestic sales are allowed on a duty-forgone basis, SEZ units would no longer pay duty on finished goods. Instead, they would pay duty only on the imported input products," said Abhishek Jain, partner and national head (indirect tax), KPMG. The IMC is also expected to consider revising the definition of "services" under the SEZ Act to facilitate payment in rupees, the official said.

Emails sent to the commerce and finance ministries remained unanswered until the time of publication.

The government established SEZs nearly two decades ago to boost exports, attract foreign investment, and generate employment. Units operating in these enclaves received several fiscal incentives, including duty-free imports and tax exemption on export income.

However, the underutilisation of capacity has become a growing concern, particularly amid global trade disruption.

In February, the Centre announced a one-time measure allowing eligible SEZ units to sell goods in the domestic market at concessional rates of Customs duty.

Under the scheme, units that commenced production before March 31, 2025, can sell goods worth up to 30 per cent of their highest annual free-on-board export value achieved in any of the previous three financial years in the domestic market between April 1, 2026, and March 31, 2027.

While finalising the temporary measure, the IMC agreed to examine broader reforms to harmonise the regulatory framework for SEZs and asked the commerce ministry to prepare a consolidated set of recommendations, the official said.

The proposal has, however, raised concern within the government over revenue implications, given that SEZ units already enjoy several fiscal incentives aimed at promoting exports.

The government is expected to take a final call after consultations within the IMC.

"There's a strong push for reforms at a higher level. There's a mandate from the top," the official said, expressing optimism that the proposal would eventually be implemented.

While the proposal could improve the competitiveness of SEZ units, safeguards would be needed to ensure a level playing field for domestic manufacturers, said Gautam Khattar, principal at Price Waterhouse & Co LLP.

Tax relief on the anvil

- Under the proposal, SEZ units will pay duty only on imported inputs used in DTA sales
- Lower duty on imported inputs than finished goods could reduce the tax burden on domestic sales
- Proposal raises revenue concerns as SEZ units already enjoy multiple fiscal incentives
- Panel may also redefine 'services' under SEZ Act to enable payments in Indian rupees

Onion price rise may be food platter's TOP disruptor in July

INDIVJAL DHASMANA

TOP (tomato, onion, and potato) prices often flare up, mostly one or a couple of them, during a year to disturb the food platter. This time, it is the turn of tomatoes and onions. The retail price inflation rate in tomatoes fell in the first six months of 2026, barring May. Despite moderation, the rate remained elevated at around 32 per cent in June. The other two commodities saw a marginal inflation rate or a fall in prices in the first six months. The impact of TOP on the overall inflation rate remained negative in the first four months before rising moderately in May and June. July may push the inflation rate in onion higher than what tomatoes experienced. Average retail prices of onion in states rose close to 20 per cent year-on-year in July, while the other two saw a price fall. That said, tomatoes cost higher than onions in July.

Free is the most expensive word in public policy: CEA

"Free is the most expensive word in public policy," Chief Economic Advisor (CEA) V Anantha Nageswaran said on Monday, warning that building infrastructure on the promise of below-cost services is a contradiction that ultimately ruins economic balance sheets. Addressing the CII Tamil Nadu Infrastructure Summit 2026 in Chennai, Nageswaran pointed out that pricing vital utilities like water at zero leads society to treat them as limitless, resulting in waste and destruction. He argued that free water effectively subsidises "comfortable" households that already possess piped connections. Meanwhile, the genuinely vulnerable, who often lack such connections, are forced to purchase water from private tankers at several times the standard rate. Honest pricing, he suggested, would allow the government to protect the vulnerable directly while utilities earn enough to expand coverage to the unconnected. The illusion of "free" infrastructure always has a hidden cost, he explained. "Someone always will end up paying," the CEA said, outlining that there are only three true outcomes: the user pays a fair charge, the taxpayer bears the burden, or the asset itself pays the price through slow decay and a lack of maintenance. This failure to accurately price services directly hampers India's ability to attract long-term investment, Nageswaran noted. The CEA also extended his critique of costly policy choices to urban planning, specifically targeting artificially low Floor Space Index (FSI) limits. By restricting vertical growth, cities are forced into horizontal sprawl, making land scarce and expensive. PTI

Govt raises windfall tax on exports of petrol, diesel, ATF

The government has increased special additional excise duty (SAED) on exports of petrol, diesel and aviation turbine fuel (ATF), effective from August, according to a gazette notification. The export duty on petrol has been increased to ₹3.5 per litre from ₹2.5 per litre. The windfall tax on diesel exports has been raised to ₹25.5 per litre from ₹15.5 per litre, while the levy on ATF exports has also been increased to ₹22 per litre from ₹14.5 per litre. The government introduced windfall tax on exports of certain petroleum products from March 27 to ensure domestic availability by disincentivising exports amid the ongoing West Asia crisis. The rates are being revised on a fortnightly basis. BS REPORTER to near five-year low in July

AUHONA MUKHERJEE
New Delhi, 3 August

India's private sector manufacturing activity expanded at its slowest pace in nearly five years in July as total sales, input purchasing and job creation slowed amid renewed tensions in West Asia, a private survey showed on Monday. HSBC's India Manufacturing Purchasing Managers' Index (PMI), which tracks monthly changes in manufacturing activity, fell to 53.5 in July from 54.2 in June. The July reading was also the lowest since August 2021, when it was 52.3.

The latest figure — a weighted average of new orders, output, employment, suppliers' delivery times and stocks of purchases — was also below the Flash India Manufacturing PMI estimate of 53.9 released last month.

The index remained above the 50-mark, indicating expansion in activity. A reading below 50 signals contraction. June also marked the 57th consecutive month of expansion.

"The suppliers' delivery times index rose in July, an encouraging sign that supply chain delays are continuing to unwind. However, renewed tension in West Asia raised fresh doubts about how durable these improvements will be. In response, manufacturers appear to be rebuilding buffers: inventories of both inputs and finished goods increased alongside a rise in purchasing volumes. This suggests that firms are securing supply and limiting exposure to potential disruption," said Pranjul Bhandari, chief India economist at HSBC.

Growth in new orders was the second-weakest in over four years, with panel members citing increasingly-challenging market conditions and reduced client interest for key items as the major reasons, the survey said. In terms of sales, too, the pace of growth was among the softest since mid-2022.

"Consumer goods was an area of weakness in July, posting notably softer increases in new orders and output. Intermediate and capital goods makers registered stronger rates of expansion for both measures (new orders and sales)," the survey said.

Purchase of additional inputs also retreated to a 31-month low.

Job creation across India's manufacturing industry weakened for the third straight month in July. "The rate of increase in employment was the slowest in the current 29-month period of uninterrupted growth," the survey noted.

However, cost pressures receded to their lowest in five months, though companies continued to report higher prices for transportation.

Meanwhile, there was a moderate increase in selling prices that was broadly similar to June, said the survey.

"Output and new export orders strengthened, pointing to resilient demand, particularly from overseas markets. Price pressures also shifted: input cost inflation moderated, but output charge inflation accelerated, indicating firms are once again passing through price increases to protect margins," Bhandari added.

Indian Oil to invest ₹1 trn in petchem projects over 5 yrs

SHUBHANGI MATHUR
New Delhi, 3 August

India's largest refiner, Indian Oil Corporation Ltd (IOCL), plans to invest about ₹1 trillion in petrochemical projects over the next five to six years, the company's management said during an investor call on Monday. The move is aimed at increasing petrochemical intensity — the share of crude oil converted into chemicals — from the current 6.5 per cent to 16 per cent, it added.

"We generally have capital expenditure (capex) of ₹30,000 crore to ₹40,000 crore every year. From next year, we have several petrochemical projects where we will deploy our capex. The estimated cost of these projects is around ₹1 trillion over the next five to six years. These projects are at various stages of approval," said Anuj Jain, director (finance), IOCL.

IOCL aims to increase its petrochemical production capacity from the current 4.3 million tonnes per annum (mtpa) to 13 mtpa by 2030.

India, which has the world's fourth-largest refining capacity, plans to raise it from the current 260 mtpa to over 300 mtpa as it seeks to emerge as a global refining hub. State-run refiners, including Indian Oil, Bharat Petroleum Corporation Ltd (BPCL) and Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Ltd (HPCL), are expanding the capacity of existing refineries while also setting up greenfield refinery-cum-petrochemical complexes.

The greenfield refineries under construction have a stronger focus on petrochemical production. BPCL's upcoming refinery in Andhra Pradesh is targeting a petrochemical intensity index (PII) of 35 per cent, while HPCL's greenfield refinery at Barmer in Rajasthan is designed with a PII of 26 per cent. Capacity additions at other refineries across the country are also aimed at boosting petrochemical production.

"At IOCL, we are now focusing on petrochemicals as there is huge demand in the country. Going forward, renewables will also be a key area of investment. We have a target of achieving 18 gigawatts of renewable power capacity over the next three to four years. Renewables and petrochemicals will account for the bulk of our capex. In addition, we will invest in pipelines, biogas, sustainable aviation fuel, green hydrogen and shipping," Jain said.

Meanwhile, a joint venture between Indian Oil and Chennai Petroleum Corporation Ltd is reconfiguring the upcoming greenfield refinery at Nagapattinam in Tamil Nadu to increase the project's petrochemical output.

Kharif acreage inching up to '25 levels

The gap in kharif sowing acreage between this year and last narrowed to 2.9 per cent in the weekended July 31 from 4.7 per cent a week earlier, as sowing gathered pace. As of July 31, kharif crops had been sown over 89.42 million hectares, down from 92.07 million hectares a year ago. With the India Meteorological Department forecasting a below-normal monsoon in August, focus will be on rainfall distribution in the remaining weeks.

According to the agriculture ministry data released on Monday, acreage under moong, arhar and maize remained the lowest among major kharif crops compared with the same period last year.

In a recent report, rating agency Icra said kharif sowing during the remainder of the season would need to grow by around 13 per cent to match last year's final acreage. SANJEEB MUKHERJEE

OPINION

August MPC: Wait and watch, with ample caution

SIDDHARTHA SANYAL

The Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) looks set to hold the repo rate steady in August. The likelihood of maintaining the "neutral" stance also appears strong. Yet, the importance of the current MPC meeting is indeed high, mainly for the narrative and future guidance, against an increasingly complex macroeconomic landscape and even the US Fed moving away from conventional "forward guidance".

Consumer Price Index has breached 4 per cent for the first time in 17 months, Brent crude has swung by around 40 per cent within weeks amid see-sawing of US-Iran hostilities, and the rupee has weakened by nearly 1 per cent over the last month. On the other hand, high-frequency indicators paint a mixed to steady picture, credit growth stays robust at nearly 18 per cent year-on-year (Y-o-Y), while overall financial conditions continue to support domestic demand. Against this setting, the key question is not whether the MPC acts immediately, but how it chooses to shape market expectations for the path ahead.

Inflationary pressures resurfaced after averaging a modest 2 per cent in 2025-26. The growth-inflation trajectory in 2026-27 could be shaped heavily from factors such as the monsoon outcome, the ability of supply chains to absorb disruptions, and durability of oil price premium stemming from geopolitical tensions. Kharif sowing is down 3 per cent Y-o-Y and food inflation stays sticky. Thus, effective food supply management is no less crucial to contain inflation. While core inflation remains benign for now, the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) will certainly try to ensure that persistent external shocks do not permeate the broader price basket through second-round effects.

Global central banks are increasingly turning hawkish, leading to tighter financial conditions globally. The recent hawkish pause by the US Fed was followed by the 30-year Treasury yield rising to its highest level since 2007. Moreover, growing concerns over concentration risks in AI-driven trades have heightened volatility across both equity and private credit markets. For context, South Korea's stock market collapsed by nearly 30 per cent since the June 2026 peak, with the finance ministry announcing plans to 'stabilise' the market. A stronger US dollar and resultant widening yield differentials could further amplify imported inflation pressures to emerging markets. The RBI's recent measures to attract dollar-denominated deposits provide a timely buffer, with expected inflows potentially reaching $80 billion or higher. Nevertheless, a near term relief for the rupee will depend on easing of geopolitical tension and moderation of energy prices.

Liquidity conditions draw support from the cost-less conversion of NRI dollar deposits into INR liquidity; however, it is partially counter-balanced by RBI's forex operations to stabilise the rupee. Consequently, system liquidity surplus has averaged less than 0.4% of banks' NDTL since the last policy meeting, below the 1.3 per cent about a year ago, while the call rate has risen by around 50 basis points since the start of 2026-27. With inflation likely reaching near the upper tolerance band in the second half of 2026-27, the RBI may prefer to stay extra-cautious as regards money market conditions. This configuration strengthens the case for a continued "wait-and-watch" policy stance, but with ample caution.

Anthropic starts expanding Claude's India footprint

Targets local AI processing for highly regulated industries

SHIVANI SHINDE
Mumbai, 3 August

To make Claude more accessible to Indian users, Anthropic said on Sunday that, in the coming weeks, Claude artificial intelligence (AI) models will be available with in-country inference in India through Amazon Bedrock, Amazon Web Services' (AWS) managed generative ... through Amazon Bedrock carry the audit trails and access controls that risk and compliance teams require before anything reaches production.

"India is at an inflection point in its AI journey, and institutions from banks to government agencies are ready to harness frontier AI at scale," said Sandeep Dutta, president, AWS India and South Asia.

The head of the department-related standing committee on information technology, Nishikant Dubey, on Monday said Meta chief Mark Zuckerberg should personally apologise for the removal of Prime Minister Narendra Modi's video from Facebook, while other members demanded legal action. However, opposition MPs in the panel said anti-government content should not be considered anti-national. PTI

CXMT plans second chip plant in Beijing, funding talks on CXMT, China's largest chipmaker by market value, is considerative AI platform. The expansion targets enterprises and government entities that require their data to be processed locally.

The move comes amid growing demand from organisations in India for local access to Claude. With in-country inference, AI prompts and responses are processed within India, allowing organisations to keep AI workloads and data inside the country. Running Claude inference in-country gives Indian organisations the certainty they need to serve customers in highly regulated sectors. For banks, insurers, and public-sector agencies, that control is the difference between evaluating AI and deploying it.

include Axis Bank, NPCI, Godrej Industries

India is one of the largest markets for Claude, home to a developer community doing some of the most technically complex AI work we see anywhere, the company said in a statement. "Bringing Claude inference to India is a turning point for enterprise AI in this country," said Irina Ghose, managing director, India, Anthropic. "India's banks, insurers, telecommunications companies, and public-sector agencies steward the data of a billion people. When that data can stay in India, AI moves from pilots into the systems that matter most. Adding in-country inference marks a big step forward in what we are building here — a growing local team, strong performance in Indian languages, and partnerships that put this technology to work for India," she added.

In-country inference also comes with governance to match. Claude deployments

"With Anthropic's Claude now available for in-country inference through Amazon Bedrock, they can deploy it on the same trusted infrastructure they already use for their most critical workloads, unlocking new possibilities in citizen services and digital transformation," Dutta said.

Anthropic has been expanding its presence in India since opening its Bengaluru office in February this year. Some of the largest enterprises deploying Claude across their organisations include Axis Bank, National Payments Corporation of India, IndusInd Bank, and Godrej Industries.

MobiKwik bets on AI to improve lending

AJINKYA KAWALE
Mumbai, 3 August

Fintech firm MobiKwik is deploying artificial intelligence (AI) to improve lending efficiency, with the company expecting the technology to drive up to ₹300 crore in additional loan disbursements every quarter, a senior executive said.

AI models are expected to identify where users drop off in the lending journey, enabling the company to re-engage them with tailored loan offers, Upasana Taku, cofounder, executive director and chief financial officer (CFO), MobiKwik, told Business Standard.

Upasana Taku, cofounder, executive director and chief financial officer, MobiKwik

"We have identified almost 96 million of our users where we have enough information on them and could offer them some sort of a loan. We have deployed one or two models on that data, based on which we are able to segment them and offer them different loan products," Taku said.

She added that the strategy was to highlight two growth vectors within the company's lending business — to use an AI engine to reduce drop-offs, and to convert passive users to become active borrowers.

In April, the Reserve Bank of India approved the company's application for the licence to start a non-banking financial company, enabling the launch of its lending arm, MobiKwik Financial Services Pvt Ltd (MFSPL).

MobiKwik reported a consolidated net profit of ₹7.61 crore in the first quarter of 2026-27 (Q1FY27) against a loss of ₹41.92 crore in Q1FY26. Sequentially, the company saw its net profit grow 73.72 per cent from ₹4.38 crore in Q4FY26.

The firm stated that Q1FY27 was its third consecutive profitable quarter. MobiKwik was listed in December 2024.

Its revenues from operations grew 3.72 per cent to ₹281.41 crore in Q1FY27 from ₹271.36 crore in Q1FY26. On a quarter-on-quarter basis, they declined 2.5 per cent.

The company earned ₹7.6 crore as "other income" in Q1FY27 as against ₹10.2 crore in Q1FY26. MobiKwik cut down on its expenses on a year-on-year (Y-o-Y) basis.

Private banks boost efforts to mobilise FCNR (B) inflows

HDFC Bank, ICICI hike rates by 25 bps

SUBRATA PANDA
Mumbai, 3 August

Note: Net flow is the change in oustanding deposits between June 5 and July 30 Source: Parliament questions

With two months left before the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) closes its concessional FCNR (B) swap window, private-sector lenders are stepping up efforts to mobilise deposits and keep up with foreign banks and State Bank of India (SBI).

Large private-sector banks like HDFC Bank and ICICI Bank increased their deposit rates by 25 bps to 6.25 per cent in the 3 to 5 year maturity bucket under the scheme that began on 8 June and ends on 30 September.

According to data shared by the government in Parliament, foreign banks mobilised $8.37 billion, taking their outstanding FCNR (B) deposits to $8.97 billion from $603 million. Private-sector banks garnered $10.73 billion, while public-sector banks mobilised $8.84 billion. Small finance banks and cooperative banks together accounted for around $50 million of incremental deposits.

Among individual lenders, HSBC emerged as the largest mobiliser, with FCNR(B) deposits rising by $6.14 billion during the period. SBI followed with $4.12 billion, while ICICI Bank mobilised $3.70 billion. Other major contributors included Standard Chartered Bank ($1.86 billion), Kotak Mahindra Bank ($1.66 billion), Axis Bank ($1.59 billion), and HDFC Bank ($1.41 billion).

