Moitra faces egg attack in Nadia

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■
Kolkata

TMC MP Mahua Moitra on Wednesday alleged that BJP workers threw eggs at her in the presence of police personnel during a protest in West Bengal's Nadia district, and claimed she "faced them as a freedom fighter faced bullets", in reference to a recent Supreme Court observation.

Moitra, a two-term MP from the Krishnanagar Lok Sabha constituency, alleged that seven to 10 BJP workers, including the local Mandal president and the president and vice-president of the panchayat samiti, entered the area where her programme was being held and began throwing eggs at her.

In an X post, Moitra invoked a recent Supreme Court observation, saying, "Big shout out to Hon'ble Justice Dipankar Datta! MiLord - I came to my constituency for a mtng informing [@WBPolice] & BJP workers with their help pelted eggs on me. True to your advice I faced them as a freedom fighter faced bullets."

A bench comprising Justices Dipankar Datta and Sheel Nagu last month questioned Moitra's apprehension of eggs being thrown at her, observing that freedom fighters had faced bullets.

TMC MP Mahua Moitra alleges that political rivals threw eggs at her convoy during a constituency meeting, in Krishnanagar PTI

Moitra went to Tehatta to attend a party meeting after informing the police, according to a video message posted by her on X.

"We are at Tehatta party office. You can see, we are under police protection, and the court has said no one will throw eggs. They brought eggs right in front of the police. Look at this, all of you. What is happening right in front of the police? Police are present, and right in front of the police, they are trying to throw eggs-this is contempt of the high court," she was heard saying in the video.

Broken eggshells could be seen on Moitra's face in the clip. "According to the court's direction, four police personnel were with me. During the attack, more police personnel came, but instead of controlling the protesters, they forcibly put me into the car. This is what is happening in West Bengal! The high court is saying this should not happen," she said.

Moitra also went live on social media during the confrontation and questioned how eggs could be thrown at her in the presence of police personnel.

The TMC MP alleged that the protesters also raised "Jai Shri Ram" slogans while throwing eggs at her.

In another post, she said, "Justice Dipankar Datta - MiLord I am officially both an MP in independent India & a freedom fighter today! BJP office bearers (NOT public) surrounded my mtng & pelted eggs as I left. Thank you MiLord for upholding our Constitutional protections."

The reference was to the August 7 Supreme Court hearing on Moitra's plea challenging a Calcutta High Court direction requiring her to appear before the police in connection with a case over an allegedly provocative Facebook post.

The apex court had been informed that Moitra feared eggs could be thrown at her if she appeared before the investigating officer in person.

Rescued orangutans battle anaemia

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■
Bhubaneswar

Three of the five baby orangutans rescued in Odisha are suffering from anaemia, officials said on Wednesday.

A comprehensive health check-up of the primates, including X-rays and blood tests, was carried out after one of the juvenile orangutans developed fever, they said.

According to a health bulletin issued by the Nandankanan Zoological Park, where the orangutans have been quarantined, in-house haematology analysis found severe anaemia in one of the primates and mild anaemia in two others. "Supportive supplementation for the said orangutan babies, as advised by the Technical Committee, has already been started," it said.

"X-rays of the chest, abdomen and skull were taken, while blood, serum and nasopharyngeal swab samples were collected from all five animals. Laboratory tests are underway," it added.

Nandankanan Zoological Park Director Sanath Kumar N said the overall health condition of the orangutans appeared to be stable.

Four of the five animals recorded a body temperature of 98.4 degrees Fahrenheit, while a male orangutan recorded 99 degrees Fahrenheit, an official said.

Bainsla, cousin sent to remand in Gurugram hit-and-run case

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■
Gurugram

Gurugram hit-and-run accused Kalyan Bainsla and his cousin, Lavnish, who was with him in the car, were sent to two days of police remand by a city court on Wednesday, an official said.

The police had sought a two-day remand to recreate the crime scene, a request the court of Nidhi Beniwal granted.

The next hearing in the matter has been scheduled for September 18.

Gurugram Police Commissioner Sibash Kabiraj also announced the formation of a special investigation team, or SIT, to investigate the case.

The SIT will work under the leadership of ACP (Crime Against Women) Sushila Devi.

charge sub inspector Vinay, and two assistant sub inspectors, Jagbir and Narender, of Sohna crime unit, will be its part.

On Sunday, Bainsla, a gym owner, grazed his car with biker Shivani Chauhan, alias Siya, on the Golf Course road, coming at speed from behind. The contact knocked Chauhan off and sent her skidding down the road in a life threatening situation.

At the hearing, Bainsla's counsel Lalit Bindal argued that his client had already been in police custody for 24 hours, during which time the scene could have been recreated.

"Allowing the remand application filed by the police today, seeking two days of police custody, the court has awarded two days of police custody, with the next hearing scheduled for September 18," Bindal said.

Bainsla and Lovneesh, aged 33 and 34, were nabbed from Rajgarh in Rajasthan, a short distance from Gurugram, on Tuesday.

Chauhan said Bainsla's arrest was not enough and demanded strict action against him and others who were allegedly in the car at the time of the incident.

Speaking to the media on Tuesday night after recording her statement in the district court, Chauhan also hit back at Bainsla's cousin, Kamal, who claimed that she was playing the victim card.

The 27-year-old said that if Bainsla secures bail in three days, it cannot be considered strict action.

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■
Patna

RJD working president Tejashwi Yadav on Wednesday alleged that the JD(U), headed by former Bihar chief minister Nitish Kumar, has become a "B team" of the BJP which could "merge" with the saffron party in future.

The former Deputy CM made the claim while citing the JD(U)'s inability to come out with a clear stand on the Uniform Civil Code and Nitish Kumar making way for a BJP-led government in the state a few months ago.

"I have been saying that JD(U) is now just a B team of the BJP. In the days to come, it will merge with the BJP. (JDU working president) Sanjay Jha is at work to ensure a smooth merger. We had said that Nitish Kumar will not be allowed to remain the chief minister and see what happened," said Yadav.

He was responding to queries about the JD(U)'s reluctance to take a clear stand in the wake of Union Home Minister Amit Shah's statement that "UCC will be implemented across 22 NDA-ruled states by 2029".

JD(U) leaders have sought to buy time, asserting that the party would "study the provisions" of the proposed legislation, after which Jha will hold talks with Shah.

Yadav, who is also the leader of the opposition in the state assembly, reiterated that the RJD's stand on the issue "has been clear from the very beginning that we are against imposition of any such code and stoutly opposed to it".

The RJD leader's statement came hours after his party colleague Bhai Virendra held out an olive branch to the JD(U), urging the BJP ally to quit the NDA and help formation of a "Mahagathbandhan government headed by Tejashwi Yadav".

Government digs in on MDR for UPI

The panel had flagged that the Government was providing roughly ₹2,000 crore a year to support the incentive scheme built around the zero-MDR policy.

Accusing the Government of making the changes in the UPI policy under US pressure, the Opposition said the move would push up prices of most commodities.

Opposition MPs described the decision to levy a fee on UPI payments as anti-people and raised the issue at a meeting of a Parliamentary Standing Committee on Wednesday, saying there is a "sense of outrage" across the country.

Chairman of the Parliamentary Standing Committee on Finance Bharturhari Mahtab said the UPI issue was not part of the proceedings in Wednesday's meeting. "But concerns were expressed. As the tenure of the existing committee is coming to an end in the month of October, I believe the new committee will be taking it up," he said.

Criticising the move, Congress general secretary in-charge communications Jairam Ramesh asked whether the MDR was announced to enable US card companies to compete with UPI.

"Here, the Modi government has given in to a US demand to get rid of zero MDR and charge for UPI. The US Trade Representative earlier this year criticised UPI for being free and having driven out Visa and Mastercard," Ramesh said.

Echoing the sentiments of the Congress, TMC MP Saugata Roy said the idea of levying a fee on UPI transactions has been opposed by the Congress and it is justified because this will lead to an increase in the price of most commodities.