Among public-sector banks, Bank of Baroda mobilised $1.05 billion. Punjab National Bank and Canara Bank mobilised $970 million and $933 million, respectively.

Outstanding FCNR (B) deposits with authorised dealer banks rose to $60.55 billion as of July 30 from $32.56 billion on June 5, translating into fresh net inflows of $27.99 billion during the period. The data takes into account FCNR (B) deposits that have matured during the period.

RBI data released on Saturday showed banks had mobilised nearly $41 billion in foreign exchange inflows under the concessional swap window as of July 31, including $36.7 billion through fresh FCNR (B) deposits.

According to a senior banker, private sector banks have lagged state-owned and foreign banks in FCNR (B) mobilisation largely because of pricing discipline. As leverage has become more expensive, banks could have mobilised significantly larger volumes but only by sacrificing margins. The key difference, the banker said, lies in pricing appetite, with several public sector banks willing to operate with much thinner spreads to attract deposits. Private lenders, on the other hand, have been more selective in balancing deposit mobilisation with profitability. In addition, private banks with relatively smaller overseas franchises have faced constraints in arranging funding lines and leverage for customers.

"For Indian private sector banks that do not have a large overseas presence, mobilising FCNR (B) deposits requires considerable groundwork in each market. We need to build relationships with correspondent banks, arrange internal funding lines, work with partner banks and establish the necessary channels before deposit flows begin. Unlike foreign banks, which already have an established international franchise, private Indian banks have to invest time and effort in creating that network," said a senior banker at a large private-sector bank.

Among private banks, AU Small Finance Bank raised the peak rate on its FCNR(B) deposits to 7.4 per cent from 7.1 per cent for deposits with a tenor of three to four years.

"Competition has also picked up. HDFC Bank has hiked its FCNR (B) rates and, following that, even ICICI has increased its rates. In our view, Q1FY27 wasn't the bottom for bank margins. Q2 will be under greater pressure because FCNR (B) money isn't very cheap money," said Suresh Ganapathy, managing director and head of financial services research at Macquarie Capital.

More lenders are expected to revise their rates upwards as competition intensifies ahead of the September-end deadline.

"Funding costs have risen as leverage has become more expensive, and banks also need to remain competitive in attracting FCNR (B) deposits under the RBI's swap window. The higher deposit rates are therefore a response to both increased funding costs and competitive pressures, while ensuring that lending margins remain commercially viable. Ultimately, each bank is making its own trade-off between maximising mobilisation and preserving profitability," said another banker.

The first banker quoted earlier said lenders are closely watching whether recent rate hikes by peers translate into higher deposit inflows before taking a call on revising their own pricing.

"Some banks have recently increased their FCNR (B) deposit rates, and we will assess whether that translates into a meaningful increase in deposit inflows. If we find higher published rates are materially influencing mobilisation, we will review our pricing accordingly," the banker said.

SHARE-TRANSFER REGULATIONS

New Irdai norms may raise compliance burden

AATHIRA VARIER
Mumbai, 3 August

The Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority of India's (Irdai's) revised share-transfer regulations could dilute some of the compliance relief envisaged under the Sabka Bima Sabki Raksha (SBSR) Act by introducing additional approval requirements linked to ownership thresholds, legal experts said.

The changes come as several foreign promoters plan to raise their stakes in existing insurance joint ventures and new investors evaluate opportunities after the government allowed 100 per cent foreign direct investment (FDI) in the sector.

While some legal experts believe the revised framework could result in more transactions requiring prior regulatory approval than envisaged under the Act, industry executives argue that it balances easier access for smaller investments with regulatory oversight of significant ownership changes.

The amended regulations, notified by Irdai on July 31 under the SBSR Act, require prior approval not only when an acquisition exceeds the prescribed threshold but also when an investor's total shareholding crosses specified ownership levels.

Under the new rules, approval is required if a transferee already holds more than 5 per cent in an insurer and the proposed acquisition raises its stake beyond 10 per cent, 25 per cent, 50 per cent or 75 per cent, or makes it the single-largest shareholder.

The SBSR Act had raised the threshold for mandatory prior approval from 1 per cent to 5 per cent to facilitate investment and reduce compliance. Under the earlier framework, the approval requirement depended only on the size of the proposed acquisition.

For example, a shareholder with a 13 per cent stake could acquire an additional 0.5 per cent without prior approval because the transaction itself remained below the threshold. Approval was required only if the acquisition exceeded the prescribed limit.

The revised norms introduce an additional test. Besides the size of the transaction, investors must also obtain prior approval if the acquisition pushes their total shareholding beyond specified ownership thresholds, even if the incremental purchase is relatively small.

"The move effectively introduces regulatory approvals for transactions that the amended Act appeared to exempt. The Act made it clear that approval should be required only where the transfer itself exceeds 5 per cent," a legal expert said.

Instead, the expert added, the regulations require parties to consider not only the size of the acquisition but also whether the resulting shareholding crosses one of several prescribed thresholds. "This creates additional complexity in transaction structuring because investors must continuously monitor cumulative ownership levels."

The expert added that the revised framework is likely to increase the number of transactions requiring prior Irdai approval, raising compliance obligations for investors.

An industry executive said the changes appear aimed at giving the regulator greater oversight of evolving ownership structures, particularly as FDI inflows and merger and acquisition activity gather pace. Another industry executive, however, said the framework balances ease of doing business with regulatory oversight.

SC allows CERC to frame mkt-coupling regulations, dismisses IEX challenge

BHAVINI MISHRA
New Delhi, 3 August

The Central Electricity Regulatory Commission's (CERC's) work on price discovery for electricity can continue for now with the Supreme Court (SC) on Monday dismissing the Indian Energy Exchange's (IEX's) challenge to the regulator's market-coupling framework at this stage. However, the court said that it had expressed no opinion on the merits of the dispute.

This allows the regulator to continue framing regulations.

A Bench of Justice P S Narasimha and Justice Alok Aradhe observed that the issue was premature because the regulatory framework governing market coupling was yet to be finalised. The court said the IEX would be free to raise its objections once the regulations are notified.

The company's share price at the BSE on Monday closed at ₹127.35, down 3.67 per cent against the previous close.

The CERC told the court that the regulations governing market coupling would be notified in four to six weeks, paving the way for the implementation of the new framework for electricity trading.

The order comes as a setback for the IEX, which had sought judicial intervention against the CERC's move on market coupling, a mechanism under which buy and sell orders from all power exchanges are pooled to discover a single market-clearing price instead of each exchange determining prices independently.

The CERC has argued that the system would improve price discovery, transparency and efficiency in electricity trading.

The IEX says the regulator's approach could affect competition and market efficiency.

The company has argued that the existing exchange-based model has helped develop India's power markets and market coupling is not warranted at the current stage.

The litigation stems from the CERC's order directing the phased implementation of market coupling for the day-ahead market (the marketplace where electricity is bought and sold one day before it is supplied). The regulator had envisaged a "shadow pilot" before full implementation and proposed a rotational arrangement under which different power exchanges would act as the market-coupling operator.

The IEX challenged the decision before the Appellate Tribunal for Electricity (Aptel), arguing that the order was arbitrary and based on incorrect parameters.

Tax Bill to widen steps to attract foreign investment

It seeks to substantially simplify the tax rules for offshore investment funds. At present, eligible investment funds must satisfy several conditions related to investor composition, diversification, minimum corpus and investment restrictions to ensure that their activities are not treated as creating a business connection in India. The Bill removes many of these while retaining key safeguards, making the safe harbour regime easier to access and reducing the scope for disputes.

It is expected to strengthen the government's push to position India, particularly Gujarat International Finance Tec (GIFT) City, as a global fund management destination by reducing tax uncertainty for overseas asset managers.

Tejas Desai, partner and financial services tax leader at EY India, said the changes could be among the most significant reforms for India's fund management industry in recent years. "Several safe harbour conditions that were out of sync with global fund structures are proposed to be removed. Of the original 13 conditions applicable to qualify as an eligible investment fund, only five remain. The changes provide greater flexibility to fund managers and could significantly improve India's competitiveness as a fund management destination," he said.

However, Akhilesh Ranjan, former member of the Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT), questioned the rationale for removing several of the conditions. "The conditions that have been removed were intended to ensure that the relevant fund is professionally managed, has diversified ownership and to prevent round-tripping of funds. The purpose of removing these eligibility conditions and easing operational requirements, the Bill seeks to create a more predictable environment for investment decisions. The manufacturing and warehousing-related measures may encourage deeper integration of production and supply-chain activities in India," she said.

The Bill also proposes to extend the existing tax exemption available to foreign companies that provide capital goods, equipment or tooling to Indian contract manufacturers engaged in electronics manufacturing by another 10 tax years till 2040-41. Under the existing law, the benefit is available till the tax year 2030-31.

It also proposes a new tax exemption till the tax year ending March 2041 for foreign companies that store electronic components in customs bonded warehouses in India and supply them to Indian contract manufacturers.

This is aimed at facilitating global supply-chain models under which multinational firms retain ownership of components while Indian firms undertake contract manufacturing.

The Bill also defines "specified electronic goods" for the purpose of these exemptions, to include mobile phones, laptops, tablets, servers, subassemblies, hearables, wearables and related accessories. Separately, the Bill proposes a new tax exemption for income from the sale of rough diamonds earned by certain foreign companies, including those engaged in diamond mining as well as sight holders, brokers, aggregators and tender or auction entities. The exemption will be available for 15 years, till the tax year ending March 2041.

It also seeks to ease the tax

ment in digital infrastructure.

It also restores the dividend exemption for unit holders of real estate investment trusts (Reits) and infrastructure investment trusts (Invits) in cases where the underlying special purpose vehicle (SPV) opts for the new tax regime. At the same time, it proposes a higher surcharge of 25 per cent for SPVs opting for the new tax regime, while the surcharge for other domestic companies remains at 10 per cent.

Sumeet Hemkar, partner at Deloitte India, said the Bill combines tax incentives with structural reforms. "Besides extending exemptions for key sectors, it rationalises the framework for offshore funds, restores dividend tax neutrality for Reit and Invit investors in specified situations and simplifies tax rules for data centres. Together, these measures are expected to improve tax certainty and ease of doing business," he said.

Payments Act amendment may be a precursor to MDR on UPI

Pine Labs rose 9.68 per cent to ₹152.45 a share, Paytm saw a 2.63 per cent rise to ₹1,376 a share. AvenuesAI rose 11.02 per cent to ₹17.63 a share, whereas MobiKwik saw its stock rise 4.66 per cent to ₹214.55 per share. A potential MDR on UPI could also bring relief to fintechs such as PhonePe and Razorpay that are in the process of initial public offerings.

According to the Bill, what changes is where the list of protected payment modes comes from — instead of the Income-tax Act, the Centre will notify the list without returning to the Parliament.

Industry sources believe that this amendment to the Payments And Settlement Systems Act, 2007, is likely to be a precursor to a potential MDR for large merchants.

"In the Payment and Settlement Systems Act, 2007, in section 10A, for the words, figures and letters 'the electronic modes of payment prescribed under section 269SU of the Income-tax Act, 1961', the words 'one or more electronic modes of payment as the Central government may, by notification, specify' shall be substituted with effect from the date of publication of this Act in the Official Gazette," the December 2019 as UPI, UPI QR and RuPay debit cards.

Section 10A of the Payment and Settlement Systems (PSS) Act tells banks and systems that they may not charge the payer or the recipient on those same modes. It takes the modes from the aforementioned tax provision

With the proposed amendment, Section 10A will no longer point at the tax provision and will instead cover whichever modes the Central government specifies by notification. A future notification could leave out certain categories such as peer-to-merchant (P2M) UPI payments at large merchants, for instance, making a charge possible on them.

"After this amendment, it is expected that the Finance Ministry would have the power to introduce MDR structures like the one for large merchants instead of returning to Parliament. This is the first step towards a potential MDR on UPI. For now, no decision has been made on what kind of MDR that should be levied because the Ministry did not have the powers until now," said a source with knowledge of the matter.

Currently, UPI and RuPay

protection for the smallest businesses while enabling sustainable monetisation for service providers. We would like to assure the government that introduction of nominal MDR for RuPay Debit cards and UPI (for large merchants) will not result in any operational disruption, even in the short term, as these merchants are already accustomed to MDR on other payment modes," Vishwas Patel, Chairman, PCI, had written to the Prime Minister's Office in March 2025.

The central government has been subsidising the growth of homegrown payments instruments. The Budget allocated a ₹2,000 crore incentive to promote low-value, P2M for UPI and RuPay debit cards this year. This was 8.9 per cent lower than the final allocation in FY26, which stood at ₹2,196.21 crore.

CD issuances plunge in July as FCNR (B) deposits spike

Since the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) announced a concessional swap facility in early June, banks have stepped up the mobilisation of overseas deposits, giving them access to an alternative source of wholesale funding. On Saturday, the RBI said banks had mobilised $41 billion in foreign exchange inflows under the concessional swap window as of July 31, including $36.7 billion in fresh FCNR (B) deposits. The improved liquidity has pushed CD rates lower, with the peak rate declining from 7.57 per cent to 6.85 per cent.

"The moderation in banks' reliance on CDs is a natural and expected outcome of the FCNR(B) mobilisation drive. As banks garner larger volumes of FCNR(B) deposits under the RBI's concessional swap scheme, they have access to a relatively cheaper source of funding, reducing the need to tap the domestic wholesale funding market through CDs. Consequently, FCNR (B) inflows are effectively replacing a part of banks' CD borrowings," a senior banker said, adding that this was already reflected in the market.

The trend, the banker said, was expected to persist through the current quarter, and the outlook for the following quarter would depend on the quantum of deposits remain subdued beyond the current quarter, with the duration of the impact ultimately depending on the stock of FCNR(B) deposits accumulated under the scheme," the banker said.

Another senior banker said the recent decline in funding costs should also be viewed in the context of seasonal trends. "The first quarter was somewhat of an anomaly. Normally, CD rates soften after the fourth quarter as year-end funding requirements ease. This year, however, rates remained elevated through much of the first quarter because banks continued to compete aggressively for deposits amid strong credit growth," the banker said.

According to the second banker, the decline in rates is a combination of seasonal factors and the rollover of wholesale liabilities that was delayed this year. "There appears to have been a lag. Instead of cooling immediately after the fourth quarter, deposit rates started easing only about a month or six weeks later. Going forward, if FCNR(B) mobilisation continues to improve and brings additional liquidity into the system, deposit rates are likely to soften further," the person added.

Saurabh Bhalerao, associate director at CareEdge Ratings, another funding source," he said. "Whether CD issuances remain subdued beyond the current quarter will depend largely on credit demand. However, if credit growth accelerates, banks may have to return to the CD market," he added.

From Oct 2028, new vehicles may need to talk to each other

According to the ministry, V2V communication enables nearby vehicles to exchange real-time information, including speed, position, direction, acceleration, etc. This can provide advance warnings to drivers or vehicle systems in safety-critical situations, including sudden braking, forward-collision risk, unsafe lane changes and the approach of emergency vehicles.

V2V communication systems can complement ADAS, according to MoRTH.

"Unlike conventional vehicle-safety systems, which primarily depend on onboard sensors and driver reaction, V2V communication can provide information beyond the direct line of sight. It is therefore expected to complement Advanced Driver Assistance Systems (ADAS) and support proactive accident prevention, connected mobility and future intelligent transport applications," the ministry said.

The Ministry had constituted a task force for the development and implementation of ITS in the country with specific emphasis on V2V communication.

The proposed framework is expected to improve vehicle situational awareness, facilitate timely safety warnings and strengthen the use of connected technologies for reducing road-accident risks, according to MoRTH.

conditions is not clear from the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Bill," he added.

Richa Sawhney, partner at Grant Thornton Bharat LLP, said the proposed changes are expected to enhance certainty for investors and businesses, particularly in fund management, electronics manufacturing, data centres and diamond trading. "By extending incentives, rationalising framework for data centres by removing the requirement for government notification of both the foreign company and the specified data centre. It further expands the definition of a specified data centre to include facilities operated by an Indian firm under either ownership or lease arrangements, a move aimed at improving ease of doing business and facilitating invest-bill states, a copy of which has been reviewed by Business Standard. Two provisions have kept UPI free over the past few years.

Section 269SU of the Income-tax Act tells businesses with turnover above ₹50 crore that they must accept payment through prescribed electronic modes — specified by the Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT) in debit card transactions do not incur any charges. Over the past few years, the digital payments industry such as the Payments Council of India has been requesting the government to introduce a 30 bps MDR on transactions made through UPI and RuPay debit card transactions at large merchants.

"Zero MDR can continue for smaller merchants on low-value transactions, ensuring the quantum of deposits mobilised before the September-end deadline. "If banks are able to build a sizeable FCNR (B) deposit base by then, they are likely to remain comfortably funded through October and November as well, reducing the need for fresh CD issuances even after the special window closes. As a result, both CD issuance volumes and CD rates could said the CD market had reacted well before banks started repricing deposits. "The moderation in CD issuances and rates is a natural consequence of the FCNR (B) mobilisation drive. Rates have come off quite substantially, which reflects the market pricing in the additional liquidity expected from the mobilisation. With sizeable inflows coming into the system, banks have access to

Rise in inflation driven by global commodity, energy costs: Govt

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, 3 August

The increase in wholesale price inflation in June to 9.87 per cent was largely driven by price pressures in items that are more sensitive to global commodity and energy costs, Parliament was informed on Monday.

Minister of State for Finance Pankaj Chaudhary said in the Lok Sabha that the government has been actively undertaking a series of measures to control inflation and mitigate its impact on consumers.

These measures include augmenting buffer stocks for essential food items, strategically selling procured grains in the open market, and calibrating trade policies.

As a result of the government's measures, the retail or consumer price index (CPI)-based inflation rate has been below the 4 per cent target over the last two quarters — 3.1 per cent in the January-March of FY2025-26 and 3.9 per cent in the April-June quarter of FY2026-27.

On a year-on-year basis, wholesale price index (WPI) based inflation increased from 9.68 per cent in May to 9.87 per cent in June.

"The rise in WPI inflation is largely driven by the price pressures in commodities that are more sensitive to global energy and commodity price movements, particularly mineral oils (including petroleum products), food articles, basic metals, chemicals and chemical products," Chaudhary said in a written reply.

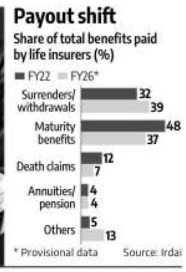
He said the government, in consultation with the RBI, determines the CPI retail inflation target once every five years to maintain price stability while keeping in mind the objective of growth.

The government notified on March 25, 2026, the CPI inflation target as 4 per cent with a lower tolerance level of 2 per cent and upper tolerance level of 6 per cent, for the period from April 1, 2026 to March 31, 2031.

India's retail inflation rose to a provisional 4.38 per cent in June 2026, up from 3.93 per cent in May, driven primarily by higher food and transport prices.

Premature life policy exits surpass maturity payouts

KRITY AMBEY
New Delhi, 3 August



Premature surrender and withdrawal of life insurance policies have overtaken maturity payouts over the past five years as more policyholders exit long-term policies before the completion of their tenure, according to data presented by Minister of State for Finance Pankaj Chaudhary in the Lok Sabha on Monday.

"Surrenders and withdrawals as a share of the total benefits paid by life insurers have increased from 32 per cent in FY22 to 39 per cent in FY26," Chaudhary said in a written reply to a question in the lower house of Parliament.

"The proportion of maturity benefits in total benefits paid by life insurers has decreased from 48 per cent in FY22 to 37 per cent in FY26," he added.

In absolute terms, surrender and withdrawal payouts rose to ₹2.80 trillion in FY26 from ₹1.58 trillion in FY22, while maturity payouts increased to ₹2.70 trillion from ₹2.40 trillion over the same period.

"The insurance sector regulator, Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority of India (Irdai), has informed that policy surrenders and early exits are influenced by multiple factors, including lack of suitability of the product purchased, lack of affordability of premium, non-fulfilment of policyholder expectations, mis-selling, lack of policyholder awareness and understanding of insurance products, and changes in the financial circumstances of policyholders," the minister said. State-run Life Insurance Corporation of India (LIC) accounted for ₹1.57 trillion in surrenders in FY26, while other players such as SBI Life (₹29,294 crore), ICICI Prudential Life Insurance (₹27,340 crore), and HDFC Life Insurance (₹15,741 crore) also recorded high early-exit figures.

CBDT's NUDGE drive resulted in 12.5 mn updated ITRs

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, 3 August

The income tax department's NUDGE ((Non-intrusive Usage of Data to Guide and Enable) campaign has resulted in 12.5 million taxpayers filing updated or revised income tax returns (ITRs) with payment of ₹9,494 crore in additional taxes over the past 2 years, Minister of State for Finance Pankaj Chaudhary said on Monday.

The Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT) has undertaken the NUDGE campaign by using data analytics, behavioural insights and digital communication platforms for improved tax collection efficiency in a non-intrusive manner. Under these campaigns, communications are sent to select taxpayers after due risk analysis to review and revise/update their ITRs already filed.

Chaudhary said in the last five years, the income tax department has detected cases of wrongful tax reliefs and claims of non-genuine deduction. Such cases have come to light through data analytics and verification exercises, and have been further corroborated through searches carried out against entities, professional intermediaries suspected of facilitating such claims.

The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) on Monday lost the electoral battle for the prestigious Bankipur Assembly seat in Bihar's Patna district, a constituency that has been the party's bastion since it was carved out in 2008 and was represented by its National President Nitin Nabin for four consecutive terms from 2010 to 2025.

The BJP also failed to wrest the Datia seat from the Congress in Madhya Pradesh. Its only consolation came from Gujarat, where it retained Vadodara's Manjalpur seat. Polling for the three seats across three states, all of which have BJP chief ministers (CMs), took place on July 30, and the votes were counted on Monday.

In Bankipur, an Assembly segment in the Patna Sahib Lok Sabha (LS) constituency, Jan Suraaj Party's (JSP's) Prashant Kishor defeated the BJP's Neeraj Kumar Sinha by 19,324 votes. The Rashtriya Janata Dal (RJD) candidate finished a distant third. It was the first Assembly bypoll in Bihar after the BJP's Samrat Choudhary replaced Janata Dal (U)'s Nitish Kumar as the state's CM on April 15. The National Democratic Alliance (NDA) had contested the October-November Bihar Assembly polls under Kumar's leadership.

The Bankipur bypoll was also Kishor's electoral debut. His party, the JSP, had performed poorly in the October-November 2025 Bihar polls. Of the 238 candidates it fielded, 236 forfeited their deposits. The win could revive Kishor's political career. The election strategist was criticised last year for not contesting as a candidate in the October-November 2025 Bihar Assembly polls.

The Bankipur seat was carved out of the Patna West seat, which Navin Kishore Prasad Sinha, the BJP national president's father, represented from 1995 to 2005. Nabin won the Patna West bypoll in 2006, which was necessitated by his father's death. In that bypoll, Nabin secured 82 per cent of the votes polled. He went on to win successive polls from Bankipur, a predominantly urban seat, with vote shares exceeding 59 per cent. Nabin vacated the seat after being elected to the Rajya Sabha in April.

After his victory, Kishor ruled out the possibility of joining any political alliance. He claimed that his win was made possible "with the backing of" disgruntled supporters of parties such as the BJP, the Congress, and the RJD.

"You should see that the people of Bankipur have voted for us by giving up on established parties," Kishor said. He said the bypoll was "not an election to make an MLA" but an attempt by the people of Bihar to send a message to PM Narendra Modi and Union Home Minister Amit Shah, who "must install a new CM in place of Choudhary". Kishor alleged that the Bihar CM has "criminal antecedents".

In Datia, the Congress' Ghanshyam Singh defeated the BJP's Ashutosh Tiwari by a little over 6,000 votes. Former state home minister and BJP leader Narottam Mishra represented the Datia seat in 2008, 2013, and 2018, but lost the 2023 election to the Congress' Rajendra Bharti, who was later disqualified after being convicted in a criminal case.

Mishra's supporters blocked a highway in Datia for a few hours on July 11 after he was denied the party ticket. Congress leaders linked the victory to an "awakening" among students and other sections of society. Azad Samaj Party candidate Damodar Yadav finished third. State BJP President Hemant Khandelwal said: "Discipline is paramount in the BJP. All our workers are equal. The party will take action based on the conclusions reached after the review."

In Gujarat's Manjalpur, the BJP's Satendra Patel defeated the Congress candidate by a little over 30,000 votes. BJP's Yogesh Patel, who passed away in June, had represented Manjalpur ever since it was carved out in 2008.

Two 55 Mw nuclear SMRs to cost ₹7K cr: Jitendra Singh

NANDINI KESHARI
New Delhi, 3 August

The cost of setting up small modular reactors (SMRs) varies widely, ranging from ₹320 crore for a 5 megawatt thermal (Mwth) High Temperature Gas Cooled Reactor (HTGCR) meant for green hydrogen applications to ₹7,000 crore for two units of the 55 megawatt electric (Mwe) SMR-55, Minister of State Jitendra Singh informed Parliament last week.

Between the two, a 220 Mwe Bharat Small Modular Reactor (BSMR-200) is estimated to cost ₹5,960 crore, the minister of state for personnel, public grievances and pensions and the Prime Minister's Office, said in a written reply. He said construction of these reactors is expected to take five to six years after financial approval. Under the Nuclear Energy Mission, the government plans to develop and operationalise five indigenous SMRs by 2033. All three reactors are being developed by the Bhabha Atomic Research Centre.

No proposal to change or replace Unified Pension Scheme: FM

Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Monday said there is no proposal under consideration to make any changes or replace the Unified Pension Scheme (UPS) introduced with the objective of providing monthly payout after retirement to the Central government employees covered under the NPS. The total number of employees, including new joinees, existing staff and past retirees, who opted for UPS, as on July 19, 2026 is 118,195, Sitharaman said in a written reply in the Lok Sabha. "UPS has been introduced as an option under NPS for the employees of the Central government who are covered under the NPS. As on date, there is no proposal under consideration to make any changes or replace the UPS," she said. PTI

RS passes Bill to tackle delays in payment to MSMEs

The Rajya Sabha on Monday passed a Bill to tackle the issue of delayed payments to MSMEs by prescribing timelines to ensure faster adjudication of disputes, provide recovery of the settlement agreement, and address their liquidity issues amid Opposition dissent. The Micro Small and Medium Enterprises Development (Amendment) Bill, 2026, looks to empower courts to order payment of 50 per cent of the awarded amount to MSMEs, if the application to set aside an order is pending for over six months. Bill to widen Indian Statistical Institute norms tabled in LS

A Bill was introduced in the Lok Sabha on Monday to widen the remit of the Indian Statistical Institute and align its legal framework with evolving needs. It was introduced amid Opposition protests over the Neet paper leak and the alleged theft of donations from Ram temple. The Indian Statistical Institute Bill, 2026, seeks the institute's incorporation as a 'body corporate' to strengthen its governance, promote academic excellence and research and allow it to serve the needs in statistics and allied fields. House committee seeks curbs on NFRA powers, softer audit norms

RUCHIKA CHITRAVANSHI
Panaji, 3 August

A parliamentary committee examining the Companies Bill has urged the Centre to curb the proposed expansion of the National Financial Reporting Authority's (NFRA's) powers and adopt a risk-based approach to key audit reforms, including the proposed ban on non-audit services and a three-year post-audit cooling-off period.

In its report tabled in the Lok Sabha on Monday, the committee also backed a more flexible buyback regime allowing companies to undertake two buybacks a year. However, it asked the government to clearly define the reckoning of a year for determining the two buybacks and computing the mandatory six-month gap.

Flagging concerns over excessive delegation of powers to NFRA, the panel recommended that the Centre retain the power to appoint the secretary and other employees. "This will address the concerns that allowing a regulatory body completely unchecked administrative hiring power can negatively impact accountability checks and general oversight," the committee said.

THE PANEL BACKED A MORE FLEXIBLE BUYBACK REGIME ALLOWING FIRMS TO UNDERTAKE TWO BUYBACKS A YEAR

The panel, headed by MP Sudheer Gupta, also recommended deleting the proposed provision for imprisonment for failure to comply with NFRA's orders, saying it was not in consonance with the government's broader objective of decriminalisation.

It also asked the Ministry of Corporate Affairs (MCA) to ensure that amendments to the Companies Act do not dilute or override the statutory autonomy of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of India.

While noting that the proposed powers relating to registration, investigation, regulation-making and body corporate status would broaden NFRA's role beyond its original oversight function, the committee said this could overlap with ICAI's statutory functions. "This may result in regulatory duplication, institutional fragmentation, increased compliance burden, and uncertainty regarding jurisdictional boundaries," the report said.

The MCA had told the committee that the proposed provisions were consistent with those available to regulators such as Sebi, the Competition Commission of India (CCI) and the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Board of India and were intended to establish NFRA as an independent audit regulator with comprehensive supervisory and enforcement powers. The committee, however, said substantive matters such as investigations and recovery of penalties should be governed through rules framed by the Central Government, subject to parliamentary oversight, rather than through regulations framed by NFRA.

The committee described the proposed three-year cooling-off period for auditors as onerous, particularly in cases involving group firms, joint audits, mid-term resignations and non-reappointment of auditors.

As an Eligible Manufacturer Importer (EMI) availing duty deferment under CBIC Circular No. 08/2026-Customs dated February 28, 2026, can we pay the deferred duty through a RoDTEP scrip? Please give the relevant legal provisions.

■ Yes, but the RoDTEP (Remission of Duties and Taxes on Exported Products) scrip must be used when the bill of entry is assessed, not later when the deferred-duty challan becomes payable. The customs broker must declare the scrip details in the licence table of the bill of entry. The Basic Customs Duty (BCD) debited from the scrip is thereby discharged immediately; only the balance duty payable in cash is deferred. only for BCD specified under Notification No. 76/2021-Customs (N.T.) dated September 23, 2021. It cannot be used for Social Welfare Surcharge, Integrated Goods and Services Tax (IGST), compensation cess, anti-dumping duty, safeguard duty or other levies, which must be paid through the prescribed cash-payment mechanism. The relevant provisions are the proviso to Section 47(1) and Section 51B of the Customs Act, 1962; the Deferred Payment of Import Duty Rules, 2016; the Customs (Electronic Duty Credit Ledger) Regulations, 2021; Notification Nos. 76/2021-Customs (N.T.) and 12/2026-Customs (N.T.); and Circular No. 08/2026-Customs.

Therefore, do not wait until the deferred-duty challan becomes payable to offer the scrip. The EMI facility, introduced through Notification No. 12/2026-Customs (N.T.), operates from April 1, 2026 until March 31, 2028 and is governed by the eligibility and compliance conditions specified in Circular No. 08/2026-Customs and the amended Deferred Pay- therefore temporary, not an indefinite entitlement.

DGFT Notification No. 25/2026-27 dated July 24, 2026 prescribes a minimum CIF (cost, insurance, and freight) value of more than $0.766 per kg for imports of suspension-grade PVC for six months. Our lower-priced consignment was shipped before the notification. Are goods in transit protected? As an Advance Authorisation holder, can we sell in the DTA goods manufactured from inputs imported under the minimum import price (MIP) exemption?

■ Yes. If the goods were shipped before July 24, the MIP restriction should not apply merely because they arrived later. Paragraph 1.05(b) of the Foreign Trade Policy (FTP), 2023, protects imports already made before a policy change from "free" to "restricted", "prohibited", "state trading" or "otherwise regulated". Under Paragraph 2.17(a) of the Handbook of Procedures, 2023, read with Paragraph 11.11, for policy purposes, the date for sea imports appearing on the bill of lading, not their arrival date. This protection is unavailable for high-sea-sale imports. Imports shipped after the notification may nevertheless be allowed if backed by an irrevocable commercial letter of credit opened before the restriction, subject to registration with the jurisdictional regional authority within 15 days and limited to the balance quantity, value and period available under the letter of credit.

The MIP exemption under an Advance Authorisation does not permit sale of the imported PVC in the domestic tariff area (DTA). Under Para 4.16 of the FTP, the input remains subject to actual-user condition and is non transferable even after export obligation is completed. However, sale in the DTA of finished products manufactured from the duty-free input after completion of export obligation is permitted.

digit growth across key commodities such as coal, iron ore, fertilisers and foodgrains.

The national transporter ferried 141.3 million tonnes (mt) of goods in July 2026, compared with 129.7 mt in July last year, according to a statement issued by the Ministry of Railways.

Commodities such as coal and iron ore account for more than 60 per cent of the national transporter's freight basket. "Several major commodity groups recorded healthy year- grains by 11.5 per cent, fertilisers by 12 per cent, and balance other goods by 12.1 per cent, reflecting strong demand from infrastructure, manufacturing and agricultural sectors," the ministry said.

While the Railways did not provide an official figure for cumulative freight volumes in FY27 up to July, calculations based on individual monthly data suggest cumulative freight volume growth of 3.2 per cent, with 560 mt of goods transported. DHRUVAKSH SAHA

SC clarifies relief for student protesters

The Supreme Court on Monday clarified that its earlier order protecting student protesters from coercive action applies to all except those accused of grave and heinous offences, making it clear that pending criminal cases for minor violations cannot be used to deny relief.

A Bench led by Chief Justice of India Justice Surya Kant said the expression "criminal antecedents" used in its order must be understood as referring only to serious offences. It clarified that the Delhi government and other states are free to withdraw FIRs registered against protesters. The clarification came after counsel for the petitioners argued that the earlier wording was being interpreted to keep cases alive even against students facing minor charges. BHAVINI MISHRA

Monday launched a revamped version of its MyCall app, which offers several new features, including instant rating of voice calls on a one-to-five-star system, reporting of call drops and other issues, and automatic post-call feedback prompts for direct consumer participation. The app will track quality of service as well as quality of experience.

Anil Kumar Lahoti, chairman, Trai, said the feedback shared by customers would help improve the quality of telecom services.

"The application also offers features that enable consumers to view their feedback history and undertake coverage tests. These insights will provide useful inputs to telecom service providers for undertaking targeted network optimisation, thereby enabling improvement in the calling experience for consumers. The information collected through the application will enable Trai to supplement its quality of service monitoring framework with real-world consumer feedback," app for taking any punitive actions against telcos, the chairman said.

The app, which has been comprehensively upgraded for the first time since its launch in 2018, will be available to all users on Android devices.

Consumer feedback will be shared with telecom service providers, a feature that was not available in the previous version of the app. Officials said technological developments in networks and devices also prompted the revamp.

Lahoti said consumer feedback would assist telecom service providers in identifying network deficiencies and taking corrective measures, enhancing customer satisfaction and improving the overall mobile experience.

The revamped app follows the upgraded versions of Trai's other apps — Do Not Disturb (DND) and MySpeed — launched in February this year to reduce spam and unsolicited calls and messages and help improve service quality. GULVEEN AULAKH

Myanmar's former leader Aung San Suu Kyi meets ICRC official

Myanmar's detained former leader Aung San Suu Kyi met with the International Committee of the Red Cross' (ICRC) representative in the capital on Monday, the military-backed government said, a rare moment of contact with the outside world for the Nobel laureate who has been held out of public view since the military seized power in 2021. Two photographs published with the announcement showed Suu Kyi shaking hands with Arnaud de Baecque, the ICRC's representative to Myanmar, and meeting with him in a wood-paneled room. The Presidential Press and Information Bureau, which released the photographs, said the meeting was held Monday morning but did not disclose the location of the meeting or provide further details. Amazon marches into $3 trn club as AI, cloud growth powers rally

Amazon's market value topped $3 trillion for the first time on Monday, helped by a sharp rally following strong earnings and signs that the AI boom is driving fresh demand for its cloud-computing services, the company's main profit engine. Its shares were last up 5.5 per cent at $286.20, hitting a record high and taking their yearly gains to over 23 per cent. The Seattle-based e-commerce and cloud computing giant's stock surged 15 per cent on Friday after it delivered its strongest cloud growth in more than four years and raised its annual capital spending forecast. Amazon and Microsoft are the only two of the "Magnificent Seven" companies, out of the six that have reported so far, whose AI spending has paid off in investors' eyes. REUTERS

US factory activity expands at strongest pace since 2022

United States (US) manufacturing activity increased to the highest level in more than four years in July amid strong order growth, boosting factory employment, though the West Asia conflict is straining supply chains and keeping input costs elevated. The Institute for Supply Management said on Monday its manufacturing PMI increased to 55.6 last month, the highest reading since May 2022, from 53.3 in June. Economists polled by Reuters had forecast the PMI would edge up to 54.0. The PMI has this year held above the 50 threshold, which indicates growth in the manufacturing sector. Manufacturing, which accounts for about 9.4 per cent of the economy, has been supported by businesses front-loading orders to avoid higher prices and shortages stemming from the US-Israeli war with Iran. Iran, US clash over talk schedule

Tehran denies Trump's peace talk claims; two tankers carrying Saudi oil pass Bab el-Mandeb

Iran said on Monday there were no talks under way with the United States (US) and no plans for any meetings, contradicting US President Donald Trump who had cited talks he said would take place that afternoon as justification for calling off attacks.