In Patna, RJD MP Manoj Jha also played the government over the issue. Communist Party of India (CPI) general secretary D Raja demanded that the government withdraw the "anti-people decision".

NIA court hands death sentence to 10 Maoists...

The victims who died included Nand Kumar Patel, who at the time was the president of the State Congress party, and his son Dinesh, as well as Mahendra Karma, who had previously been the Leader of the Opposition and was instrumental in organising the Salwa Judum movement, Vidya Charan Shukla, who had been a Union minister and later died from his injuries, and Uday Mudliyar, the former MLA.

Security guards and ordinary civilians were also killed, with over 30 people suffering injuries. The attack destroyed much of the Congress leadership in Chhattisgarh just before the State's Assembly elections that year. Initially, eleven of the accused had been put on trial; one of them died during the proceedings, which lasted for a decade and included about 294 hearings, during which the evidence of 101 prosecution witnesses was heard.

The NIA took over from the State police and filed chargesheets in 2014 and 2015 against 39 people; dozens of those named in the case are still wanted. A number of the senior Maoists later surrendered or were killed in encounters. The court found the 10 convicted persons guilty under the Indian Penal Code, the Arms Act, the Explosive Substances Act and the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act. However, the families of some of the convicted have challenged the verdict, stating that the accused were elsewhere when the attack took place.

CBI books Christian group for FCRA...

This method allegedly bypassed the required FCRA process and the legal permissions needed to receive and use foreign contributions in India.

According to officials, the ED found that TTI distributed over 1,000 foreign debit cards in India in recent years. Investigators say the cards were given to people in India who were not the real account holders. They allege that cash from these cards was used for training, preaching, and what investigators call the "brainwashing of poor people." Some activities are also said to be linked to Left-Wing Extremism.

The CBI case identifies Rajan as the head of TTI's operations in India and Mathai as the financial head. Other people are also being investigated for allegedly helping with withdrawals, distributing cards, and moving money.

The ED said that while searches were underway, TTI in the USA deleted data from its servers remotely to destroy evidence. Officials said records from the organisation's digital systems were erased after investigators arrived, making it harder to track the cards, withdrawals, and beneficiaries. The complaint states that this method was used between November 2025 and April 2026 to withdraw 792.55 crore.

Investigators are also examining withdrawals over a longer period in Karnataka, Chhattisgarh,

Assam, and other States.

The complaint alleges that using overseas cards for cash withdrawals bypassed FCRA rules and hid the identities of the people who received the money.

Searches earlier this year, based on ED information shared with the CBI, found foreign debit cards, cash, and digital devices. Officials say some cards had generic or coded labels, and that local associates made repeated ATM withdrawals in several states. The case is still being investigated.

Cabinet raises EPFO wage ceiling to ₹25k

The EPFO wage ceiling remained unchanged from 2004 to 2014 and was enhanced to ₹15,000 in September 2014. The press further claimed, "The present decision carries forward this approach by further raising the ceiling to ₹25,000 to reflect sustained wage growth, rising incomes and continued expansion of formal employment over the intervening years." The annual government outgo is estimated at about ₹11,339 crore against the existing annual budgetary support of about ₹10,250 crore. The estimated expenditure over five years is approximately ₹56,696 crore.

"The (Cabinet) approval will expand access to provident fund savings, pension protection under the Employees' Pension Scheme (EPS) and insurance protection under the Employees' Deposit Linked Insurance Scheme (EDLI), in accordance with the applicable scheme provisions," the press release added.

In a post on social media, Union labour and employment minister Mansukh Mandaviya said the Cabinet decision will not only provide a broader shield of social security to the country's workers but will also accelerate the formalisation of employment. "I want to inform all the workers of the country that tomorrow is the sacred occasion of both Vishwakarma Jayanti and Service Day. This important decision will come into effect from this auspicious day," he added.

EPFO operates one of the world's largest social security systems, administering the Employees' Provident Fund (EPF), Employees' Pension Scheme (EPS) and Employees' Deposit Linked Insurance Scheme (EDLI). According to the latest EPFO data, about 7.98 crore contributing members across about 7.68 lakh contributing establishments, while the EPS provides pension benefits to around 82 lakh pensioners. EDLI provides insurance protection linked to EPF membership.

Pakistan warship hits Indian vessel; Delhi...

The sources said sea conditions were rough at the time and that the two vessels subsequently moved apart. Pakistan had not issued an immediate public response to India's allegations.

The reported collision is not the first such encounter involving the Indian and Pakistani navies. A similar incident occurred in June 2011 involving the Pakistani Navy vessel Babur and the Indian Navy's INS Godavari.

The latest incident comes against the backdrop of strained relations between the two nuclear-armed neighbours. Diplomatic ties have remained limited since 2019, when India revoked the special constitutional status of Jammu and Kashmir and both countries subsequently downgraded their diplomatic representation. India and Pakistan have not maintained ambassadors in each other's capitals since then.

Ahead of UP polls, BJP to mark PM Modi's...

Through these mega events, the BJP is seeking to project his 25-year public career as a continuous commitment to selfless service, or 'seva'. The scale may also be a strategic response to the recent public outreach by Congress leader Rahul Gandhi.

Elsewhere, BJP president Nitin Nabin will light an lamp at Ram Ghat in Ujjain as part of the nationwide programmes. The party has also appealed to people to light lamps at their homes in the evening as a gesture of gratitude for PM Modi's years in public office. Delhi CM Rekha Gupta has appealed to Delhiites to light a lamp on on September 17 and pray for the PM's good health, long life and continued strength.

The New Delhi Municipal Council (NDMC) will light 1.25 lakh lamps along the Kartavya Path, organise a blood drive at Thyagaraj Stadium and prayer.

Anant Nag to get Dadasaheb Phalke award

"On the recommendation of the Dadasaheb Phalke Award Selection Committee, the Government of India is pleased to announce that the Actor will be conferred the prestigious Dadasaheb Phalke Award 2024 for his contribution to Indian cinema and an illustrious cinematic journey that has inspired generations," a government statement said. Last year, the recipient of the award was Malayalam cinema star Mohanlal.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi congratulated the veteran actor and said, "For several decades, his effortless performances, remarkable versatility and brilliance have left a very strong mark on Indian cinema, particularly Kannada cinema. In whichever role he has played, he brought rare depth and authenticity." In a post on social media, he termed the award a "richly deserved honour for a truly distinguished artist".

Nag, a high-profile actor who also dabbled in politics and served as a minister in Karnataka, grew up in a religious family in Bhatkal in coastal Karnataka. He was sent to Mumbai for higher education. His early influences of growing up in a math shaped his interest in stories.

While in Mumbai, Nag felt like a fish out of water but gradually became drawn to the theatre movement there. He started doing plays in Konkani, Hindi and Marathi for five years. There he met and was influenced by people like Satyadev Dubey, Girish Karnad and Amol Palekar.

Nag made his cinema debut with 1973 Kannada movie "Sankalpa" and gradually became an integral part of the parallel cinema there in the 1970s and 1980s. He was a part of popular Doordashan serial Malgudi Days, the TV adaptation of RK Narayan's popular work that was directed by Nag's filmmaker brother, Shankar Nag.

Dubey introduced him to Shyam Benegal and then began a collaboration through six films, each one a classic. It began with the Ankur, also Nag's first Hindi film, and Nishant, Manthan, Bhumika, Kondura and Kalyug followed. He is equally successful in the commercial Kannada cinema. Nag's portrayal as a disciple of Carnatic music in G B Iyer's Hamsageethe in 1975 won him the National Film Award for Best Feature Film in Kannada.

The actor, a multi-faceted personality who is equally good as a singer and tabla player, became known for his natural acting at a time when stars actively cultivated certain mannerisms. Nag, who was minister in Karnataka's J H Patel government, has spoken about being influenced by JP movement at its peak. In 2004, Nag unsuccessfully contested the Chamaraipet constituency, Bangalore assembly election from Janata Dal (Secular).

First introduced in 1969, the awards are named after Dadasaheb Phalke, who is regarded as the father of Indian cinema with his 1913 movie Raja Harishchandra.

Street vending banned after 6.30 pm in CP, Janpath

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

In a major move, street vending beyond 6.30 pm has been restricted in Connaught Place, Janpath, Palika Bazar and other markets, as the New Delhi Municipal Council (NDMC) issued a strict order to decongest such high-footfall areas and free public spaces from encroachment. In its order issued on Tuesday, the civic body said that action will be taken against street vendors for non-compliance. Only authorised vendors will be allowed to operate in their allotted spaces and during the permitted hours.

Special vigilance and enforcement will be maintained around Connaught

Place, Janpath, Palika Bazar, Regal, Revoli, Hanuman Mandir and Gurudwara Bangla Sahib, with strict verification of vendors in these areas. The directions to decongest these high footfall areas were issued at a meeting held on September 14 with the Joint Director (Enforcement-North), and area inspectors were directed to review enforcement activities and prevent encroachment and unauthorised vending.

The move comes days after newly-appointed NDMC Chairman Manoj Kumar Dwivedi sought public views on turning the busy commercial hubs into a pedestrian-friendly space. "The vendor shall not carry out any vending in non-vending zones or beyond permissible timings (sunset, ie 6.30 pm) and clear the sold articles from the vending site after permissible time," the civic body said in its order. It said vendors will have to make all reasonable efforts not to hamper the free movement of pedestrians and traffic in any way, and they will not block the footpath or carry out vending on roads.

Further adding that area inspectors have been asked to identify vulnerable locations and conduct regular field inspections, with any recurrence of encroachment after removal to be dealt with immediately as per rules. "No covering/tarpaulin/Momjama/structure at the allotted site has been ordered," officials said.

The order also directs vendors to display their tehbazari certificates with photographs at vending sites and ensure that stalls, carts and merchandise do not extend beyond their allotted areas. They have also been asked to keep footpaths and roads clear for pedestrians and traffic and not put up coverings, tarpaulins or other structures at their allotted sites. Vending certificates may be suspended or cancelled if the prescribed conditions are violated.

Officials said that special enforcement drives and intensified inspections will be conducted, particularly on Tuesdays and Saturdays around Hanuman Mandir since these days there is heavy footfall in the area. Only authorised vendors will be permitted to operate in their allotted spaces and during the permissible period. The NDMC has also warned that negligence, inaction or repeated failure by area inspectors to prevent or report violations will invite strict action. The civic body has further directed the digitisation and scanning of records relating to seized goods and ordered prompt, time-bound disposal of court cases and grievances received through various portals.

Negligence, inaction or repeated failure to prevent/report violations of these instructions noticed by the higher authorities will be viewed seriously, and strict action will be taken against the concerned Area Inspectors for failure to ensure compliance, the order stated.

The New Delhi Traders Association (NDTA) welcomed the civic body's decision, saying that only enforcement of such a drive will accurately tell whether such orders are effectively implemented or not. "We have demanded regularisation of vending spaces, especially in Connaught Place and surrounding areas for a long time. The association has repeatedly requested the NDMC and the police to force compliance with court directions and prevent unauthorised hawkers from occupying public spaces and blocking pedestrian corridors," NDTA general secretary Vikram Badhwar told PTI.

Several shoppers pointed to the duality of the issue, saying that although these street vendors encroach on public spaces, they also provide products at fairly low prices compared to big establishments in the coveted market.

Lamps, blood drive mark Modi's 25 years

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

There is a particular kind of civic choreography that grips Delhi when the Government decides a date must be remembered, and Thursday will see it in full flourish. Chief Minister Rekha Gupta on Wednesday urged Delhiites to light "Aashirwad Ka Diya" (earthen lamp of blessing) on Prime Minister Narendra Modi's birthday on September 17 to pray for his good health, long life and continued strength.

The New Delhi Municipal Council (NDMC) will light 1.25 lakh diyas along Kartavya Path, Sewa Teerth and the New Parliament at 7 pm, open its veins for a blood drive at Thyagaraj Stadium, and chant prayers through a 108-kund yagya. The BJP and the Delhi Government will organise various programmes as part of "Sewa Sankalp Abhiyan" from September 17 to October 17. The chief minister earlier announced the launch of various projects worth ₹13,800 crore during the month-long campaign.

The Rekha Gupta Government will run four major programmes on Thursday under the banner of service, dedication and public participation, Chief Minister Rekha Gupta announced. Beyond the day itself, the Government will run a month-long "Sewa Sankalp Abhiyan" during which projects related to transport, roads, sewerage, water treatment, education, electricity, public facilities and urban beautification will be inaugurated or have foundation stones laid. Inspired by the guiding principle of 'Jan Seva Se Desh Seva', the programme will convey a strong message of public participation and the spirit of service. The 1.25 lakh diyas lit together will symbolise citizens' wishes, blessings, participation and commitment to serving the nation. She said the diya would symbolise citizens' prayers and wishes for the Prime Minister Ji's good health, long life and continued service to the nation.

At Thyagaraj Stadium, a mega blood donation camp will run from 11 am to 5 pm with a target of collecting 2,500 units, drawing participation from blood banks across 11 Delhi Government hospitals, the Army Hospital, Lady Hardinge College, Safdarjung Hospital and the Indian Red Cross Society, alongside staff from the Health Department, Delhi Police, Home Guards, Civil Defence, DTC, Revenue Department, MCD, NDMC, Delhi Fire Service, Education Department, RWAs and corporate volunteers.

At Khatu Shyam Delhi Dham on GT Karnal Road in Alipur, a 108-kund yagya will be held as a prayer for the Prime Minister's wellbeing, with visually impaired children reciting the Hanuman Chalisa in chorus during the ceremony.

The Government will also launch the "Nammo Shramik Seva Kendra" for workers, offering assistance with registration and renewal, document verification, application status updates, welfare scheme information and claims guidance under one roof, aimed at reducing the need for workers to make repeated visits to Government offices.

Delhi approves new super-speciality block at GTB

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

The Delhi Cabinet has approved construction of a 250-bed Super-Speciality-cum-Trauma Block at Guru Teg Bahadur Hospital in Dilshad Garden, East Delhi, for ₹244.87 crore, Chief Minister Rekha Gupta announced.

The seven-storey block will be built within GTB Hospital's existing campus, eliminating the need for additional land purchase, and will come up under Phase-IV of the Pradhan Mantri Swasthya Suraksha Yojana (PMSSY).

The Chief Minister said GTB Hospital remains the only major Government hospital in East Delhi and continues to face a heavy patient load, with almost all its beds occupied at any given time.

She said this made it necessary to expand modern trauma facilities for accident victims and critical emergency cases. Once operational, the new block will offer critical patients 24x7 emergency and trauma care, specialist treatment, diagnostics, surgery and intensive care under one roof.

Spread across approximately 22,550 square metres, the block will comprise a basement, ground floor and six upper floors, housing 250 beds, 48 specialist OPD rooms and nine modern operation theatres.

The basement will house a blood bank and laboratory, while the ground floor will have a 24x7 emergency department along with CT scan, MRI and X-ray facilities. A 72-bed ICU will be located on the second floor, and the fourth and fifth floors will accommodate 175 general and private ward beds. The sixth floor will house offices, classrooms and a laboratory for doctor training.

Of the 250 beds, 20 will be dedicated to emergency care, five to the Burns ICU, 70 to ICU care, four to isolation, 22 to pre- and post-surgery care, 102 to general wards and 25 to private rooms. The block will offer specialist services including neurology, orthopaedics, dermatology and dental care, with 77 critical-care beds available overall for critically ill patients. Diagnostic and surgical infrastructure will include CT scan, MRI, X-ray, ultrasound and laboratory services, alongside nine modern operation theatres and a blood bank with full storage facilities.