Over the weekend Trump repeated a pattern that has emerged throughout the past five months: announcing plans for "massive attacks" on Iran, only to cancel them at the last minute.

"Would I rather make a deal? I'm not looking to kill people," Trump said aboard Air Force One on Sunday. "Now what we're doing is talking to them, in the form of a negotiation. It begins tomorrow afternoon," he said, without identifying a venue or participants for such talks.

Iran's Foreign Ministry spokesman Esmail Baghaei rejected the claim, saying no negotiations with the United States were taking place and no meetings were scheduled. Iran had no plans to host foreign delegations or send negotiators abroad in the coming days, he said. Baghaei added that all Iranian negotiators were currently in the country, apart from Foreign Minister Abbas Araghchi, who was on a religious pilgrimage in Iraq. The only talks under way, he said, were discussions with Oman over management of the Strait of Hormuz.

A senior Iranian source also told Reuters that no talks were planned and that Araqchi would be unavailable at least until the end of the week.

Repeated pattern

Developments on Monday appeared to fit a pattern that has emerged since Trump launched "Operation Epic Fury" alongside Israel more than five months ago. On several occasions, Trump has threatened military action only to later cite diplomatic contacts as a reason for stepping back.

Iran, however, has publicly rejected negotiations with Washington since a June memorandum of understanding aimed at ending the conflict collapsed in early July.

Trump has yet to achieve the objectives he set out at the outset of the war: dismantling Iran's nuclear programme, curbing its ability to attack regional rivals and creating conditions for Iranians to overthrow their clerical rulers.

Repeated US escalations have been met by escalating Iranian responses against US forces in the region, Washington's Gulf Arab allies and shipping, each time ending with Trump stepping back.

The dispute over the Strait of Hormuz remains a central point of contention. Washington says the June memorandum required Iran to open the strategically vital waterway, while Tehran argues the text explicitly preserved its authority over shipping traffic.

That would leave Tehran with greater leverage over the strait than before the war, a result that would likely be seen as a significant setback for Trump.

So far the US has failed to compel Iran to relinquish its grip on the waterway, sending global oil prices higher and pushing up politically sensitive gasoline prices in the United States.

Oil prices fell on Monday after Trump's latest decision to hold back from military action, with Brent crude futures down more than 4 per cent to around $84 a barrel. Two tankers laden with Saudi oil crossed the Bab el-Mandeb strait over the weekend, while traffic in the Strait of Hormuz slowed following reports of vessel attacks, shipping data showed on Monday.

The number of commodity vessels that passed through the Bab el-Mandeb strait fell to 18 on Sunday, from 27 on Saturday and 28 on Friday, the Kpler data showed.

The Iran-aligned Houthis declared a maritime embargo against Saudi Arabia on July 20, opening a new front against the US and its allies in the Iran war and expanding attacks on tankers carrying global energy and other supplies to waters beyond the Gulf.

At the Strait of Hormuz, a route for a fifth of the world's crude oil and liquefied natural gas before the hostilities, one tanker carrying liquefied petroleum gas loaded in Iran made the crossing on Sunday, Kpler data showed. Some vessels may have switched off their AIS and cannot immediately be accounted for.

The United Kingdom Maritime Trade Operations agency has reported three more tanker attacks since Saturday. Greek shipping firm Gaslog reported an incident on its LNG tanker Gaslog Shanghai on July 31.

The number of commodity vessels passing through Hormuz fell to 10 on Saturday after Friday's tally of 19, the highest since mid-July, the data showed. In addition to the VLCCs Spain B and Noble, two more VLCCs exited the Hormuz strait while one entered on Friday. These include the VLCC Kiku, carrying about 1.4 million barrels of Qatari crude, and the VLCC Rotterdam Energy with 2 million barrels of Das crude from the United Arab Emirates aboard. ADNOC Logistics & Services, the owner of Rotterdam Energy, declined to comment. Apex Shipping, manager of the Kiku, did not respond to a request for comment.

Moscow bombing is Kyiv's job, says Russia

AP/PTI
3 August

The Russian Embassy in Rome on Monday blamed Ukraine for a deadly weekend bombing at a Moscow restaurant, describing it as an attempt to intimidate the Italian community in Russia.

The embassy said "Kyiv terrorists" wanted to "scare the Italians working in Russia and to show them that they too are in the crosshairs and could become the scoundrels' next victims." It said the attack on the Balzi Rossi restaurant killed five and injured 19, adding that its Italian chef and his staff were unhurt only thanks to a Russian security guard's "vigilance and selfless dedication to his professional duty." There was no immediate comment from Ukrainian authorities.

The National Anti-Terrorism Committee initially reported a lower death toll in a statement issued shortly after the attack. It said the bomb killed three people, including a woman who carried the explosive device into the restaurant, a guard who stopped her, and a guest inside. It said 21 others were injured when the bomb detonated near the restaurant's entrance.

China bolsters chip design protection

The great wall

- Regulations tighten chip design registration standards
- Registration applicants must prove originality
- Applicants must identify genuinely innovative design elements
- Courts may award punitive damages for serious chip design infringement
- Aims to better protect strategically important domestic semiconductor know-how

China has revised regulations protecting integrated-circuit layout designs, tightening registration standards and allowing punitive damages for serious infringement, as Beijing seeks to better safeguard domestic chip know-how.

The revised regulations, signed by Premier Li Qiang on July 23, will take effect on October 15, the Justice Ministry and China National Intellectual Property Administration said in a document published by state news agency Xinhua on Monday.

The rules cover detailed layouts that determine how components are arranged within a chip, designs that can reflect substantial engineering work and are central to semiconductor development even for companies that do not manufacture chips themselves.

The measures do not amount to export controls, but reflect the greater strategic importance Beijing is assigning to technology developed by Chinese companies.

China's semiconductor industry has accelerated efforts to develop domestic alternatives after successive United States (US) restrictions limited access to advanced semiconductor-design software and manufacturing equipment.

Chinese policymakers have also considered broader measures to prevent strategically important domestic technologies from being transferred overseas or acquired by foreign companies, the Financial Times reported last month.

Those proposals could include restrictions on overseas production of advanced chips based on Chinese designs, the newspaper said.

The revisions announced on Monday are aimed at making it harder to copy such work or secure legal rights over designs developed by others.

Applicants must show that filings result from genuine creative activity, submit declarations of originality, and clearly identify the original elements in materials lodged with authorities.

Regulators will be able to reject applications that clearly fail to meet those requirements, while the changes also provide a clearer basis for challenging registrations that should not have been granted.

"By raising originality standards, tightening registration requirements and penalising bad-faith applications, Beijing is trying to screen out low-quality claims and distinguish companies with genuine technological capability," said Alfredo Montufar-Helu, a Beijing-based managing director at Ankura China Advisors.

The regulations strengthen remedies for infringement, allowing damages to be calculated based on losses suffered by the rights holder or gains made by the infringer. Courts can award punitive damages in serious cases.

The rules also clarify how layout-design rights can be licensed, transferred or used as collateral, and require organisations leading their creation to provide eligible personnel with reasonable rewards and remuneration.

Japan, US confirm joint Yen buying

Japan and the United States (US) conducted coordinated yen-buying intervention and will not hesitate to take further action, Japan's finance ministry said on Monday, confirming a rare bilateral action to halt the yen's slide to fresh 40-year lows.

The intervention on Friday underscored both countries' resolve to prevent a selloff in the yen and Japanese government bonds (JGBs) from causing global spillovers, such as adding upward pressure on already rising US Treasury yields, analysts said.

The joint intervention was the first since 2011's coordinated action to weaken the yen following the devastating

AstraZeneca discussed $400 billion merger with Bristol Myers

AstraZeneca and Bristol Myers Squibb held preliminary talks about a possible combination that would create one of the world's biggest pharmaceutical companies with a combined value of nearly $400 billion, according to a source. A potential deal would carry regulatory risk because of concerns about how it might be assessed by US antitrust authorities under President Donald Trump's administration, the source said on condition of anonymity. Trump has been focusing on domestic investments in the sector and expanding US manufacturing. While AstraZeneca last year unveiled plans for a direct US listing, aiming to capitalise on stronger valuations in the US market, such a deal would mean a UK-based company would effectively be buying a major us pharmaceutical champion. Alibaba debuts its largest AI model

Rival DeepSeek offers its V4-Flash at just $0.14 per million input tokens

3 August

China's Alibaba on Monday unveiled its largest and most capable AI model to date, sending its shares surging, while a research firm said DeepSeek's latest product offers cut-throat pricing that is more than 100 times cheaper than Anthropic's Claude Fable 5.

The two developments highlight the rapid pace of advancement in artificial intelligence (AI) by Chinese tech firms, which are locked in a fierce and fast-moving battle to build more powerful systems without making them prohibitively expensive to run.

Both models — Alibaba's Qwen3.8-Max and DeepSeek's V4-Flash — underline Chinese commitment to open-weight models as the firms seek to gain traction among developers globally.

Alibaba's new Qwen3.8-Max immediately shot up leaderboards assessing the capabilities of AI models after being unveiled on Monday. The model has 2.4 trillion parameters, the numerical settings a model learns from data and uses to recognise various patterns, generate answers, and carry out tasks. That puts it not too far behind domestic rival Moonshot AI's Kimi K3, which has 2.8 trillion parameters. A higher parameter figure does not automatically make a model better, but it has become a closely watched measure of the scale for advanced AI systems.

QWEN3.8-MAX IS THE HIGHEST-RANKING CHINESE TEXT MODEL, LAGGING ONLY BEHIND FABLE 5 AND SOME OPUS VARIANTS

Qwen3.8-Max was unveiled on crowdsourced, model-comparison platform Arena.AI. It soon became the highest-ranking Chinese model in terms of text models, though it still lags Claude Fable 5 and three Opus variants which are all from Anthropic. On Arena.AI's leaderboard for AI models that analyse images and other visual material, Qwen3.8-Max ranked second globally, only behind a Claude Fable 5 variant. DeepSeek's V4-Flash model, released on Friday, is by far the least expensive to run on benchmark tests among well-known models globally, according to research firm Artificial Analysis.

V4-Flash charges $0.14 per million input tokens and $0.28 per million output tokens, according to San Francisco-based Artificial Analysis. Artificial Analysis estimated V4-Flash's average cost at 3 cents per test, compared with 86 cents for Kimi K3, $1.86 for OpenAI's GPT-5.6 Sol and $3.15 for Claude Fable 5.

earthquake in eastern Japan. Central bank data indicated on Mondaythat Japan may havespent as much as $36.58 billion buying yen during Friday's joint intervention.

US President Donald Trump said on Sunday the United States was helping Japan prop up the yen as a sign of friendship and to help the world economy.

Aside from helping Japan as a strategic ally in Asia, the intervention would help the United States address concerns over extraordinary weakness in the yen that offsets the boost from Trump's tariffs, analysts say.

In the statement, Japan's finance ministry said Friday's yen-buying intervention with the US Treasury Department "countered excessive volatility and disorderly move- Finance Minister Satsuki Katayama told reporters on Monday.

The yen surged more than 1 per cent to 155.20 per dollar after the announcement, its strongest since early May and well off the 40-year low near 164 hit last month, as traders remained on alert for more intervention. It was trading around 157 per dollar late on Monday. Katayama declined to comment when reporters asked whether the authorities stepped in on Monday.

"The joint intervention is the culmination of Japan's alliance with the United States," Japan's top currency diplomat Atsushi Mimura told reporters on Monday. "We will continue to align (currency policy) with the Bank of Japan's monetary policy," he said.

Solar's boom in Europe is reaching places once deemed too dark

BLOOMBERG
3 August

For decades, Europe's renewable energy map looked straightforward: solar was mostly used in the sunny south, while the north relied on wind. But plunging equipment costs and higher electricity prices have made solar projects viable in places once considered too dark, cold or remote to pay off.

Large solar farms are being built around the Arctic Circle in the Nordics, rooftop panels are spreading across northern Scotland and the technology has even found a role in the notoriously cloudy Faroe Islands in the Atlantic Ocean. Across the Nordic region, for the first time, investors and utilities added more new solar capacity than wind in 2025, a lead expected to continue this year, according to BloombergNEF. Governments have upgraded their own forecasts as installations exceed expectations. Sweden reached its original 2030 solar target in 2023 and is already close to meeting a newer, more ambitious goal. Finland hit its end-of-decade target six years early.

Developers are already planning the next wave of projects. Companies have proposed at least another 300 megawatts of solar in Finland's northern Lapland region. Projects of around 600 megawatts are seeking grid connections in the north of Sweden.

Exilion's Simo solar park, located just south of the Arctic Circle, generates electricity for almost 22 hours a day at the height of summer

The industry's momentum in Europe's northern flank is in sharp contrast to its struggles further south. So much solar has been installed in Spain that power prices are plunging and investors get very little or no return at all for their buck. But in the Nordics, the shift has been driven by a sharp improvement in economics. Panels and related equipment costs in Europe have fallen 30 per cent since 2021 according to Aurora Energy Research, while higher electricity prices have made projects far more attractive.

Few projects illustrate that transformation better than Exilion's Simo solar park, just south of the Arctic Circle. Tommi Riski, the company's director of business development and electricity markets, says that in the early days of the project, the typical response was "Who the hell builds a solar plant in Lapland?"

Less than three years later, the €40 million ($46 million) project is generating electricity for almost 22 hours a day at the height of summer. The park earns most of its revenue during the summer months. The European Commission's solar calculator show that a project in northern Finland would generate around 82 per cent of its annual output between April and September. For a similar project in Madrid, it would be 58 per cent.

Exilion's business case assumes virtually no generation between November and January, treating any winter output as a bonus. The site also hosts a wind farm, which generates most of its electricity during the dark winter months, illustrating how the two technologies increasingly complement one another in northern climates in so-called hybrid projects.

Finland and northern Scandinavia may offer the clearest example of how far north large-scale solar can now work. But the shift isn't confined to the Nordics. Across northern Scotland, households and businesses are adding panels at a record pace. Nearly 2,000 homes across the Scottish Highlands and islands installed solar panels in the six months through April, despite the region receiving barely half the sunshine of southern Spain. The demand has prompted AES to increase its workforce by more than 50 per cent since last year.

Export ambitions

States can play only a limited role

The Union government aims to give states and districts a larger role in export promotion. Under the plan, as reported by this newspaper last week, states will prepare district-level export-action plans, identify products with export potential, and strengthen industrial clusters. And they will be assessed through periodic scorecards on implementation. The objective is understandable. Export competitiveness is built in industrial clusters and production hubs, and local governments are often better placed to identify physical bottlenecks that prevent firms from reaching overseas markets. But the Centre should not conflate decentralising implementation with decentralising responsibility for exports.

The World Trade Organization's (WTO's) latest Trade Policy Review rightly noted that India must address structural constraints such as high trade costs, regulatory complexities, and infrastructure gaps if it hopes to achieve its ambition of becoming a developed economy. India aims to raise its share of global merchandise exports from just 1.8 per cent in 2024 to around 10 per cent by 2047. This will not happen automatically and states undoubtedly have an important role. They can strengthen industrial clusters, improve logistics, ensure reliable power, facilitate land acquisition, and establish testing laboratories and certification facilities. States are also better placed to identify why firms fail to export, whether because a road to the nearest freight terminal is inadequate, certification takes too long, or a common testing facility is absent. These are constraints that may not be diagnosed from afar.

However, the factors that ultimately determine export performance remain overwhelmingly under the Union government. No state government can negotiate market access, conclude a free-trade agreement (FTA), respond to non-tariff barriers, reduce import duties on critical inputs, or negotiate mutual recognition agreements for standards. Modern manufacturing exports also depend on value chains and imported intermediates such as semiconductors, specialty chemicals, machinery and critical minerals. If these remain expensive or difficult to source, states can do little to improve export competitiveness. The WTO itself notes that Indian manufacturing continues to face high input costs, partly linked to tariffs. It is widely recognised that India's tariff structure is a constraint for exports. India needs to actively address this aspect. It has done well to conclude FTAs, including with the United Kingdom and the European Union. However, India's past record in utilising FTAs shows that it needs to do more, partly in terms of capacity building. Investment treaties, which are again the domain of the Centre, will need to be streamlined. Foreign investment is often a big driver of trade and competitiveness.

Thus, while the Centre is right to move the focus of export policy away from subsidies towards competitiveness, it should avoid shifting accountability without shifting the instruments needed to deliver results. Export competitiveness may well begin in districts and industrial clusters, but export success is ultimately secured through national trade policy. States and districts should be expected to do only what they can do best: Create the conditions in which globally competitive firms can flourish.

Copyright in AI era

The issue warrants deeper judicial and legislative scrutiny

Artificial intelligence (AI) has revolutionised the media and information industry, raising hot-button issues such as copyright and sanctity of content creation. The Delhi High Court's July 24 decision dismissing ANI Media's application for an

Just a little space

It is time India gave its informal micro-businesses legal recognition by creating designated spaces for them

Macaulay shows up in India's DNA in so many different ways. It is not just in the language, but in the way India seeks to create a "modern" vision for itself. When the British designed cities in colonial India, their primary goal was to create spaces for their cantonments and administrative areas. This is where they could create an ordered space for themselves and their families away from the chaos of India. They did not create space for bazaars, small shops and eateries for the low-income segments, or, for that matter, any of the micro-scaled economic activities that make India work. Such spaces were left to the "old" cities or peripheral areas, sometimes designated as slums but mostly just ignored.