A monitoring committee comprising senior officials from the Central and Delhi Governments will be constituted to oversee the project, meeting every three months to review construction progress. The hospital block is targeted for completion and operational readiness by 2028.

The project falls under PMSSY, a Central Government scheme under which the Centre and State Governments jointly fund development of modern medical facilities in Government hospitals. The GTB Hospital trauma block is being constructed under this cost-sharing arrangement.

DTC bus strike enters second day

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

The strike by Delhi Transport Corporation (DTC) bus drivers entered its second day on Wednesday, leaving commuters in the lurch.

Transport Minister Pankaj Singh assured the drivers of resolving their issues as he appealed to them to call off the strike. Several parents also complained about the lack of bus service for schools.

Sardar Patel Vidyalaya, in a message to parents, said the operational status of its school buses remained uncertain due to the strike in certain areas. The school said it had made alternative transportation arrangements for the return journey and asked parents to remain in touch with the respective 'Bus Didi' for updates on bus availability until services become regular.

The DTC had stopped providing buses to schools in the city from the 2023 academic session in view of growing demand for its fleet for public transport.

The DTC had been providing over 350 of its buses to schools for carrying children. Now, the buses have been withdrawn, and only 8-10 buses have been provided to some schools to provide transport facilities for specially abled children.

The drivers, mostly of the new electric buses, are mainly demanding daily-wage hikes, medical facilities and overtime payment.

"We back the demand of drivers; currently no government representatives have reached out to us. Our strike is peaceful, and we have decided not to drive buses," said Lalit Chaudhary, president of the DTC Karamchari Ekta Union.

The drivers and conductors operating these DTC buses are currently running such large vehicles for a wage of ₹862, the minimum wage fixed by the Delhi government, which is typically intended for daily-wage labourers, factory workers, or employees in small companies, he added.

"We have directed the private concessioners managing the DTC electric buses to sort the issues with drivers immediately. Also, I would like to appeal to the drivers to withdraw the strike. We are here to listen to your issues; essential services should not be affected," Singh told reporters.

According to the protesting drivers, a penalty is imposed on them in case the bus suffers any damage, which, they said, should be removed.

NSUI workers attack ABVP members

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

A serious incident of violence has been reported at the residence of ABVP members at Hari Mandir in Delhi University. NSUI workers entered the premises and attacked ABVP members who were holding a peaceful meeting. Women student members were also present at the residence at the time of the incident. Following the attack, several individuals fled the spot, while one attacker was apprehended by ABVP workers and handed over to the police.

ABVP Delhi State secretary Sarthak Sharma said, "NSUI must explain why its workers reached the residence of ABVP members and attacked them despite women student activists being present there. ABVP members were holding a peaceful meeting and had not provoked anyone. One person who was fleeing after the attack was apprehended and handed over to the police."

ABVP did not take the law into its own hands; instead, we handed the individual over to the police. The apprehended person has admitted to being part of NSUI's social media cadre.

Congress-IYC-NSUI must explain why its social media cadre was involved in an attack on the residence of ABVP members? Students of Delhi University can clearly see the difference between democratic student engagement and the use of violence.

ABVP members are continuously engaging with students peacefully, while people associated with Congress-IYC-NSUI are allegedly resorting to violence. The Congress leadership must clarify its political accountability for the activities of its youth and student organisations. ABVP will not be intimidated by violence or pressure.

Satyawati college students injured in clash

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

Two students of Satyawati College were injured, and two SUVs were damaged after an altercation in north-west Delhi's Bharat Nagar area, around a kilometre from the college, while they were campaigning for the student union elections, police said on Wednesday.

The injured students have been identified as Ansh and Bhavishya Chaudhary, both aged 19 years old. Both were taken to Deep Chand Bandhu Hospital for treatment following the incident, they said. The incident took place near Wazirpur village on Tuesday evening, where the two students were allegedly involved in campaigning for the college student union elections. Following a quarrel, the two SUVs were found parked on the roadside with their windowpanes completely shattered, police said.

Preliminary information said, an altercation broke out between students, following which police received information about assault and firing. Police teams reached the spot and found the two injured students and the damaged vehicles.

Initial reports suggested that the incident could be linked to rivalry between two groups in the college in connection with the student union elections. However,

Delhi Police has not confirmed the motive and is examining the circumstances from all possible angles, officials said.

Investigators are also trying to establish whether Ansh and Bhavishya belong to the same student group or different groups. Police are looking into the possibility that the altercation could have stemmed from an earlier personal dispute or rivalry and said it would be premature to draw any conclusion at this stage.

Although information about gunfire was received, police have not officially confirmed that shots were fired during the incident. The circumstances leading to the reported firing and assault are being verified as part of the investigation, they said. Further investigation into the matter is underway, police said.

Meta must be seen as service provider: Govt

PRAMOD KUMAR SINGH
■ New Delhi

The Indian government has sharpened its position on Meta's legal character, saying the owner of Facebook and Instagram can no longer be treated as a "simple intermediary" when its algorithms amplify posts and decide what users see. The government is asking Meta to take more responsibility, report illegal material to Indian authorities, and change how its systems show content.

Government sources said Meta should be seen as a service provider, which comes with broader responsibilities. This is not just a technical difference. It affects whether the company can keep claiming limited liability for content shared, promoted, or recommended on its platforms in India. These comments come after weeks of pressure over alleged paid ads linked to child sexual abuse material on Instagram.

Officials said Meta has admitted mistakes and promised to report this kind of content to Indian law enforcement, including through the National Cyber Crime Reporting Portal managed by the Indian Cyber Crime Coordination Centre. Previously, Meta mostly sent child-safety reports to the US-based National Centre for Missing and Exploited Children. Officials called this new reporting channel a first step to making the platforms safer for children, but said much more still needs to be done.

Sources said Meta now does more than host or transmit user posts. The company charges for promoting content through algorithms and runs recommendation systems that decide what people see and how widely content spreads. In this situation, they argued, Meta cannot claim to be just a passive channel.

"They charge for algorithms, so they can't be intermediaries," sources said. Service providers everywhere have responsibilities for what they offer. If Meta accepts responsibility for what appears on its platforms, it would need to take on even more duties. This argument directly affects Section 79 of the Information Technology Act, which gives intermediaries "safe harbour" from liability for third-party content if they follow due diligence and do not start, choose, or change the information they carry.

Officials say that paid promotion and algorithmic ranking do not fit well with the current model. The government believes Meta has no immunity in this case. When asked whether the company would lose legal protection, sources said the courts will decide.

However, officials were clear that they do not think the immunity applies. Union Minister for Electronics and Information Technology Ashwini Vaishnaw agreed. He said Meta had admitted to problems with child sexual abuse ads and promised the government that its algorithms would not show such ads. Since the company makes money from ads and helps distribute them, he said, it is no longer just an intermediary.

It has become a service provider, and Meta is now seen as one and must take more responsibility for what is shared on Facebook and Instagram.

The National Commission for Protection of Child Rights has also increased its scrutiny, calling in Meta India's managing director after claims that child sexual exploitation material was advertised on its services. The matter arose in early July, after an investigation found Instagram running paid ads using explicit search terms and directing users to channels selling illegal material. The government then ordered Meta to remove such advertisements and related content.

Sources said Meta is also expected to act against other harmful content, such as material that could encourage suicide, and to do more to fight addictive and dangerous content. Meetings between Meta executives and Indian officials have discussed recommendation systems, deepfakes, unlabelled AI-generated content, moderation in local languages, and whether platforms must follow Indian law instead of foreign community standards.

Parliament began paying attention again after a temporary restriction was placed on a video of Prime Minister Narendra Modi, which brought back the question of whether algorithmic curation fits with intermediary status. Officials have often said companies cannot operate in India by following only American rules.

If courts agree with the government's view, the effects could be significant. Safe harbour has been key to how large platforms work at scale. Viewing Meta as a service provider rather than just a host could mean more liability, stricter controls on ads and recommendation systems, and a new standard for other platforms that use paid promotion and personalised feeds.

Sanjukta Parashar becomes first woman IPS officer to lead CRPF's elite CoBRA unit

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

Sanjukta Parashar has attained a historic milestone by becoming the first woman officer of the Indian Police Service (IPS) to lead the Central Reserve Police Force's (CRPF) elite CoBRA unit. From the 2006 batch of the Assam-Meghalaya cadre, she has assumed the position of Inspector General of the 10-battalion force, succeeding Danesh Rana, a 1996 batch officer.

Parashar earned recognition as the 'Iron Lady of Assam' through her leadership in operations against the National Democratic Front of Bodoland during her tenure as Superintendent of Police in Sonitpur in 2013-14. These operations resulted in the elimination of sixteen militants and the apprehension of sixty-four others. Her subsequent assignments included service with the National Investigation Agency on counter-terrorism investigations and directing the Criminal Investigation Department of the Assam Police before her appointment to CoBRA. She secured an All India Rank of 85 in the 2006 Civil Services Examination, opting for the IPS over the IAS.

Established between 2008 and 2009, CoBRA was created to address Left Wing Extremism in forested terrains. The unit has contributed significantly to reclaiming large territories in Chhattisgarh and Jharkhand and has played a pivotal role in nearly eradicating LWE by March 2026. Additionally, two CoBRA battalions are currently deployed in Manipur amidst ethnic unrest.

This appointment aligns with the RPF's broader initiative to assign women officers to operational and combat-intensive roles. As of September 2026, women officers hold key leadership positions across various sectors, including A. Vijaya Laxmi as Inspector General in Jammu, Kavita Jalan overseeing the North East sector, Archana Shivhare as Inspector General in Rajasthan, Nitu D. Bhattacharya as Inspector General in Madhya Pradesh, and Seema Dhundia leading the Rapid Action Force. Notably, Dhundia is part of the first batch of women officers inducted into the CRPF in 1987.

Parashar's elevation marks a significant step forward for women in India's central armed police forces. Her proven expertise in field operations and investigations underscores her suitability to command one of the CRPF's most challenging specialised units, reflecting progress toward greater gender inclusivity in strategic roles.

Shazad Bhatti network declared a terrorist outfit by Ministry of Home Affairs

PRAMOD KUMAR SINGH
■ New Delhi

The Union Home Ministry on Wednesday declared the Shahzad Bhatti Network (SBN) a terrorist organisation under the Unlawful Activities (Prevention) Act. According to the Gazette notification SO 5080(E) under Section 35(1)(a), SBN is now listed as serial number 46 in the First Schedule.

Union Home Minister Amit Shah said this move is part of a zero-tolerance policy. He explained that the group smuggled arms, explosives, and narcotics, encouraged young people and petty criminals to join terrorism, attacked India's democratic system and social harmony, and published "hateful digital content."

The Centre's notification addresses more than just one night in Punjab. It accuses the network of smuggling weapons, explosives, and drugs, recruiting "gullible youth and local criminals" for anti-national activities, and spreading hate content meant to disturb communal harmony.

This decision formalises a case that Indian agencies have been investigating since two small blasts hit key security sites in Punjab on May 5. Around 8 pm that night, an explosion struck a delivery scooter parked outside the Border Security Force's Punjab Frontier headquarters in Jalandhar.

The blast shattered windows and injured a Flipkart delivery rider at the gate. About three hours later, another explosion hit the boundary wall of the Khalsa Army Cantonment in Amritsar, damaging tin sheets and causing residents to rush outside. No one was killed.

The attackers chose the BSF headquarters and an Army camp near the Attari-Wagah crossing to send a message. A group called the Khalistan Liberation Army claimed responsibility for the Jalandhar attack online, but Punjab police said this was only a name. Investigators following phone records and money trails focused on Shahzad Bhatti, a gangster from Pakistan who, according to agencies, runs both crime and terror operations from abroad.

The Jalandhar case led to two arrests that revealed how the network works. Umar Deen, a taxi driver from Zirakpur, is accused of planting the explosive. Anil Kumar, originally from Uttar Pradesh and now living in Amritsar, is accused of coming to record the blast. Police say both men had been in contact with a handler through social media apps for about two months.

Officers say the main motivation was money, not ideology. They offered small payments for tasks like scouting, delivering items, or filming. In one case, they reportedly offered about ₹10,000 to plant the Jalandhar device. Agencies now see this as a pattern.

They say Bhatti uses Instagram and Facebook to find unemployed or financially struggling young men, starts a chat, promises money from Dubai or a quick payout, and then gives small jobs like taking photos of a camp gate or a railway line. These tasks can later become more serious, such as using petrol bombs, grenades, or IEDs. A taxi driver or someone with a phone camera does not attract attention as part of a group. Bhatti is also described as always on the move.

Officials say he has worked between Pakistan and Dubai and has used contacts in North America and Europe. Some investigations suggest he later moved to Portugal, or Sources in security agencies believe Bhatti may have travelled to Brazil using a Moroccan passport.

What has been tested, at least in charges, are several Indian cases: The May twin blasts, earlier grenade and IED incidents in Punjab, threats and attacks on police, political offices, and social media figures, as well as the recovery of pistols, grenades with Pakistan Ordnance Factory markings, and surveillance cameras during raids.

In August, agencies detained 253 people across 14 states in a coordinated operation linked to this network and filed dozens of FIRs. Authorities have identified four associates in Pakistan who use similar online recruitment methods.

When a group is listed under the UAPA, its assets are frozen, the search for associates expands, and India can make a stronger case to Gulf and Western countries to block illegal money transfers and social media accounts.

ARMY CHIEF BEGINS 3-DAY RUSSIA VISIT FOR DEFENCE TIES

Army Chief General Dhiraj Seth is undertaking a three-day visit to Russia starting Wednesday to bolster the longstanding defence partnership and military-to-military cooperation between the two countries, the defence ministry here said.

During the visit, he will hold discussions with Colonel General Andrei Nikolayevich Mordvichev, Commander-in-Chief of the Russian Land Forces, on issues of mutual interest, including professional military cooperation and training, officials said.

The Army chief will also pay tribute to fallen soldiers at the 'Tomb of the Unknown Soldier' in Moscow.

General Seth will visit the National Defence Control Centre in Moscow and interact with senior officials of the Russian Ministry of Defence, including Vasily Sergeyevich Osmakov, Deputy Minister of Defence, dealing with defence industry and procurement, officials said. (PNS)

DHAMI TURNS 51; PM MODI, AMIT SHAH EXTEND GREETINGS

Uttarakhand Chief Minister Pushkar Singh Dhami turned 51 on Wednesday and shared the occasion's happiness with differently-abled children.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Union ministers and Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister Yogi Adityanath among numerous leaders extended their birthday wishes to him.

On his birthday, Dhami visited the National Institute for the Empowerment of Persons with Visual Disabilities here and shared the occasion's happiness with the children studying there.

The children appeared excited and cheerful to have him in their midst. His wife, Geeta Dhami, was also present on the occasion.

Speaking on the occasion, he said that time spent with children infuses life with new energy and inspiration. He remarked that the children's affection and the happiness on their faces constitute the most special and memorable birthday gift for him. (PTI)

Aspire to be among early leaders in emerging technologies, says PM

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Wednesday said India should aspire to be among the early leaders in emerging technologies and asserted that the Government is committed to a predictable and responsive policy environment.

Charing a semiconductor roundtable with leading CEOs here, the prime minister also emphasised the importance of close collaboration between the Government and the semiconductor industry in shaping India's technology future.

He highlighted India's strong foundation of talent, technology adoption and infrastructure, and called for greater industry participation in skilling, innovation and emerging technologies, such as artificial intelligence (AI) and quantum computing, a statement issued by the Prime Minister's Office said.