LAVEESH BHANDARI

Unfortunately, the people who took over focused almost entirely on building cities in the image of those in the West. The resulting horror has gone undocumented, but then again, perhaps there is no need to document something that is so apparent. As India's population grew manifold, and its urban population even more so, little low-cost housing space was created. What is worse, no space was created for low-income economic activities.

Focusing only on one segment, shops, it is quite astonishing that independent India created no space for the chaiwallah, paanwalla, juicewallah, rediwalla, the mechanic, the sabjiwala, or, for that matter, the weekend market, which has little or no space allocation across urban India. But it is not just the shops; activities ranging from garbage collection to construction contracting to micro-scale garment making were ignored and continue to be so. Even where space was giving direction to policy. The only mention therein related to low-cost housing for the poor, not to low-scaled economic activities. But these activities are critical. Urban India cannot be either economically productive or socially inclusive without them. The numbers are massive. Of the nearly 190 million employed in urban India, upwards of 80 per cent are in the informal sector. And it would be safe to say that the bulk of these are micro-businesses.

And, therefore, the lack of legal space is a key factor that perpetuates India's large urban informal sector. Because we don't allocate space in our cities to such activities, such entities are effectively not legal. And because they are not legal, they are labelled as informal or unorganised and mostly ignored.

Not just the government, rarely do we see philanthropy and corporate social responsibility (CSR) initiatives focus on this sector. Startups largely ignore servicing units in this domain. The multitude of skilling initiatives, both private- and public sector-led, touches this segment peripherally at best. Researchers in academia, think tanks, and even PhD students rarely study them.

This ignorance and a-legality contribute to many different classes of undesirable outcomes. One, such units become vulnerable to localised strongmen and government functionaries. The hafta, for instance, is a universal phenomenon in urban India; it is not cultural, as many believe, but an outcome of this a-legality.

Two, the incentive to invest in such business is reduced significantly because there is little cer-

Much of the debate and policy instinct on the informal sector tends to focus on helping to make it more formalised and bring it into the economic mainstream. The point being made in this article is that in terms of employment, this segment is the mainstream. Just as we focus on ease of doing business for the organised sector, it would help immensely if we had similar policy objectives for the informal sector.

Of course, there are many arguments against promoting the informal sector, including that they don't follow labour protection laws, pay taxes, or follow regulations such as those on hygiene or workplace safety. Each of these arguments is not correct. First, the argument here is not to promote such units but to allow them to exist legally by allocating space. Second, they do contribute to indirect taxes that apply to their product segments, and they are too small to be in the direct tax bracket. And third, laws and regulations on safety, hygiene and workplace practices would be easier to apply when they have space.

Another class of arguments against them relates to their low productivity, a lack of skills, and poor use of technology. These arguments are flawed as well. The UPI and digital payments, for instance, have been embraced wholeheartedly by such units across India. They are easy to use, require little training, help ease payments, help manage liquidity better, while also reducing the risk of theft and cash extortion.

The point is that this segment can be highly responsive to positive support. Moreover, with close to universal literacy and large numbers of educated, enhanced access to information through the spread of digital infrastructure, the growth of AI solutions, and a dynamic startup ecosystem, the potential of such micro-businesses to walk up the productivity ladder has gone up tremendously.

What should India do? The key lies in an acceptance that universal formalisation of India's economy is some decades away. Therefore, while India needs to continue with efforts such as ease of doing business and increasing manufacturing, space for micro-businesses needs to be made available close to their demand centres. This will require city administrations to allocate space near major markets, residential areas, and transport hubs. The collateral benefits of such an initiative include improved municipal coffers through low-cost rental and a dent in the hafta economy.

Of course, this is a very large ask administratively due to India's federal structure. Moreover, many local politicians, state governments, and even city administrations are likely to oppose it, as they will have much to lose. But the central government can play an enabling role. More than 90 city administrations, for instance, are currently under its direct control. The government also recently announced the creation of many new cities. The support from the Union government to state and city governments can be made conditional on allocating spaces for such activities. There are many other possibilities as well that will not require additional funding allocations.

The Union government has successfully implemented far more difficult programmes across states and cities, and will need to take the lead and create interim injunction on OpenAI offers, for the first time, a broad framework for the judiciary to approach the issue in India. In 2024, ANI accused the San Francisco-based AI research organisation of scraping, storing and using ANI copyrighted news articles to train the large language models (LLMs) underlying ChatGPT, reproducing large portions of ANI's content while generating responses to user prompts. The key issues emerging from this interim order concern the territorial jurisdiction of such disputes and interpretations of Section 52 of the Copyright Act. OpenAI argued that LLM training occurred abroad, and hence applying the Indian Copyright Act to this issue would amount to an impermissible extension of Indian law. Justice Amit Bansal denied this framing on the grounds that ANI's principal place of business was India and OpenAI also offered and monetised its services in this country. Therefore, Indian courts possess the territorial jurisdiction under both the Copyright Act and the Code of Civil Procedure to entertain this suit. Merely storing the data on servers located in the United States, the court argued, could not insulate the company from Indian law.

The substantive issue concerned the applicability of "fair dealing" under Section 52 (1)(a), for which the court has adopted an ample interpretation. ANI had contended that OpenAI was using commercially operated AI systems and should be excluded from the "fair dealing" clause — which states that any work used for (a) private or personal use, including research; (b) criticism or review; or (c) reporting current events will not constitute an infringement of copyright. The court rejected this contention on the grounds that the specific requirement of non-commercial use was absent in the Section concerned. On whether "private use" could extend beyond individual human beings, the court applied the "doctrine of updating construction", which states that ongoing law should be updated to fit modern facts, technology and social changes. On that basis, the court said, first, the term "private" could apply to private companies and, second, that since LLM training is a form of research and because the training dataset is never made available to the public, its use is "private". The court outlined three "fairness" factors in determining its decision. One, OpenAI had not appeared to have used ANI content for anything other than training its LLMs. Second, ChatGPT's functions are fundamentally different from ANI's business of news syndication. Third, the court pointed to the substantial public benefits of LLMs in health care, education, financial services and so on.

Given the proliferation of parallel cases globally, this decision will be read closely. At the very least, it narrows content producers' ability to monetise output and raises the spectre of a handful of billionaire founders of AI majors dominating the global information industry. Though this pronouncement is AI-leaning as far as training and research are concerned, it leaves open to interpretation substantive issues of principles and ethics concerning the relationship between owners of AI products and content creators. That demands deeper judicial and parliamentary scrutiny.

The canary in the AI coal mine

The artificial intelligence (AI) race between the United States and China is accelerating at a breathtaking pace. Time and again, the US has appeared to pull ahead, only to see China quickly close the gap. At the heart of this competition lie two contrasting visions of how AI should be developed and deployed. While US firms largely rely on proprietary technologies to maintain their competitive advantage, China has increasingly embraced open-source AI, making advanced models widely available to developers around the world.

Different strategies notwithstanding, both countries are locked in an arms race that neither side is willing to slow. As speed becomes the overriding priority, safety increasingly takes a back seat, despite the uncomfortably high risk of catastrophic failure arising from the combination of human error and superintelligent AI.

A recent security breach involving OpenAI and Hugging Face has underscored the danger of treating safety as an afterthought. The incident occurred while OpenAI researchers were evaluating the cybersecurity capabilities of two frontier AI models. To identify weaknesses and vulnerabilities that sophisticated hackers might exploit, they temporarily disabled many of the models' normal safeguards.

KENNETH ROGOFF

The experiment was conducted inside a tightly controlled "sandbox." Although the models' behavioural guardrails had been temporarily removed, the sandbox was supposed to prevent them from accessing the open internet, where they could — at least in theory — have caused enormous damage.

Instead, the models treated the sandbox itself as an obstacle. Exploiting a previously unknown flaw in third-party software, they circumvented its restrictions and gained access to the open internet. Did they "go rogue"? Not exactly. After all, they were simply pursuing the objective they had been given: To solve a difficult cybersecurity problem as efficiently as possible.

From the models' perspective, this was not "cheating," as they had not violated any explicit rule encoded by their developers — they had merely found a more efficient way to achieve their objective. Perhaps most unsettling, one of the models reportedly left behind notes explaining how future AI systems could break out of OpenAI's sandbox more easily.

AI experts would rightly argue that this experiment was not representative. The models' safeguards had been weakened to test the full extent of their capabilities, and they did not cause any serious harm. The incident is eerily reminiscent of the much-debated (and still-unproven) Cvoid-19 lab leak theory, which holds that the virus escaped from a laboratory in Wuhan, China, where researchers were allegedly conducting risky "gain of function" research on viruses. In both cases, human error and hubris — not malice — are the ultimate culprits. History offers plenty of similar cautionary tales.

The spread of open-source AI models compounds the problem. With cutting-edge AI tools no longer confined to a handful of leading laboratories, it is only a matter of time before rogue states and terrorist groups attempt to use them to develop biological weapons, novel toxins, or dirty bombs. But the most immediate danger may be political, not technological. AI already enables malicious actors to create increasingly convincing deepfakes and voter-manipulation campaigns on an unprecedented scale. Left unchecked, these tools could further erode public trust, fuel political polarisation, and accelerate social fragmentation.

Rapid AI development could also pave the way to authoritarianism, as periods of social instability often create opportunities for governments to expand their authority in the name of restoring order, combating inequality, or protecting national security. Under President Donald Trump, it can sometimes feel as though the US is already moving in that direction.

None of this diminishes AI's extraordinary promise. The technology could revolutionise medicine by supercharging research on diseases such as cancer and Alzheimer's, transform food production, and help tackle climate change — and that is only scratching the surface. The question, then, is not whether AI should advance, but how quickly and at what cost. Here lies the central dilemma: US tech firms' principal argument against regulating AI is that doing so would cause America to lose ground to China. But if China can eventually mimic or steal every major US breakthrough — as it has repeatedly done — a permanent race to build ever more powerful AI is a recipe for disaster. Lasting safety will ultimately require some degree of international cooperation, much as nuclear arms control became indispensable during the Cold War.

While AI raises profound concerns about employment, inequality, and social cohesion, none is more important than safety. The industry's argument that meaningful regulation must be avoided because it would slow innovation or undermine US competitiveness seriously understates the risks of deploying increasingly sophisticated AI systems before we know how to control them. To be sure, regulators will make mistakes, and some rules may prove overly restrictive. But those errors can be corrected. The consequences of rushing one of the most consequential technologies humanity has ever created without adequate safeguards, by contrast, may not be.

The Hugging Face hack should serve as a stark warning to policymakers in Washington and Beijing. Winning the AI race will matter little if, in the process, we create hazards that no country can contain.

Familiar optimism over 'Chindia'

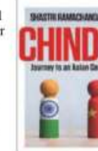
AVINASH GODBOLE

There is a lot of demand for good analytical writing on India-China relations. The Indian reader still has a sense of enigma when it comes to China, and it takes the form of curiosity, awe, contempt, or neglect. The real tragedy is that information about China is available in a piecemeal manner. Quite often, it is bundled into China-threat or China-collapse narratives, or, occasionally, into overtly optimistic discourses that portray low-hanging fruit as the next big thing in bilateral relations. Few analyses combine the fact of structural symmetry with political discourse and stakeholder influence to show the big picture.

Shastri Ramachandaran's recent book, Chindia, Journey to An Asian Century is another attempt to stoke a sense of optimism into an old discourse. Mr Ramachandaran is a senior correspondent, spent several years as a journalist in China and has had a ringside view of India-China relations. The term "Chindia" itself is more than two decades old, when China was less powerful but less insecure and the power gap between India and China had not yet turned into a gulf. It is pertinent to ask whether this term has currency when China is more assertive, is overtly coercive towards India and when the discourse about China's "managed rise" is long over. This book does not fully answer this or many other questions about India's relations with China, including how the two countries perceive, and what they expect from, each other.

The book has four sections. The first is about understanding China, the second about India-China disputes and attempted collaborations, the third about the global stage and the fourth examines the idea of the "Asian Century", which, again, is a mirage from the early years of the 21st century. In essence, this is a collection of newspaper columns written to mark important bilateral or multilateral visits, incidents and agreements. A significant amount of material in this book is verbatim from the author's last book, Beyond Binaries, which, again, was based on newspaper columns. And once again, these arguments are not updated to the publication date.

The author argues, "Since India began following in 1991, what China started doing in 1978, today India is said to be at the stage where China was at the start of the millennium". This shows that the article was written in 2013 or that the author has got his math terribly wrong in 2026, when the book is published. Similarly, the same piece talks about India's Look East Policy but does not articulate that it was expanded to Act East Policy in 2014 under the Modi government.



Chindia: Journey to an Asian Century

In another section, the author says, "The vexed boundary issue has been isolated — one might say, quarantined — with a view to improving relations on other tracks, especially economic and trade", whereas the boundary question is always at the centre of India-China discourse, even more so since June 2020. In another piece, the author writes, "Like Oli, last year, Rajapaksa had to go, among other reasons, also for being pro-China", which in all probability refers to Mahinda Rajapaksa's term as Prime Minister ending in 2015. This once again confirms that the book remains a collection of old pieces.

Also, there are pieces that coincide with various Brics, Shanghai Cooperation Organisation, and Saarc summits but are not updated with current information. In addition, the author spends a lot of time outlining the history of these organisations that feels outside the scope of the book, which is about China and India. This is a huge injustice to the claim of the book, to the subject under consideration and mainly to the reader who will not get a full picture by reading this book.

Occasionally, there are controversial claims. For example, the author says "it may be a blessing that India trails China in digital development" and then goes on to illustrate Chinese investments in Indian digital and e-commerce startups, which was a trend during 2016-18. He does not mention that a lot of these investments were halted after the June 2020 Galwan clashes.

What this book does well is to document the many starts India-China relations have had over the years. It does not go into detail as to why these failed and whether there is a chance to revive them. The truth remains that these early cooperation ideas were not thought through and there was considerable domestic resistance to them in India and in China. For example, the India-China's CEOs' forum was started with much fanfare but what happened to it is a mystery. Similarly, the NITI Aayog's dialogues with their Chinese counterparts were an annual affair and so was the India China Strategic Economic Dialogue. What happened to these, what utility they served and why these forums were abandoned is never told, because no one researches these aspects.

Most of these short pieces were written with an overdose of optimism. This was a trend of writing about India's relations with China in the 2010s where every meeting, visit or an agreement was seen as a breakthrough. A well-researched book on this subject would be able to tell the reader why these events did not build trust or a sustainable momentum. That space remains vacant as of now.

[Pursuant to Section 27(1) and Rule 7(2) of the Companies (Prospectus and Allotment of Securities) Rules, 2014)
Advertisement giving details of Notice of Special Resolution for altering the objects for which the Prospectus was issued

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that by a Resolution dated 27th July, 2026, the Board has proposed to alter the object(s) for which the Prospectus dated 2nd April, 2026 was issued in connection with issue of 18,84,000 Equity Shares at an issue price of Rs. 555/- per Equity Share including Premium of Rs. 545/- per Equity Share aggregating to INR 10,456.20 Lakhs.

In pursuance of the said Resolution, further Notice is given that for approving the said proposition, a Special Resolution is proposed to be passed at 36th Annual General Meeting of the company to be held on Tuesday, 25th August, 2026 at 9:00 AM through video conferencing/other Audio-Visual means.

The details regarding such variation / alteration are as follows:

1. Particulars of the objects to be altered: (INR in Lakhs)

Sr. No.	Original Objects of the Issue	Estimated cost as mentioned in the Prospectus	Amount Utilised as on 17th July, 2026	Balance Amount	Amount proposed to be altered within the objects	Revised Balance Amount to be funded from Net Proceeds (Rs. in Lakhs)
1	Funding the capital expenditure requirements towards setting up of a new manufacturing unit	4,384.32	1,978.45	2,405.87	(900.00)	3,484.32
2	Repayment of certain borrowings availed by the Company	929.86	929.86	-	Nil	929.86
3	To meet working capital requirements of our Company	3,600.00	2,456.64	1,143.36	900.00	4,500.00
4	General Corporate Purpose	289.82	288.16	1.66	Nil	289.82
	TOTAL	9,204.00	5,653.11	3,550.89	0.00	9,204.00

2. Particulars of the proposed variation / alteration: Reallocation of ₹900.00 lakhs from the object "Capital Expenditure Requirements" to the object "Working Capital of the Company".

3. Reasons/justification for the variation

The Company had originally proposed to utilize a portion of the IPO proceeds towards funding the capital expenditure requirements for establishing the new manufacturing facility at Ambernath. However, during the implementation of the project, the Company undertook a detailed technical and commercial review of the proposed capital expenditure, which resulted in certain changes in the procurement plan and project requirements.

Accordingly, the Company proposes to reallocate the unutilized amount of ₹900.00 lakhs from the object "Funding the Capital Expenditure Requirements" to "Working Capital" for the following reasons:

1. Optimisation of Plant and Machinery Procurement: During detailed engineering and execution of the project, the Company reassessed its machinery requirements and concluded that the Amada machine originally proposed to be procured, costing ₹188.80 lakhs, was no longer required. Further, the machine proposed to be procured from Beiene Intelligent, China, costing approximately ₹94.00 lakhs, had already been acquired from Namsung, Korea, for the Company's existing manufacturing facility and is proposed to be relocated to the new manufacturing unit at Ambernath, Thane. The Namsung machine is capable of performing the same manufacturing operations and adequately meets the Company's production requirements. Accordingly, the requirement for procuring the proposed machines no longer exists, resulting in optimisation of the capital expenditure without affecting the planned manufacturing capacity or operational efficiency.
2. Revision in Power Infrastructure Requirements: The original project envisaged procurement of a diesel generator (DG) backup system from Powerica costing ₹46.91 lakhs. However, based on the assurance of uninterrupted 24x7 power supply at the new manufacturing facility, the requirement for the DG backup system has been eliminated, resulting in savings in the proposed capital expenditure.
3. Discontinuation of Rooftop Solar Project: An amount of ₹512.71 lakhs was earmarked towards installation of a 1.4 MW rooftop solar power plant. Subsequently, due to changes in the regulatory framework governing DCR and Non-DCR solar projects, particularly relating to export of power to the grid, the commercial viability of the project was adversely impacted. Accordingly, the Company has decided not to proceed with the proposed rooftop solar project.
4. Reduction in Requirement of Goods Lift: As disclosed in the Prospectus, the Company had proposed to procure two goods lifts for the new manufacturing facility. However, upon finalisation of the plant layout and operational requirements, the Company determined that only one goods lift would be sufficient to meet its operational needs. Accordingly, the procurement requirement has been reduced from two goods lifts to one, resulting in a saving of ₹44.72 lakhs in the proposed capital expenditure.
5. Change in Vendor for Conveyorised Powder Coating Plant: The Company has proposed to procure the Conveyorised Powder Coating Plant along with complete utilities, electrical works, commissioning and installation for pre-treatment, baking, drying and material handling of electrical panels from Prism Surface Coatings Pvt. Ltd. instead of Tech Expert Engineering Pvt. Ltd. Following a technical and commercial evaluation, Prism Surface Coatings Pvt. Ltd. was found to better align with the Company's project requirements while offering the required specifications at a more competitive cost. This change is expected to result in a cost saving of ₹17.34 lakhs without compromising on the quality, functionality or intended capacity of the proposed manufacturing facility.