Modi said India should aspire to be among the early leaders in emerging technologies and noted the significant progress made in the semiconductor sector.

He said the ecosystem is now moving from foundational efforts to a phase of greater scale and opportunity. The prime minister reiterated the Government's commitment to a predictable and responsive policy environment, while emphasising that policies must evolve in line with technological advancements and industry requirements, the statement said.

He invited industry leaders to share suggestions on policy and administrative measures, and assured them that their inputs would be given due consideration in further strengthening the sector. Modi encouraged industry leaders to actively participate in the next phase of India's semiconductor growth.

The CEOs appreciated the Government's sustained efforts to develop India's semiconductor capabilities, noting the progress made in manufacturing, design, infrastructure and talent development.

They expressed confidence in the opportunities emerging under the India Semiconductor Mission (ISM) 2.0 and in the country's potential to build capabilities across the semiconductor value chain, including manufacturing, research and development (R&D), advanced technologies and supporting industries.

Referring to the target of training one crore people in AI, Modi said India's talent pool, combined with the experience and capabilities of global industry leaders, can create significant opportunities.

Appreciating the prime minister's leadership and support, the CEOs said the progress achieved in recent years has created a strong foundation for further industry participation.

They expressed their commitment to contributing to India's emergence as a globally-competitive semiconductor-and-technology hub.

The meeting was attended by CEOs, heads and representatives of various organisations, including SEMI, Micron, Infineon, Applied Materials, ASML, Merck, Tokyo Electron Limited, Fujifilm, AMD, Intel, Tata Electronics, Lam Research, Rapidus, NXP, Foxconn, Semi Conductor Devices, Advantest, Celesta Capital, CG Power and IBM Research.

Nearly 1,500 PM mementos up for e-auction

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

Nearly 1,500 souvenirs received by Prime Minister Narendra Modi, including a silver memento of Lord Ram, gold-plated Radha Krishna artwork, models of frontline warships INS Surat and INS Nilgiri and a few sports memorabilia, will be part of the eighth PM Mementos e-auction beginning September 17. Addressing a press conference at the National Gallery of Modern Art (NGMA) here, Union Culture Minister Gajendra Singh Shekhawat said the e-auction will run till October 31.

A set of mementos and gifts, presented to Modi in different parts of the country, will also be on display at the NGMA. These include models of the Navy's stealth frigate INS Nilgiri and missile destroyer INS Surat, which were commissioned in the presence of Modi on January 15 last year.

According to labels attached to the two models, they were presented to Modi by the Navy chief during their commissioning. Shekhawat said that 1,498 objects are part of the e-auction this year, which will go live on Thursday, coinciding with the prime minister's 76th birthday.

The eighth edition also features 50 "identified hero objects", including a silver memento of Lord Ram from Karnataka with a base price of ₹13.50 lakh, a silver replica of Kakatiya Kala Thoranam with a base price of ₹9 lakh, a framed tree of life Gond art painting with a base price of ₹7.5 lakh, Lord Jagannath Parivar on chariot with a base price of ₹6 lakh, and a gold-plated framed Radha Krishna artwork, with a base price of ₹5.40 lakh, according to a note shared by the culture ministry.

The PM Mementos e-auction celebrates India's heritage, art, craftsmanship and cultural diversity, while enabling public participation and contributing towards a significant national cause through the Namami Gange Programme, the ministry said. Shekhawat said more than 7,400 objects were auctioned during the first seven editions, fetching ₹52 crore.

In a written response to a query in Lok Sabha in August, Shekhawat had said that the Union Government received ₹1.89 crore through the 2025 edition of the e-auction, while the corresponding figure for the sixth edition in 2024 was ₹2.24 crore.

India expresses concern over reported drone attack near Mecca

ASHOKE RAJ ■ New Delhi

India on Wednesday voiced deep concern over a reported drone attack near Mecca in Saudi Arabia, urging an early return to peace and stability across West Asia.

Saudi authorities said air-defence forces intercepted and destroyed a drone launched by Yemen's Houthi movement before it could enter restricted airspace near the holy city on Tuesday evening. The Houthis have rejected the allegation, maintaining that they have no intention of threatening Mecca or other Islamic holy sites.

External Affairs Ministry spokesperson Randhir Jaiswal said the reported incident was especially concerning because of Mecca's importance to Muslims worldwide.

"India reiterates its condemnation of attacks on the sovereign territory of Saudi Arabia and of actions that endanger civilian lives and infrastructure," Jaiswal said, adding that New Delhi hoped for the "early restoration of peace and stability in the region."

The reported incident came amid renewed tensions between Saudi Arabia and the Houthis, who control significant areas of Yemen. Saudi-led coalition spokesperson Turki al-Maliki said the Royal Saudi Air Defence Forces intercepted the drone south of Mecca. He described the security of the two holy mosques and pilgrims as a "red line."

Saudi Arabia briefly placed several areas along its western coast, including Mecca, on security alert on Tuesday. The alert was lifted within minutes, according to reports.

A Houthi military source, speaking through Yemen's SABA news agency, denied that the group had targeted Mecca. The source said there was no threat from Yemen directed at the city or any other holy site.

The Saudi-Houthi conflict has its roots in the Yemen war that escalated in 2015, when a Saudi-led military coalition intervened after Houthi forces seized Sanaa and displaced the internationally recognised Government.

India has repeatedly raised concerns about attacks affecting civilian infrastructure and commercial shipping in the region. On Tuesday, New Delhi reiterated its opposition to such attacks and said strikes against Saudi economic assets could undermine regional stability and maritime navigation around the Bab el-Mandeb Strait.

The issue also featured in discussions between External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar and Saudi Foreign Minister Prince Faisal bin Farhan Al Saud on the sidelines of the BRICS Summit on September 13.

India had last week condemned reported Houthi attacks on Saudi Aramco energy facilities, which Saudi authorities said left 73 people injured. Previous Houthi attacks have also targeted Saudi Arabia's East-West oil pipeline, a major infrastructure link capable of carrying oil across the kingdom.

Rohingyas start dismantling shelters in Jammu after eviction notices

MOHIT KANDHARI ■ Jammu

A large number of Rohingya Muslims (illegal immigrants from Myanmar) have, for the first time, started uprooting their temporary shelters in different parts of Jammu after the landowners directed them to vacate their plots, occupied for around twenty long years.

The families were seen dismantling their shops and shanties in the Kiriyan Talab area of Narwal and adjoining areas on Wednesday.

The first batch of Rohingya Muslims claimed to have settled down in the Narwal Bala area of Jammu as early as 2006. A campaign was launched against them in February 2017 when king-size posters with slogans 'Rohingyas, Bangladeshi Quit Jammu' surfaced in different parts of Jammu.

The J&K National Panthers Party installed the posters, urging Jammu citizens to unite to save the history, culture, and identity of Dogras. According to Rohingyas, who spoke to The Pioneer on Wednesday, their landowners have been served notices by the district authorities to evict them from their plots or face legal action for non-compliance.

Collecting their valuables, the Rohingyas told The Pioneer, "We have been told by the plot owners to immediately vacate their temporary structures and step out of the plots".

Dil Mohammad, one of the senior members of the Rohingya community, also appealed to the Prime Minister Narendra Modi and Home Minister Amit Shah to intervene in the matter and allow them to stay put in Jammu till the situation normalises in their native country.

He also urged UNHCR, the UN Refugee Agency, to intervene and prevent their ouster from Jammu. The district authorities in Jammu launched this massive crackdown almost a month after a high-level panel examining demographic changes visited a Rohingya cluster in the Narwal Bala area of Jammu.

The visit was conducted as part of an on-the-spot assessment of the settlements and issues related to demographic changes. According to the latest assessment, there are 6,737 Rohingyas and 46 Bangladeshis spread across 10 districts in Jammu.

In the Kashmir Valley, there are 919 Rohingyas and 458 Bangladeshis across six districts.

The high-level committee on Demographic changes was informed that 101 cases involving 179 men and 21 women were registered against Rohingyas in Jammu. In the Kashmir Valley, 16 cases involving 41 women and four men have been registered.

The district administration has initiated action at several locations across Jammu where settlements housing Rohingya and Bangladeshi migrants have been identified.

In December 2023, the Jammu and Kashmir police teams had launched a similar crackdown on over three dozen locations across five districts of Jammu province to expose the 'unholy' nexus between a large number of facilitators and Rohingyas (illegal immigrants from Myanmar).

Ten (10) FIRs were registered by the police, seven in Jammu district alone and one each in Doda, Kishtwar, Rajouri, and Poonch districts.

Earlier, the UT administration launched a special verification drive in the first week of March 2021 in the sports stadium in Jammu. At the end of the drive, a total of 155 Rohingyas were found to be staying illegally in Jammu, and all of them were lodged in the holding centre, at Hiranagar. At present, more than 250 Rohingyas have been camping in the holding centre.

The majority of Rohingyas in Jammu earn their livelihood by doing daily wage jobs and some of them have become scrap dealers. Children support their families by collecting and selling recyclable material, and a few women work as daily wagers in the dry fruit industry, domestic help, daily wage labourers with the contractors of Jammu Municipal Corporation, and in local factories/sweepers in the hotels/guest houses etc.

DRI seizes 231.8 kg methamphetamine from Assam Tripura

PRAMOD KUMAR SINGH
■ New Delhi/Guwahati/Agartala

In one of the largest methamphetamine hauls in the North-East this year, the Directorate of Revenue Intelligence (DRI) dismantled a multi-State smuggling syndicate on Tuesday, seizing 231.8 kg of suspected methamphetamine tablets from four trucks intercepted across Assam and Tripura.

Authorities arrested three men and took all four vehicles into custody under the NDPS Act. The intelligence-led operation, supported by the Assam Rifles, targeted a network moving large consignments of pinkish-orange tablets, widely known in the region as yaba, hidden in the roofs of drivers' cabins. Officials put the illicit street value of the seizure in the range of several hundred crore rupees.

The first strike came at Ramnathpur in Hailakandi district, about 100 km from Silchar. Acting on specific inputs, DRI officers, assisted by the 38 Battalion of Assam Rifles, stopped a suspect truck. A search of the cabin roof yielded 275 packets weighing 55 kg. Officers found a second truck from the same syndicate nearby. Neither its driver nor the handyman was present. Officers recovered another 271 packets weighing 54.2 kg, also packed into the roof cavity. Together, the two recoveries accounted for 109.2 kg.

Police arrested one person on the spot and seized both trucks. At almost the same time, a goods carrier declared to be carrying cement was intercepted at Teliamura, about 45 km from Agartala, while travelling from Khowai. The 28 Battalion of Assam Rifles assisted the DRI team. Examination of the driver's cabin roof produced 295 plastic packets containing 72.6 kg of similarly coloured tablets. Officers arrested the driver and seized the vehicle.

Further intelligence generated during the raids led officers to a fourth truck near Panisagar in North Tripura. A search recovered 50 kg of suspected methamphetamine tablets, again concealed in the vehicle. Police arrested the driver and seized the truck. The coordinated action netted 231.8 kg of tablets in a single day and cut a major artery of the syndicate's transport chain. Investigators said the concealment method—specially prepared roof cavities in ordinary-looking commercial trucks—was designed to defeat routine checks along the Silchar-Agartala corridor.

The Tuesday haul follows a similar pattern recorded last month. In August, DRI teams operating near Silchar and in Mizoram seized 76 kg of methamphetamine tablets hidden in fabricated cavities in vehicles. Officials treat the two episodes as part of the same pressure campaign against synthetic-drug pipelines feeding off the Myanmar border and using Assam and Tripura as transit belts towards the rest of India and, in some cases, Bangladesh.

Methamphetamine tablets remain among the most profitable contraband moving through the North-East.

Their compact size, high street price and demand in urban markets make them attractive to organised groups that hire drivers, modify trucks and switch routes at short notice. DRI officers said the latest interceptions show the syndicate was moving multiple consignments in parallel rather than relying on a single vehicle. Cases have been registered under the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act.

The arrested drivers are expected to be produced in court, and remand will be sought to trace consignors, financiers and the origin of the tablets. Forensic confirmation of the seized material is under way. For enforcement agencies in the region, the operation is being read as proof that simultaneous watches at several points can still catch a network that splits loads to reduce risk. Four trucks, three arrests and nearly 232 kg of tablets in one coordinated sweep have, at least for now, taken a large commercial quantity off the road. Investigators are now trying to determine whether the syndicate has other vehicles already in motion.

misuse of office. The union further said several CITU leaders were placed under house arrest and workers were jailed for months.

Despite what it described as attempts at repression, CITU said workers' agitations in defence of their livelihoods have continued. The organisation alleged that the BJP-led Central Government has refused to address the concerns of workers and remains determined to implement the Labour Codes.

"Despite our sustained and determined resistance, the Government shows no sign of changing course," CITU said, adding that the voices of millions of workers have remained unheard.

conditions and the growing contractualisation of employment in both the private and Government sectors.

CITU also alleged that police and administrative authorities in several states, particularly Uttar Pradesh, have attempted to suppress workers' protests. It referred to the use of the National Security Act (NSA) against activists, saying the action was subsequently quashed by the Allahabad High Court, which also imposed fines on the Noida District Magistrate over what CITU described as resources and national assets are being transferred to corporate interests.

CITU said the historic February 12, 2026 General Strike, called by the Central Trade Unions with the support of the Samyukt Kisan Morcha, brought the anger of the working class to the fore. According to the trade union, the strike was followed, particularly in northern and central India, by a series of spontaneous working-class upsurges, many of which continue.

The organisation said these struggles are a response to the non-revision of minimum wages for decades, violations of the eight-hour working day, denial of overtime wages, bonuses and statutory benefits, inhuman working

Space as battlefield:
The new frontier

The American disclosure of having on-orbit weapons raises the prospect of a new arms race in outer space, where international rules offer few safeguards

For decades, Washington maintained careful ambiguity about what orbits above us. That ended Monday at the Air, Space and Cyber Conference in Maryland, when Air Force Secretary Troy Meink told a packed hall that the United States now possesses “on-orbit space control weapons” able to defend American forces against hostile action. By his own admission, this was no slip - the phrasing, he said, was “very well thought out”. For the first time, a senior Pentagon official confirmed what analysts had long assumed but no administration had said aloud: America has weaponised orbit.

Nothing about the weapons – type, number, when they went up – was disclosed. That silence is itself the message. Meink offered only that the systems serve offensive and defensive purposes, and pointed, unprompted, to nearly two decades of watching Russia and China build their own counter-space arsenals. The admission lands alongside the Golden Dome missile-shield programme, backed by an initial $25 billion in congressional funding and envisioning layered orbital interceptors as the backbone of homeland defence – a project Beijing and Moscow have jointly warned risks “spurring an arms race” among nuclear powers. The real shock is less the hardware than the precedent. The 1967 Outer Space Treaty bars weapons of mass destruction in orbit but says nothing about conventional ones, so Washington has broken no law – only an unwritten norm of strategic ambiguity all three powers had, until now, quietly kept. China’s foreign ministry responded within hours, with spokesperson Guo Jiakun urging Washington to halt its military build-up in orbit and warning against turning space into what he called ‘a war zone’.