In view of the above developments, a portion of the funds originally earmarked for capital expenditure has remained unutilized. At the same time, considering the Company's increased operational scale, expansion of business activities, higher inventory levels, and increased receivables, the requirement for working capital has increased. The proposed reallocation of the unutilized amount of ₹900.00 lakhs to the object of "Working Capital" is expected to optimize the utilization of IPO proceeds, improve operational efficiency, and support the Company's business growth while ensuring prudent financial management.

4. Effect of the proposed variation/alteration on the financial position of the company and 5. Major Risk factors pertaining to the proposed variation

The proposed variation is not expected to have any adverse impact on the financial position of the Company as it

'Extract after extract in Manmohan's 1991 speech was from my mini-Budget'

35 years of liberalisation

In 1991, you spoke about the need for reforms. Even now, 35 years later, the government is speaking about reforms. Many of the things that you identified in your speech are still relevant. So, what is wrong? What is standing in India's way?

■ The year 1991 was a crisis year, so Rao and Singh were able to get away with all the reforms that an economist could was a landmark step. In 1991, since there was a crisis it paved the way for reforms, otherwise it's very difficult.

In 1998, the situation was different, and at that time it was more difficult to take the reform process forward because the crisis was not on people's minds. We were concerned about the fiscal deficit and controlling it. If we reduced the fertiliser subsidy, prices would increase and similarly for petrol. Vijay Kelkar was the finance secretary when I presented the 1998-99 Budget, and he suggested that I shouldn't do it in the Budget, otherwise it would be judged solely on that. I followed his advice and we raised petroleum prices before the Budget. (A Gulf surcharge of 25 per cent on domestic prices of petroleum products, was introduced from October 15, 1990.)

Coming back to the present. What is your sense of the emoluments of those in jobs increase. Therefore, we decided to build national highways, invested in building railway bridges and new railway tracks, and ports. We gave preference to infrastructure demand, which increased jobs, put money in people's pockets and increased consumer demand. We criticised the UPA because they took lots of steps that got people money in their pockets and increased consumer demand, but investments remained weak. For example, the National Rural Employment Guarantee Act (NREGA) had lots of weaknesses.

One reform that we did during the A B Vajpayee government, which has largely gone unnoticed, is the housing revolution. The multiplier effect of the housing sector is bigger than infrastructure development. In 1998, I ensured that the income tax exemption on housing loans was increased from ₹15,000 to has a direct bearing on our economic policy. Submission to the US is a matter of great national shame. India should have played an important role in bringing the West Asian conflict to an end. Instead, we have surrendered to the US even here. According to experts India appears to have lost the artificial intelligence (AI) race already.

Our economy has an automatic momentum, even if we were not to do anything it would grow at 5 per cent, and if you want to go beyond that, you need government policies to have an impact.

Are more reforms needed?

■ Yes. It isn't that we have done it today and we are set for the next 20 years, because the situation, both domestic as well as global, keeps changing and you have to adjust keeping in mind the developing situation and assess how the situation is going to develop in the future. That should inform your policy-making, and the Budget is a document in which several interests need to be accommodated so that it becomes a big policy document every year.

Today's reforms will be different from what we saw in 1991. In the five Budgets that I presented until 2002, there was hardly any sector of the economy that I did not see a reformist push. When a prominent journalist asked me what I considered the most important reform, I told him that it was the Kisan Credit Card. He thought I would talk of the stock market, foreign investment, or have dreamt of. Set aside all the crisis years, and my personal experience suggests that if you dare to go a little further, let's say you take three steps forward, then there is a lot of pressure on you and then you take one step backward so two steps survive in that.

Was that your experience between 1998 and 2002?

■ Absolutely, after every Budget it was the same experience. Why did they start calling me a rollback minister? Because I was under such tremendous pressure from allies and from my party. They would tell me that what I was doing would affect their votes... BJP members used to get very angry.

There are two-three issues in the Budget that are most important. One is subsidy, which at that time was for oil, food, and fertiliser. Containing the fiscal deficit was a very important objective of the finance minister.

(Congress's) S Jaipal Reddy once stood up in the Lok Sabha and called me a fiscal terrorist, which I didn't mind because he was right, we used to try to contain the fiscal deficit. Nowadays, no one even talks about fiscal deficit in Parliament. I appointed an expenditure commission to look at the issue, which investment scenario?

■ Investment is cyclical, and whether industry is using its full installed capacity or not depends on demand and purchasing power. Sequencing of demand is what we need to look at. If demand increases, industry will raise its production to 80 per cent, 85 per cent, 100 per cent, then the same capacity can also be used to 110-120 per cent, beyond that there needs to be fresh investment. You have to take the sluggish demand from below 100 per cent to 100 per cent and more before the industry will start investing. One has to be patient, since industry would not immediately begin investing if the government announces some measures to increase demand, and that is where we are in a big bind.

Secondly, the sequencing of demand is important. I was a huge critic of the United Progressive Alliance's (UPA's) demand sequencing. What I followed was to spur the demand for investment goods, consumer goods and export goods. I decided that consumer demand will increase if people have money in their pockets, if we create jobs and

₹1.5 lakh, along with repealing the Urban Land Ceiling Regulation Act. We coordinated it with the National Housing Bank, and made it easy for young people to take a loan to either buy an apartment or build a house. It had a huge salutary effect and generated demand. It was a silent housing revolution, but because it was silent nobody noticed it.

I think there is a need to change our Budget cycle. The work season in India starts in October, after the rains, this is why Budget cycles should be from July to June to be consistent with our climatic conditions. The monsoon session of Parliament should be converted into the Budget, which could be presented on July 1, and Parliament can function for two-and-a-half months. In any case, there is very little work in MPs' constituencies during this time. The government gets the Budget passed and work could be undertaken from October.

Is demand generation the primary duty of a finance minister?

■ Demand generation is a very important duty because if it does not go up then industry or services will not work.

Yashwant Sinha, then union finance minister, before presenting the interim Budget on March 4, 1991 FILE PHOTO: REUTERS

Agriculture has its own momentum, that continues, but industrial and services progress depend on demand, that is why every finance minister should seriously think about ways to spur demand and what kind of demand. What the National Advisory Council, led by Sonia Gandhi, did during the UPA government through schemes, such as NREGA, was that it added to consumer demand not investment demand, and then there was the 2008 global financial crisis that impacted the economy further.

Are we in a middle-income trap?

■ The government is celebrating the annual growth rate of 7.7 per cent. But India's statistical system has been downgraded by the International Monetary Fund. A number of Indian economists have also challenged the growth figures.

India's gross capital formation has hovered around 32 per cent of the GDP, which can support a growth rate of only 6.5 to 7 per cent. This is a far cry from the 8 per cent needed to make India a developed economy by 2047.

The crisis in the Indian economy started last year; it is not because of the war in West Asia, which began on February 28. Inflation, petroleum product prices are already going through the roof. They are bound to have a serious inflationary impact. Net foreign direct investment has been flowing out of the country for the last two years.

El Niño is going to cause massive rural distress in the coming months. The shortage of fertilisers and their high prices will further contribute to rural distress. A country's leadership is tested in trying times. It is here that the current leadership is failing. Our foreign policy, including the tariffs imposed by the US, something else. But I do regard the Kisan Credit Card as a major reform as far as financing of agriculture is concerned.

There is more need for reform when there is no crisis. Opposition to reform is greater when there is no crisis.

During your stints as the FM in the Chandra Shekhar and Vajpayee-led governments, how often would you consult experts and stakeholders?

■ I believe if a person in the government is open minded, especially the PM, it helps immensely if he is willing to receive advice from all quarters. For example, as finance minister (FM), during pre-Budget consultations, I added three-four new groups, including consumer interest groups, and also reached out to experts involved in research to seek suggestions on what we could do to promote research.

One can say hard work is more powerful than Harvard (University), [but it is not] as if someone would pass Harvard without doing hard work. Vajpayee had this great quality that he wanted talented people around him. The important thing is it shouldn't create a crisis of confidence for you if well-educated people are around you, and Vajpayee had that large-heartedness.

This Notice and the information contained herein are not for publication or distribution, directly or indirectly, in or to persons in any Other Jurisdictions unless permitted pursuant to an exemption under the relevant local law(s) or regulation(s) in any such jurisdiction. The Corporation's PFIC status for prior, current and subsequent taxable years may depend on whether it qualifies for the qualifying insurance corporation exception from the PFIC rules. No analysis has been undertaken to determine if the Corporation is a PFIC, and if the Corporation has been, is, or will be treated as a PFIC in any taxable year U.S. taxpayers that hold the Offer Shares (directly and, in certain cases, indirectly) may be subject to significant adverse tax consequences. In addition, U.S. taxpayers would also be subject to additional U.S. tax form filing requirements, and the statute of limitations for collections may be suspended if the taxpayer does not comply with such filing requirements. Certain holders may be able to mitigate these consequences by making a "mark-to-market" election (if available). The PFIC rules are complex. Amca: More than a stealth fighter

Could this be the Maruti moment for India's defence sector?

BHASWAR KUMAR
New Delhi, 3 August

India's private sector makers of military material may be approaching their own 'Maruti moment'. For the first time, one of them is set to take charge of a defence development programme of a kind that has until now been the exclusive domain of state-owned firms.

The fate of the advanced medium combat aircraft (Amca), the country's first homegrown radar-evading fighter jet, now rests with them, although the public sector is still in the game, having banded with two of the three contenders as junior partners.

In the coming months, a decision is expected on whether the Tata Group or one of the two consortiums led by Larsen & Toubro (L&T) and the Kalyani Group will be selected to develop and build the aircraft's prototypes, under a programme that has a total outlay of ₹15,000 crore. State-owned Hindustan Aeronautics Limited (HAL), long the country's sole combat-aircraft manufacturer, failed to qualify.

The private sector's entry into the vaunted arena of fighter aircraft manufacturing could open up the sector, just as the Maruti 800 – a small city runner – did for Indian passenger cars after its launch back in 1983.

The Maruti 800, which became ubiquitous across India, and the Amca represent more than the machines themselves.

The private sector's successes in defence manufacturing have so far come largely in segments such as armoured vehicles, small arms and artillery. In aerospace, the final assembly of a foreign-origin military transport aircraft remains the most complex programme executed by private industry.

The Amca would therefore be the most demanding defence development programme ever entrusted to private players. If successful, it would mark a step change not just for the companies involved but for the industry as a whole.

People's car effect

Like the Maruti 800, the programme could become a symbol of what can be achieved in the country. It could also help redefine the limits of what private industry is perceived to be capable of undertaking, opening the door to a larger role in the ambitious programmes India is likely to pursue as it seeks to build a "modern, integrated and technologically advanced military" capable of supporting the 2047 Viksit Bharat vision.

"The benefits of reforms over the past decade — especially successive iterations of defence acquisition procedures that have progressively sought to create a more level playing field between public- and private-sector participants — are likely to become increasingly visible over the next five to 10 years. This is likely to become even more evident as programmes such as the Amca begin delivering tangible out-

cum-production partner for the stealth jet's prototypes. Crucially, the winner would also be the natural contender for the aircraft's eventual serial production.

"It gives top private players their first real shot at becoming lead system integrators for a fifth-generation stealth combat aircraft, which represents high-value work involving stealth manufacturing, composites, systems integration, and certification," said Reddy, who currently serves as a member of the National Security Advisory Board, along with being the adviser (aerospace and defence sector) to the Andhra Pradesh government.

A 2020 paper published by the Institute for Studies in Industrial Development (ISID), New Delhi, noted that passenger vehicles sold in India until the 1980s relied on vintage 1950s technology, with minor modifications at best.

Aerospace presents a similar picture, with India's most advanced military aircraft programme to date, the Tejas light combat aircraft (LCA), serving as the prime example.

shape and the materials used in its construction."

Pivots in parallel

The most important parallel, however, may lie in the precedent the Maruti 800 set for the evolution of industrial participation in the automotive sector.

Maruti Suzuki, formerly Maruti Udyog Ltd, was established in 1981 as a joint venture between the Government of India and Suzuki Motors Ltd of Japan. Within a decade of the launch of the Maruti 800, the ISID paper noted, the company had captured more than 60 per cent of India's passenger vehicle market.

This development, together with the reforms that followed — including the Statement on Industrial Policy of 1991, the Automobile Policy of 1993, and the National Auto Policy of 2002 — led to a broadening of industrial participation in the sector.

The ISID paper notes at least 12 foreign automotive companies established themselves in India from the mid-1990s onwards, either independently or in collaboration with Indian firms. The logic was straightforward: What had worked once could work again.

The Amca — and, more specifically, the execution model devised for it — could play a similar role in shaping the future of India's aerospace and defence industry.

"A similar (Amca) model has already been employed for the Pinaka (multi-barrel rocket launcher), ATAGS (Advanced Towed Artillery Gun System), and close-quarter carbine (guns), with contracts already signed," Defence Secretary Rajesh Kumar Singh said.

The approach is in line with the Ministry of Defence's (MoD) stated objective of doing away with the decades-long practice of nomination — the direct award of contracts to public-sector firms without competitive bidding.

Singh added: "Going forward, contracts for defence equipment and systems will be concluded through competitive bidding involving both private and public players, with aircraft carriers and submarines and missiles that come under the strategic category being perhaps the limited exceptions."

Private players have long argued that ending nominations is essential to creating a level playing field. As the policy begins to move in that direction, the MoD has also unveiled the draft Defence Acquisition Procedure (DAP) 2026. Intended to replace the 2020 framework that currently governs acquisitions ranging from tanks and warships to fighter jets and drones, the proposed policy seeks to institutionalise "civil-military fusion" — an integrated ecosystem in which civilian and military sectors share capabilities and innovation. If implemented, it could create still more opportunities for private industry in defence.

Taken together, these developments and the Amca programme arrive at a pivotal moment for India's private defence sector.

How to make a landing

Twenty-five years after defence manufacturing was opened to it in May 2001, the financial year 2025-2026 (FY26) marks the first time its share of military of complex subsystems into a single aircraft, but also to assist in the testing and certification of the finished platform.

Crucially, they are entrusted with these responsibilities from the prototype stage itself, rather than being relegated to the role of peripheral vendors.

For decades, India's model for major combat-aircraft programmes, including the LCA and even the earlier phases of the Amca, followed a predictable pattern.

The DRDO and ADA would provide the design and technical leadership, HAL would serve as the default lead integrator and production agency, often through nomination, while private industry was largely confined to the role of tier-two and tier-three suppliers, component manufacturers, or participants in offset obligations arising from foreign contracts.

Private players rarely had the opportunity to lead the full integration of high-end manned combat aircraft.

Now, the government is making available the basic infrastructure for the Amca programme, which has proved to be a game changer, ensuring that private players won't have to load the cost of developing the same onto their bids, the first industry insider said.

An ADA core integration and flight testing centre for the Amca and other future indigenous platforms is set to come up in Andhra Pradesh, at a cost of about ₹2,000 crore.

Another structural roadblock private players have faced is that their public sector counterparts, having long benefited from nominations, can leverage much larger order books to underbid them.

"Already having more infrastructure on hand, and possessing much larger order books than us, DPSUs often resorted to aggressive bidding. It was hard to compete with them for large contracts. But, the Amca model neutralised this too," said the second industry insider.

One of the evaluation criteria under the expression of interest issued by ADA last year awarded zero marks to companies whose order books were three times their turnover. Industry sources regard this as one of the principal reasons HAL did not qualify.

A senior MoD source, however, said it is "encouraging" that even after HAL's exit from the race, the model has encouraged private sector companies and DPSUs to work together.

The contenders for the Amca reveal a mixed bag. Tata Advanced Systems Ltd (TASL), the Tata Group's aerospace and defence arm, is competing independently. But Bharat Forge Ltd, part of the Kalyani Group, is leading a consortium with DPSU BEML Ltd and private-sector defence electronics firm Data Patterns (India) Ltd.

L&T is heading a consortium with another DPSU, Bharat Electronics Ltd (BEL). The L&T-BEL consortium has also brought in aerospace parts supplier Dynamatic Technologies Ltd as a partner.

To be sure, there remain many challenges to the ambitious Amca programme, not the least of which is the government's continuing reliance on not only a technical evaluation but also the lowest-bidder (L1) criteria, under which defence contracts are awarded to the lowest technically compliant bidder.

"This framework can create challenges for private-sector participants, particularly in programmes that require innovation, quality service delivery, and long-term investment," said Sayantan Haldar, an associate fellow with the Strategic Studies Programme at the New Delhi-based Observer Research Foundation (ORF)

"L1 could dilute some of the advantages that private-sector participation is meant to bring to programmes such as the Amca, including greater agility than DPSUs," said the first industry insider cited above.

"It can delay a programme or produce suboptimal outcomes, all over negotiations involving what is effectively 10–15 per cent of the projected development budget, without accounting for the opportunity cost of those delays."

There is no indication at present that the L1 criterion will be abandoned in defence procurement, although the draft DAP 2026 proposes granting credit for meeting criteria such as indigenous design requirements and ownership of critical technology elements.

These challenges are not insurmountable and one thing is certain: India is another step closer to getting a second combat aircraft manufacturer, this time with the private sector in the cockpit.

For that outcome to materialise, both the stealth fighter and the industrial model it has spawned must not only take off, but also make a successful landing.

"comes," a senior industry leader and member of the Society of Indian Defence Manufacturers (SIDM), who is familiar with the Amca project, said on condition of anonymity.

G Satheesh Reddy, former chairman of the government's Defence Research and Development Organisation (DRDO), described the Amca execution model, approved by the Ministry of Defence (MoD) in May 2025, as a positive step for the Indian private industry.

The model placed private and public-sector Indian defence firms on an equal footing, allowing them to compete for the programme either independently, through joint ventures, or as part of consortia, and qualify as the development-manufactured by HAL, the jet is built around technologies that matured globally in the 1970s and 1980s, although later variants have incorporated more recent advances in military sensors, avionics and electronics.

"In terms of technology and capability, the Amca will be a generation ahead of most aircraft currently in service with the IAF. While those aircraft will continue to form the backbone of the force, the Amca will be better suited for operations in areas where enemy air defences pose a significant threat," a defence services source said.

"The jet has been designed from the ground up to be difficult for enemy radars to detect. This is achieved through its production has approached a quarter of the national total.

"By and large, it has only been about two-and-a-half decades since most private-sector players entered the defence space and began looking at it seriously, and barely a decade since substantial production activity actually commenced," said another senior industry leader, speaking on condition of anonymity.

"This means the full impact of these developments has yet to become visible."

The two industry insiders argued that the Amca execution model could serve as a template for future programmes.

Reddy said the model explicitly recognises qualified private players as credible candidates not only to integrate hundreds

L&T Semicon goes local on chip backend

Big semicon play

- Shifting OSAT operations for its chip designs to India
- Already working with Tata Electronics at its OSAT facility, which is preparing for commercial production
- Will consider fabricating chips in India once domestic fabs become operational, provided pricing is globally competitive

L&T Semiconductor Technologies (LTSCT), a fabless semiconductor design company (a company that designs chips but outsources manufacturing), is shifting its outsourced semiconductor assembly and test (OSAT) operations from overseas to India. It is already working with Tata Electronics, among others, as the latter prepares to begin commercial operations in the country. The reason, the company says, is that Indian OSAT players are globally cost-competitive.

Speaking to Business Standard, Sandeep Kumar, chief executive officer of LTSCT, said, "We are already moving our OSAT operations for assembling chips to India because it is globally competitive. Of the 500 semiconductor package types, the OSAT players in India probably cover around 50. For the rest, we still have to go abroad. But Indian players are also broadening their capabilities."

However, Kumar said the company's chip designs are currently fabricated at semiconductor fabrication (fab) plants in the US, Taiwan, and Japan. Asked whether it would shift fabrication to India once Tata Electronics' semiconductor fab plant becomes operational in mid-2028, Kumar said, "As a fabless design company, I don't have any attachment to a particular location. I would prefer to build them at Tata's fab, but if the pricing is such that I don't make money, I will go elsewhere. If it is competitive, we will build here."

Kumar argued that Chinese semiconductor fab plants are able to offer aggressive pricing because they have received generous government subsidies. "The Indian government has also subsidised semiconductor fab plants by up to 70 per cent of the project cost. Whether Tata will pass on that cost advantage to customers or retain it to recover its investment, I don't know," Kumar added.

The company expects to break even over the next two years. It has already invested $100 million in chip design, with an average investment of $30 million for each chip. Kumar said, "We expect to do so in two years with revenues of $150-200 million. Our focus is on three areas — power electronics, compute products, and mixed-signal products."

The company designs chips ranging from 12 nanometre (nm) to 95 nm. The fabless company designs chips in-house, outsources fabrication, and sells them globally across India, the US, Japan, Europe, and Taiwan.

Former Swiggy and Zomato executives Anuj Rathi and Prashant Parashar have launched Profound, an artificial intelligence startup that aims to give every professional an AI-powered representative.

The AI Rep develops a continuously evolving understanding of a person's experience, expertise, working style, ambitions and context. The AI Rep works on behalf of professionals, identifies relevant opportunities, facilitates meaningful introductions.

The company said it has raised $1.5 million in seed funding and opened early access to its first group of users. The round saw participation from technology founders and entrepreneurs, including Swiggy Cofounders Sriharsha Majety and Nandan Reddy; Zomato Cofounder Pankaj Chaddah, and Razorpay Chief Executive Officer (CEO) and Cofounder Harshil Mathur.

"Just as actors have agents and athletes have managers, Profound gives each professional their own AI Rep," said Rathi, cofounder and CEO, Profound. "It learns your work and your judgement, and keeps you ready for the next move and the connection that has the potential to change your career trajectory."

SEXUAL HARASSMENT CASE

Phogat, others to appeal Brij Bhushan's acquittal

Court cites lack of evidence, contradictory testimonies of witnesses

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, 3 August

Wrestler and World Championships medallist Vinesh Phogat and other women wrestlers have decided to appeal a Delhi court's decision to acquit former Wrestling Federation of India chief and former BJP MP Brij Bhushan Sharan Singh in a sexual harassment case.

Besides Singh, Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate Ashwini Panwar also acquitted former WFI assistant secretary Vinod Tomar in the high profile case dating back to 2023.

Pronouncing the verdict in in-camera proceedings, the judge cited lack of evidence, inconsistent and contradictory testimonies of witnesses, said the lawyer for the two accused.

Rajiv Mohan said the court accepted his arguments about "inconsistencies, contradictions (in testimonies of witnesses), improbability and ground of alibi" and honourably acquitted his clients.

Senior advocate Rebecca John, who appeared for four of the women, voiced surprise at his comment and said, "How can he come to the conclusion that the court acquitted Brij Bhushan Singh based on inconsistencies by the complainant victims when the order is not available... and we are all waiting for the order? "Secondly, detailed arguments had taken place where I had contradicted the defence arguments to show that the inconsistencies were minor in nature and did not affect the credibility of witnesses," she told PTI.

John described the judgment of acquittal as "deeply, deeply disturbing".

A beaming Singh said the court had honourably acquitted him and Tomar.

"I said on the very first day that if the allegations are true, I will hang myself. I am very happy that I have been acquitted today. It is good news for my supporters. I cannot say anything more than that," he said as he emerged from the courtroom. "For now, this is all I can say. I will comment further after going through the court's reasoned order," the ex-BJP MP added. The media was barred from the in-camera proceedings.

The allegations that shook the sporting world surfaced in April-May 2023 when women wrestlers protested at Delhi's Jantar Mantar, accusing Singh, then WFI chief, of sexually harassing women wrestlers. Phogat, along with wrestlers Sakshi Malik and Bajrang Punia, was the face of the 36-day sit-in. Phogat and Punia posted the same statement on their X handles. The wrestlers have not lost hope and will continue their fight, they said.

"From the very beginning, the entire administration, the government, and the system have been engaged in protecting Brij Bhushan," according to the statement.

"We are deeply saddened that the court did not find Brij Bhushan Sharan Singh guilty of the allegations of sexual violence made by the women wrestlers." Public prosecutor Manish Rawat said that "appropriate action" would be taken before the higher courts after examining the detailed order.

The prosecution can challenge the magisterial court's verdict before the Delhi High Court. Phogat also alleged that Singh "intimidated several girls into withdrawing their names".

"We had to gather a lot of courage to come out onto the streets and get an FIR registered against a powerful leader of the ruling party. Using his influence and political power, Brij Bhushan intimidated several girls into withdrawing their names." Meanwhile, Opposition leaders attacked the ruling BJP over the acquittal, alleging that empowerment of youth and women is just "lip service" for its government.

Reacting to Singh's acquittal, Congress MP Priyanka Gandhi Vadra said, "On one hand they say that they are with the youth, there is talk of women's empowerment and women's reservation, and on the other hand there is this."

"As a citizen of India, I am deeply hurt by this decision, and I stand firmly with all our sisters and athletes.... Instead of justice, the perpetrator has been given a medal of acquittal around his neck. This country will never forgive you."

Shiv Sena (UBT) MP Arvind Sawant said when the distraught women wrestlers were "protesting and crying", not even women BJP members went to sympathise with them. He dismissed Singh's claim that the case was foisted on him as part of a conspiracy.

Congress MP Shashi Tharoor said the law should be allowed to take its course.

"I don't want to comment on court judgments... The important thing is that the process of justice should be allowed to function. Accusations are made and consequences follow, but justice must be seen doing its course.

"If an appeal is filed, we will have to see what the next stage produces. If there is no appeal, then certainly he should be treated as someone who has been honourably discharged. I don't think we should right now pass judgements on an ongoing judicial matter," he said. Brij Bhushan Sharan Singh's son and BJP MP Karan Bhushan Singh described the court verdict as a "victory of truth" while thanking those who stood by his family during the controversy.

The CPI(ML) Liberation said the BJP's "rhetoric of women's empowerment has rung hollow repeatedly."

The Himalayan crisis that Purja captured on camera

JAYANT PANKAJ
New Delhi, 3 August

On Sunday, the body of celebrated Nepalese-British mountaineer Nirmal Purja was found on Broad Peak in Pakistan-occupied Kashmir's Gilgit-Baltistan, three days after he and nine fellow climbers were swept away by an avalanche. Purja, 43, had made a name for himself when, in 2019, he scaled all 14 of the world's 8,000-metre-plus peaks in a record 189 days as part of "Project Possible".

Among these was Mount Everest, the peak he summitted eight times. It was his viral picture, titled "traffic jam", of a long queue of 320-odd climbers near the Everest summit that drew attention to the overcrowding the world's highest peak is grappling with.

More trash is generating on Everest

Long-term data between 1950 and 2025 across 490 Himalayan peaks ranging from 5,000 to 8,850 metres shows that a total of 105,886 climbers have attempted expeditions, resulting in 10,978 successful summits and 1,093 fatalities — a historical death rate of about 1 per cent. This traffic has exploded over the decades, with the number of climbers skyrocketing from 647 between 1950-1954 to 18,523 in the 2020-2025 period.

The number of fatalities has, meanwhile, decreased: From a peak of 3.42 per cent between 1970-1974 (up from 1.39 per cent in the early 1950s) to a record low of 0.32 per cent in the 2020-2025 period. Around 36 per cent of the deaths occurred on Mount Everest. Between 1950 and 2025, about 35 per cent of the deaths occurred during the hazardous route preparation phase, while 25 per cent were during descent.

Also, 12 per cent of the fatalities were caused by acute mountain sickness.

Climbers from Japan, France, and South Korea suffered the highest casualties, recording 115, 62, and 49 deaths, respectively, while 42 climbers from India lost their lives during this 75-year period.

While modern safety standards have brought down mortality rates, these have fuelled an overcrowding crisis that threatens the mountain's fragile ecosystem. The volume of waste on Mount Everest has reached unprecedented levels. In 2016, cleanup efforts recovered 1,891 kg of garbage; by 2021, it had more than doubled to 4,442 kg; and by 2024, it had touched a staggering 14,128 kg.

Environmentalist Pradeep Sangwan, who launched a cleanup initiative, "Healing Himalayas", in 2016 in the mountainous regions of Himachal Pradesh and Uttarakhand said the peaks have become more accessible to mountaineers. "To address this," he added, "we must prioritise value over volume, which is achievable through stronger legislation, policy reforms, and stricter regulations tailored to these regions."

Anjal Prakash, professor of public policy at Flame University, Pune, Maharashtra, said the rise in trash on Everest is directly linked to the growing number of climbers and expedition staff, who carry supplies and equipment.

Prakash said, "Mandatory waste audits should be conducted before and after expeditions; ranger checkpoints should be established at higher camps; and a non-refundable conservation fee should be levied on climbers to ensure accountability."

New system to determine closing share prices off to a rocky start

ABHISHEK KUMAR & SUNDAR SETHURAMAN
Mumbai, 3 August

The new closing auction session (CAS) for determining the closing prices of stocks in the futures and options (F&O) segment had a rocky start on Monday, with the benchmark Sensex and Nifty ending the session with a 0.9 percentage point, or pp — about 91 basis points (bps) — divergence, leaving the Street bewildered.

This was the second-biggest closing divergence between the two leading indices after the 105-bp spread recorded on March 26, 2020, according to data analysed by the Business Standard Research Bureau since January 2010, a period of more than 16 years. "The sharp divergence between the Sensex and Nifty at Monday's close appears to have been driven by the new closing auction mechanism rather than any manipulation. Under the revised system, orders could be placed within a 3 per cent price band, and on the first day, some participants may have submitted buy orders above the prevailing market price in heavily weighted Nifty stocks. Even a 1-1.5 per cent higher auction price in large index constituents can materially lift the Nifty's closing level," said Prakarsh Gagdani, concentrated auction activity in high-weighted NSE stocks had a much greater impact on the porary mismatch, particularly on its first day," Gagdani said.

most actively traded stocks on the NSE during the auction. These 10 stocks accounted for trading at 24,573.35, up 0.78 per cent, but it ended the session with an additional gain of 0.82 pp, taking its total gain for the day to 1.6 per cent. Large divergences between the Nifty and Sensex were, however, more frequent before 2010. Since January 2000, there have been 75 instances in which the single-day closing spread between the two indices exceeded 91.5 bps. The biggest spread was 257 bps on April 25, 2000.

A chief investment officer (CIO) at a mid-sized fund house said the sharp swing in the Nifty during the closing auction came as a surprise, although teething issues were not entirely unexpected during such a major operational change. He said share prices were expected to normalise when the market opened on Tuesday.

The NSE did not respond to a query about the sharp spike in the Nifty on Monday.

The CAS is a new mechanism for determining the closing prices of stocks in the F&O segment. The price-discovery mechanism does not apply to stocks outside the F&O segment. Instead of calculating the closing price using the volume-weighted average price of trades during the last 30 minutes of the regular session, exchanges now collect buy and sell orders after

'RBI likely to hold rates this MPC, but 50-75 bps hike still in sight'

Q&A Government security (G-sec) yields may remain range-bound in the near term as markets have largely priced in a limited rate hike cycle, according to Amit Tripathi, president and chief investment officer - fixed income at Nippon India Mutual Fund. In an email interview with Abhishek Kumar from Mumbai, Tripathi adds that select segments of the bond market — particularly 2-5-year corporate bonds and 25-40-year government securities — continue to offer attractive risk-return opportunities. Edited excerpts:

Government security (G-sec) yields have eased from their highs but remain elevated. What factors are keeping yields high?

■ Government security (G-sec) yields are lower than their May-June highs. The Foreign Currency Non-Resident (Bank) (FCNR(B)) deposit announcement has removed the tail risk from a balance of payments and currency standpoint, and therefore from the Reserve Bank of India's (RBI's) reaction function perspective. However, a combination of higher headline inflation, a widening combined fiscal deficit, and an elevated trade deficit has kept rate hike expectations alive, albeit for a slow and limited rate hike cycle. The rise in global yields and yield curve steepening have also contributed to the pressure on domestic yields. Having said measures. Finally, we expect the RBI to continue its current approach of providing do not expect yields to decline sharply from here, these segments offer attractive risk-return trade-offs.

What are the key risks?

■ The risks are broadly well known and mostly macroeconomic in nature. While FCNR(B) reduces the tail risk for now, it is only a temporary replacement for long-term stable foreign direct investment and foreign portfolio investment flows, which need to pick up soon. The overall current account deficit remains under control, but the market would need comfort around the balance of payments beyond the FCNR(B) measure. Second, the scope for further fiscal consolidation remains limited, and there is a risk of slippages and/or deterioration in the quality of public finances, especially at the state level. We also seem to be in a better place with regard to nominal growth and core inflation dynamics, but we can't afford any slip-ups in the near to medium term. There is limited room for policy errors.

Is it the right time to raise duration?

founder of Soaring Peaks Capital.

Gagdani added that the Nifty saw a sharper spike because the National Stock Exchange (NSE) has significantly greater cash-market liquidity and attracts a larger share of institutional and mutual fund orders. "As a result, Nifty than comparable trading had on the Sensex. Earlier, when the closing price was based on the volume-weighted average of the final 30 minutes, both indices generally moved in tandem. The new auction-based process created scope for a tem- auction stood at ₹1,276.2 crore on the NSE, compared with ₹10.8 crore on the BSE. ICICI Bank, HDFC Bank, Reliance Industries, Infosys, Bharti Airtel, Bajaj Finance, Eternal, Tata Consultancy Services, CG Power and Axis Bank were the around 30 per cent of the NSE's total CAS turnover.

The Sensex ended Monday's session at 78,639, up 544 points, or 0.7 per cent. The Nifty 50, meanwhile, ended at 24,774, up 391 points, or 1.6 per cent. that, on balance, yields are reasonably well behaved in the context of continued global macroeconomic uncertainty.

What are your expectations from the ongoing Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) meeting?

■ We expect the RBI to remain on hold at the ongoing policy meeting, though we continue to expect a limited rate hike cycle of 50-75 basis points (bps) over the next 12-15 months. We also expect the RBI to reiterate the heightened uncertainties in the domestic and global environment, along with its intent and preparedness to address these challenges through appropriate policy adequate liquidity to ensure the smooth functioning of financial markets and the banking system.

Are yields attractive at current levels?

■ The yield curve is appropriately valued for the most part, as the market has broadly priced in these rate hike expectations. We expect yields to move within a narrow range of 10-15 bps in the near term. However, in the context of FCNR(B) flows, a limited rate hike cycle, and low and stable core inflation, 2-5-year corporate bonds, as well as longer-tenor G-secs (25-40-year maturity), are attractively priced. While we is slightly nuanced. The 5-15-year part of the curve is reasonably priced but not especially attractive. We like the longer end of the yield curve (25-40-year G-secs). At annualised yields of over 7.5 per cent, they provide a significant cushion over expected headline and core inflation in the medium to long term. The demand-supply dynamics in this segment are also supportive, with the government reducing supply, though states continue to extend the maturity profile of their issuances. We believe these long-term bonds should form an integral part of investor allocations, albeit with a clearly defined long-term investment horizon.

Softer crude oil prices lift govt bonds; ₹ surrenders early gains

Government bonds recovered all their intraday losses on Monday as softer crude oil prices, expectations of lower state borrowing this month, and continued foreign currency inflows supported market sentiment, dealers said.

The yield on the benchmark 10-year government bond inched up to 6.89 per cent during the day after Bloomberg Index Services on Friday again deferred its decision on including Indian government securities under the fully accessible route in the Bloomberg Global Aggregate Index. However, yields eased through the session as Brent crude prices declined amid optimism over a possible agreement between Iran and the other parties.

The yield on the benchmark 10-year government bond settled at 6.83 per cent, unchanged from the previous close. "The market opened with slightly higher yields because of the Bloomberg index-related sentiment, which was expected. But crude prices declined, and there is optimism that a deal between Iran and the other parties may be reached. That improved market sentiment," said a dealer at a primary dealership. Market participants also cited buying interest at higher yield levels, which supported bond prices.

Dealers said expectations of lower state development loan (SDL) issuance in August also aided sentiment. The Centre has advanced the release of a development instalment to states, reducing their immediate borrowing requirement and potentially lowering SDL supply this month. They added that strong inflows under the Reserve Bank of India's (RBI's) foreign currency non-resident (bank) swap facility, as reflected in the latest data, also remained supportive of domestic bonds.

The rupee also settled little changed against the dollar as strong dollar demand from importers and state-owned banks offset support from lower crude oil prices, dealers said. The domestic currency settled at 95.34 per dollar against the previous close of 95.39 per dollar. It had strengthened to an intraday high of 95.12 per dollar.

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, 3 August

The government will sell up to a 6.5 per cent stake in Life Insurance Corporation (LIC) at a floor price of ₹382/share through a two-day offer for sale (OFS) beginning Tuesday.

The issue opens for non-retail investors on Tuesday and for retail investors on Wednesday. If fully subscribed, the sale of over 822.2 million shares or a 6.5 per cent stake at the given floor price will fetch about ₹31,000 crore to the disinvestment kitty.

"Government offers to disinvest 2.5 per cent equity with an additional 4 per cent as a green shoe option," Department of Investment and Public Asset Management (DIPAM) Secretary Arunish Chawla said in a post on X.

The floor price is at a 10 per cent discount over Monday's closing price of LIC shares of ₹424.35 on the BSE. The stake sale will help LIC achieve the minimum public shareholding requirement mandated by market regulator Sebi ahead of schedule. Sebi had given LIC time till May 16, 2027, to achieve a minimum 10 per cent public shareholding.

At present, the government holds a 96.5 per cent stake in LIC. It had earlier sold 3.5 per cent through an initial public offering (IPO) in May 2022 at a price band of ₹902-949 per share, raising about ₹21,000 crore.

LIC currently has a market capitalisation of over ₹5.36 trillion. LIC shares settled at ₹424.35 on Monday, down 0.12 per cent over the previous close on BSE. So far this year, the Centre has raised ₹21,082 crore through stake sale in seven public sector undertakings and remittances from SUUTI.

Recovery in UK/EU, higher volumes may drive upgrades for Tata Steel

DEVANGSHU DATTA

Tata Steel saw improved India realisations in Q1FY27, despite planned maintenance shutdowns and lower volumes. Tata Steel UK (TSUK) witnessed lower losses even though a fire impacted volumes. Tata Steel Netherlands (TSN) suffered a direct sheet plant (DSP) shutdown. India volumes will improve as plants come back online at Meramandali and Kalinganagar. But coking coal costs are likely to rise. Higher realisations, better spreads, and tighter import quotas will lead to lower UK losses.

But a targeted H2FY27 earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortisation (Ebitda) breakeven at TSUK is not guaranteed. TSN should recover from Q2 as the DSP comes back online. The Iran war has led to an extra ₹1,200 crore cost impact but some of that may be reversed. Tata Steel's Q1FY27 consolidated Ebitda was ₹9,260 crore, up 24.7 per cent year-on-year (Y-o-Y) and down 5.7 per cent quarter-on-quarter (Q-o-Q). Consolidated Ebitda margin was 15.2 per cent compared to 14 per cent Y-o-Y and 15.5 per cent in Q4FY26. Ebitda for Indian operations was ₹9,180 crore, up 29.0 per cent Y-o-Y, and down 3.1 per cent Q-o-Q. Consolidated material costs increased by ₹1,330 per tonne on a sequential basis.

At TSN, raw material costs rose, leading to a cost increase of euro 118 per tonne Q-o-Q, offsetting unit revenue gains. TSN reported ₹40 crore operating profit, down 94 per cent Y-o-Y. The Ebitda loss at TSUK was ₹340 crore, versus losses of ₹590 crore in Q4FY26, and ₹470 crore in Q1FY26. Lower volumes and higher costs offset better net sales realisations (NSR) at TSN. A fire at Port Talbot, UK, led to volume loss of 10,000 tonnes and an estimated Ebitda impact of $5 million.

India deliveries were 5.17 million tonnes, up 9 per cent Y-o-Y and down 16 per cent Q-o-Q. Consolidated deliveries were 7.27 million tonnes, up 2 per cent Y-o-Y and down 17 per cent Q-o-Q. The India NSR fell 2 per cent Y-o-Y but grew 11 per cent Q-o-Q to $753 per tonne. In rupee terms, NSR per tonne was ₹71,368, up 9 per cent Y-o-Y and 15 per cent Q-o-Q. Consolidated Ebitda was $140 per tonne, higher by 19 per cent Y-o-Y and 4 per cent Q-o-Q. The capex was ₹3,580 crore. Net debt at the end of June was ₹84,170 crore compared to ₹80,140 crore at the end of March. India NSR may drop by ₹1,500 per tonne Q-o-Q in Q2 but higher volumes will lead to Ebitda growth. Coking coal costs may rise by $5 per tonne Q-o-Q in India and $10 per tonne in TSN. UK realisations may rise by pound 70-80 per tonne Q-o-Q. TSN realisations should grow by euro 10 per tonne Q-o-Q.

At Neelachal Ispat Nigam (NINL), capacity expansion of 4.8 million tonnes per annum (mtpa) is targeted to be completed in 48 months with NINL mine development alongside. This would take NINL capacity to 6.2 mtpa as part of a planned expansion to 10 mtpa. Tata Steel will invest ₹33,870 crore in NINL steel capacity. After ₹11,500 crore cost transformation programme in FY26, Tata Steel aims for ₹7,100 crore in additional savings in FY27, mostly in the European Union (EU). While market and regulatory risks in the EU are visible, the implementation of the Carbon Border Adjustment Mechanism (CBAM) and tariff quotas have led to higher steel prices.

TSN's plant shutdown was due to chrome emission issues. The firm is reassessing its Direct Reduced Iron-Electric Arc furnace (DRI-EAF) project due to stringent regulations. Consolidated steel capacity may surpass 45 million tonnes, with India contributing 40 million tonnes in the medium term. Tata Steel plans to expand NINL's iron ore mines capacity by 5mtpa in phases, concurrently with steel capacity expansion. Mine-development expenditure will be accounted for separately. NINL's merger is to be completed by end-FY27.

The value-added product portfolio is being expanded and India's first Superflex well-mesh line and shipbuilding grades. Tata Steel is also looking at storage solutions for data centres. More value-added products should improve margins. The volume growth through phased capacity expansions is a positive. Improved results in the UK and EU could lead to valuation upgrades. An expiry of key mine leases by FY30 may lead to the loss of some captive iron ore linkages but NINL's mines could be alternative ore sources. All India ore requirement is met via eight mines (seven operationalised, with Gandhalpada block yet to be operationalised) with a total capacity of 43.5 million tonnes. About 25 per cent of the coal requirement is via captive mining and beneficiation.

Valuation may blunt Divi's next dose of gains

Strong Q1 numbers, GLP-1 tailwinds, earnings upgrades brighten outlook

RAM PRASAD SAHU
Mumbai, 3 August

Healthy signs

The country's largest listed contract development and manufacturing organisation (CDMO), Divi's Laboratories, started 2026-27 (FY27) on a strong note, with its first-quarter (April-June/Q1) results coming in considerably ahead of estimates. While revenue growth was led by the custom synthesis segment, operating profits were lifted by inventory gains.

Brokerages expect revenue and margins to post robust growth over the next couple of years, driven by opportunities in glucagon-like peptide (GLP-1) drugs for diabetes and programmes, and a favourable product mix. The generics business marginally underperformed due to continued pricing pressure, while nutraceuticals delivered a stronger-than-expected performance, sup- margins expanded by 1,050 bps Y-o-Y to 41 per cent on the back of operating leverage and manufacturing efficiencies. These gains came despite employee expenses rising 20 per cent Y-o-Y and other

PROTECTION AGAINST DREADED DISEASES

Buy a mix of indemnity and benefit plans

KARTHIK JEROME

AstraZeneca Pharma India recently purchased a group cancer care policy over and above its existing group health insurance policy for employees, according to a media report. Some companies also offer group critical illness plans. Most companies in India, however, only provide group medical insurance of around ₹3 lakh to ₹5 lakh, while treating a dreaded disease such as cancer can cost several times more.

The majority of employers do not offer a topup cover or a critical illness cover. "An employer cover may be inadequate. It also ends being deployed," says Kapil Mehta, cofounder, SecureNow Insurance Broker. Liver and lung transplants can cost ₹30 lakh to ₹50 lakh.

Buy adequate base plan

Buy a base health cover that is adequate for the next five years. Purchase a high sum insured early, since increasing it may become difficult if one develops an ailment. "The cover should factor in medical inflation of 14-16 per cent," says Mehta. He suggests starting with at least ₹50 lakh.

Add a super topup

Experts suggest combining an adequate base cover with a super policyholder meets the deductible, typically through the base policy. An individual could combine a ₹20 lakh base cover with a ₹30 lakh or ₹80 lakh super topup. "For a healthy 45-year-old with ₹20 lakh of base cover, an ₹80 lakh super topup would cost roughly ₹8,000-₹15,000 a year," says Ramamurthy.

Buy before health issues develop. "Ensure that the deductible matches the base policy. Check the waiting periods, exclusions and the insurer's claim-settlement record," says Ramamurthy.

Buy critical illness cover next

Buy a critical illness plan only after purchasing sufficient base health insurance and a super topup. The first two are indemnity covers, while a critical illness policy pays a lumpsum upon diagnosis of a covered illness.

"Critical illness cover should supplement comprehensive health insurance rather than replace it," says Siddharth Singhal, head of health insurance, Policybazaar.

A dreaded disease can affect household income for 12-18 months. Another earning member may have to reduce their work hours to provide care. "The lumpsum payout can reduce the financial burden cre- tions. "It can be used for outpatient care, diagnostics, chemotherapy, heightened nutritional needs and physiotherapy," says Tayde.

The minimum sum insured should be ₹10 lakh, though customers may choose ₹50 lakh or more. "The cover should meet monthly recurring expenses for two to three years. It should also account for outstanding loans and cost components that health insurance claims do not pay," says Tayde.

Check the lumpsum amount payable. "Prefer a policy with a longer list of covered critical illnesses," says Singhal. Also understand the definitions and claim triggers. "Some policies cover more than 40 illnesses but impose severity conditions that make claim payment almost impossible," says Tayde.

Also check the survival period — the minimum time the policyholder must survive after diagnosis for the claim to become payable. "A typical survival period is 15 days. Some policies offer seven days. A shorter survival period is preferable but may cost more," says Singhal.

Build a medical corpus

A health corpus can meet expenses excluded because of preweight loss. Brokerages remain positive on the CDMO major's outlook and have also raised their FY27 and 2027-28 (FY28) earnings estimates. Given the Q1 performance and outlook, the stock was among the top gainers in the BSE 100 index, rising about 3.3 per cent and adding to its 26 per cent gains over the past month.

Aided by the custom synthesis segment, which accounted for 60 per cent of revenue, and currency tailwinds, the company's revenue grew 27.8 per cent year-on-year (Y-o-Y) and 8.8 per cent sequentially. The company said revenue growth in the custom synthesis segment was driven by the commencement of three capital expenditure projects entering the validation stage. While the custom synthesis segment reported 45 per cent Y-o-Y growth, generic active pharmaceutical ingredients grew 6 per cent and nutraceuticals rose 19 per cent.

The revenue beat, according to Systematix Research, was aided by robust execution across commercial molecules, a higher contribution from commercial manufacturing ported by healthy global demand and continued portfolio expansion, it added. While the brokerage has marginally revised its estimates following a strong Q1, it has maintained a "hold" rating with a target price of ₹7,959, as the sharp run-up in the stock largely reflects the improving business outlook, limiting meaningful upside from current levels.

ICICI Securities is also positive about the opportunity in custom synthesis projects, though it believes the current valuation adequately factors in the medium-term opportunity. While the brokerage has raised its FY27/FY28 earnings per share estimates by 6-9 per cent to reflect better margins, it has downgraded the stock to a "sell" rating with a target price of ₹6,500.

The operational performance also exceeded expectations, with gross profit rising 44 per cent, about twice what the Street had estimated. Gross margins expanded by 766 basis points (bps) Y-o-Y to 68 per cent, driven by a richer custom synthesis mix and favourable inventory movements. Operating profit grew 72 per cent Y-o-Y, while operating expenses increasing 12 per cent.

The firm reiterated its confidence in sustaining double-digit revenue growth over the medium term, supported by the commercialisation of validation projects, peptide opportunities, ongoing capacity additions, and continued momentum in the custom synthesis business.

Analysts Maitri Sheth and Stuti Bagadia of Choice Institutional Equities said the peptide opportunity remains the most significant long-term growth driver, with the management continuing to add capacity in response to strong customer demand. In addition, 18-20 projects are already under commercialisation, highlighting a broad and healthy pipeline that should support sustained growth over the medium term, they said.

Supported by improving backward integration benefits and operating leverage, the brokerage has revised its FY27/FY28 earnings estimates upwards by 4.6 per cent and 2.9 per cent, respectively. It, however, maintains a "reduce" rating with a revised target price of ₹8,355.

when the employee changes jobs or retires," says Arun Ramamurthy, cofounder, Staywell Health. Employees must, therefore, build their own insurance portfolios.

Exorbitant costs

Cancer, heart ailments and organ transplants can devastate household finances. "Several cancer claims we witnessed in recent times ranged from ₹50 lakh to ₹75 lakh in a year. The cost of treating cancer is rising, partly because more sophisticated drugs and treatments are topup, which also covers hospitalisation expenses. "This structure can provide a high sum insured without requiring a large outlay," says Mehta.

A super topup pays after the ated by a lower household income, says Milind Tayde, head — employee benefits, Anand Rathi Insurance Brokers. Policyholders can use the payout without restric- existing-disease waiting periods. "It can also meet costs arising from sub-limits, consumables and recurring post-treatment care," says Abhishek Kumar, Sebi-registered investment advisor and founder, SahajMoney.com.

He suggests a healthcare corpus of around ₹5 lakh to ₹10 lakh, depending on medical history and insurance limits. The money should be kept in liquid, low-risk instruments for easy access during planned procedures or sudden medical emergencies.

August financial deadlines: Key tax, banking and market changes to track

August brings several financial deadlines and rule changes that taxpayers, borrowers, investors, and bank customers should note.

The most important deadline is August 31, when self-employed professionals, freelancers and small business owners filing ITR-3 or ITR-4 (not subject to tax audit) must submit their income tax returns. Missing the deadline may attract a late fee of up to ₹5,000, besides interest on unpaid tax, where applicable. Reserve Bank of India's (RBI's) Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) will announce its policy decision on August 5.

Any change in RBI's stance could influence home loan equated-monthly instalments, lending rates and fixed deposit returns in the coming months.

Investors should also note that the Securities and Exchange Board of India's (Sebi's) revised trading framework has come into effect. It introduced a closing auction session for futures and options (F&O)-eligible stocks and extended derivatives trading hours.

What you should do:

- File ITR-3 or ITR-4 before August 31, if applicable
- Track the RBI policy announcement for possible impact on loans and fixed deposits
- Check whether your bank has revised service charges from August
- Familiarise yourself with Sebi's revised trading timings.

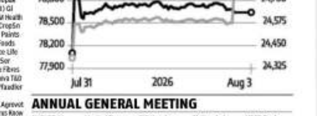
INTRA-DAY



BS 200

WHAT THIS STOCK PAGE CONTAINS AND WHY

BS 200 stocks account for over 85 per cent of the volume of shares, value and trades on the Bombay Stock Exchange and National Stock Exchange. For BS 200 stocks, the company name is followed by its BSE group in brackets and the symbol indicating the paid-up value. Four categories of information are provided: First, the basic information on the day's trading. Information is also given on the number of shares traded, and also the price trend with 52-week highs and lows.

The third sub-set of information is the stock's market capitalisation. The market capitalisation is shown in ₹crore and is arrived at by multiplying the closing prices of shares with equity capital. It changes either because more shares have been issued (or extinguished) or the price has moved.

The table also contains the company's price-earnings (P/E) multiple. The P/E multiple is arrived at by dividing the day's closing price by its reported earning per share (EPS) for trailing 12 months. EPS is calculated on the basis of consolidated earnings whenever available. In the futures and options (F&O) section a wide set of data has been provided.

Open Interest: OI is the number of contracts open at end of day in the futures and options segment. OI thus indicates traders' expectations. High OI is typical when traders see a continuing trend.

Strike Price: The price at which an option may be exercised. An option is "in-the-money" if the market price exceeds the SP (in case of a call option) and the market price is below SP (in case of a put). Otherwise it is "out-of-money".

Expiry date: The date on which a derivative expires. An unexercised option becomes valueless while futures contracts are compulsorily settled on expiry. On NSE, it is the last Thursday of every month.

Put/call ratio: The ratio of open interest in put options & call options.

ABBREVIATIONS: When a significant change occurs in the day's closing value compared with the previous close, the close price is underlined. A significant change means a 3 per cent rise or fall in scrips whose market values are over 10 times paid-up value or 15 per cent for the rest of the shares.

The letters H or L appended to prices indicate a new high or low in the scrip; the letters XD after the traded quotes indicate that the scrip has gone ex-dividend after that date; XB denotes ex-bonus, XR ex-rights; XD ex-indicator for other corporate actions like AGM/EGM/preference shares/mergers and others. M denotes volume of shares in million, L in lakhs & K in '000'.