Moscow, having long denied pursuing weapons of its own, is likely to answer less with words than with a demonstration - a satellite manoeuvre, an anti-satellite test, something visible. That is the real danger arms-control specialists are flagging: not that the admission provokes war, but that it hands Beijing and Moscow political cover to stop hiding their programmes and start showcasing them. A secret arms race is dangerous; a public one, with each side signalling resolve, is worse – it removes the face-saving option of pretending not to notice. Does this restore American supremacy? Only briefly, and only on paper. China’s reconnaissance satellite fleet has roughly tripled in six years; Russia’s anti-satellite ambitions are well documented. Deterrence by disclosure buys Washington a news cycle, not a lasting edge – and the long history of missile shields suggests they tend to accelerate the arms races they claim to deter, not end them. This is not yet a march to a third world war, but it is a step towards a costlier, less predictable one - space without rules. What is needed now is not louder signalling but renewed diplomacy: a modern successor to the Outer Space Treaty that explicitly covers conventional weapons, and deconfliction channels robust enough to stop an accident in orbit from becoming a crisis on Earth. The alternative is a contest with no referees, playing out in the place where everyone’s satellites, and increasingly their security, now live.

Can the BSP reclaim its space in UP?

Mayawati seeks to revive the BSP ahead of the 2027 Uttar Pradesh Assembly elections by reconnecting with Dalits, marginalised communities and younger voters. The party faces strong competition from the BJP and SP, while navigating alliances, organisational reform and changing voter expectations

KALYANI SHANKAR

The political situation in Uttar Pradesh is evolving. Mayawati, Leader of the Bahujan Samaj Party and former ruler of the state, hopes to return after a five-year break from active politics. While she may not seek to regain full control, her presence could affect the elections by drawing votes from her opponents.

Uttar Pradesh will hold its next Assembly elections in 2027. The key rivalry will be between the ruling Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) and the Samajwadi Party (SP). Additionally, the Congress Party is teaming up with the SP to try to revive its political presence.

The BSP once held influence in UP, Punjab and Uttarakhand.

Mayawati faces several new challenges, including heightened political awareness among young voters, increasing competition from rival parties, and the continued dominance of dynastic politics.

Her strategy for the upcoming elections emphasises acknowledging past achievements, staying relevant in today’s political landscape, and actively engaging with local communities. This approach aims to rejuvenate the BSP’s future and reconnect with its support base.

Uttar Pradesh is significant in India because it is the most populous state. Many past Prime Ministers have travelled through U.P. on their way to Delhi, highlighting its influence in national politics. It has 80 Lok Sabha and 403 Assembly seats.

The BSP’s recent election performance has been disappointing, with the party securing only 1 of 403 seats. After this setback, Mayawati and her party face a crucial turning point. To regain their relevance and influence, she must effectively navigate a competitive environment where both the BJP and SP are actively reaching out to Dalits and marginalised communities.

The BSP has ruled out forming any pre-election alliances and plans to contest the upcoming 2027 elections independently. Mayawati aims to recreate the successful Dalit-Brahmin alliance of 2007 by selecting more Brahmin and upper-caste candidates to run alongside her core Dalit supporters. Senior leader Satish Chandra Mishra has been appointed to oversee vital tasks related to legal matters, media strategy and election coordination to ensure effective campaign management.

One of Mayawati’s primary strategies for the 2027 elections will be to reaffirm her dedication to the Dalit community and other marginalised sections of society. She recognises the importance of establishing a strong support base as the political landscape in Uttar Pradesh transforms ahead of the elections. Her vision integrates historical awareness, maintaining contemporary relevance and grassroots community involvement to enhance the BSP’s prospects.

Young voters, increasingly aware of their rights and issues, are shaping the political landscape, as seen with the recently emerged Cockroach Janata Party. Mayawati’s party also faces competition from other parties trying to attract these voters.

To start her innings anew, she recently distanced herself from her nephew, whom she had once supported, causing tension within the party. While he remains affiliated with the BSP, she stressed that he needs to develop more political maturity before taking on significant responsibilities.

To regain her party’s relevance, Mayawati must adeptly navigate this competitive political environment, particularly as both the BJP and SP work hard to connect with communities. She is expected to launch outreach programmes to reconnect with her traditional voter base, which has eroded significantly in recent years. To address dynastic politics within her party, Mayawati is working to reshape the BSP’s internal structure. To tackle this challenge, she should promote a more democratic process by filling leadership positions through grassroots elections rather than appointments by a select few party leaders. This shift can foster a more inclusive party culture and restore members’ faith.

Engaging younger party members and fostering future leaders in key roles is essential to revitalising the BSP. Mayawati can launch leadership-development initiatives to ensure new leaders represent younger voters’ interests and concerns while also involving them in decision-making.

The BJP’s influence in Uttar Pradesh is notably strong, especially among upper-caste and Hindu voters, while the SP continues to strengthen its position among Yadavs and Muslims. To counter her rivals’ polarising tactics, Mayawati might seek strategic alliances with regional parties and organisations that share her vision of social justice.

The BSP is focusing on mobilising Other Backward Classes (OBCs) alongside Dalits, which can create a larger voting bloc compared to Muslims. OBCs make up approximately 40 per cent of the state’s population, while Dalits represent more than 20 per cent. The Muslim community accounts for nearly 20 per cent of the population. Mayawati must use technology adeptly in her campaign efforts. Employing digital strategies for campaigning, outreach and voter engagement is vital. Social media platforms can effectively connect with younger voters, allowing them to access relevant, engaging content while addressing their concerns.

Additionally, Mayawati should develop online and offline programmes to educate potential voters about their rights and the political process. This outreach can empower marginalised communities.

Finally, Mayawati needs to evaluate her past governance approaches to align them with current expectations. By implementing effective strategies and utilising technology to connect with voters, she can help build a stronger foundation for the BSP’s influence in the upcoming elections. The question is whether she will return or fade away further.

WISDOM FOR A MEANINGFUL LIFE

The Dog Who Was

At the end of their lives, the five Pandava brothers and Draupadi began their final journey toward the Himalayas, renouncing their kingdom to walk toward heaven on foot. Along the way, a stray dog joined them, walking faithfully beside Yudhishtira, through cold, hunger, and exhaustion, as one by one, his brothers and wife fell and passed away.

When Yudhishtira alone reached the gates of heaven, Indra invited him in, but told him the dog could not enter. Yudhishtira refused outright, saying he would rather forsake heaven itself than abandon a creature that had remained loyal to him through the entire journey.

Only then was the test revealed, the dog was Dharma itself, testing whether Yudhishtira’s righteousness would waver even at heaven’s threshold.

We often compromise our values the moment a big enough reward comes before us, convincing ourselves the end justifies the exception.

Today, hold firm to one value you’re tempted to bend for personal gain, no matter how small the compromise seems.

2ND OPINION

“Kindness is a language which the deaf can hear and the blind can see,” said Mark Twain.

Human beings are kinder to each other when they feel safe and secure. However, with the rise of aggression in our culture, the threat of terrorism, and the increase in stress in our schools and workplaces, we find ourselves in a position of fear, which creates anxiety, resulting in distorted thinking. These recent changes in our culture have promoted a lack of goodwill towards others and fostered more self-absorption and less outward giving. It seems that today there are no takers for acts of kindness, truthfulness and simplicity. As a result, those who do good are often left deserted. On the other hand, the clever and shrewd steal the show. It’s very sad that the world today is more conducive to those who are manipulative and practical, and those who chase rewards, than to those toiling hard with faith in the return of good actions. In such a scenario, then what is the point of being good in a mad, bad, sad world? Because every good deed anyway gets ‘lost’, as many of us have come to believe. Just like everything becomes dark at night and a lone flower in a thick jungle remains unseen, the little goodness flickering here and there in the world seems to be of no use.

History presents us with innumerable examples of times when the bad seemed to be all-pervasive, when powerful conquerors looted and trapped the masses in an undignified life. And yet, from these very masses emerged a small, courageous group of awakened people who led a revolution against injustice and finally turned the tables on their oppressors. But, of course, all acts of goodness do not amount to a revolution, for they do not always aim to blow strong winds of change. But nevertheless, they work like a cool breeze in a hot desert, or a drizzle on parched land.

We all know the story of the little bird that filled her beak with water from a pond and headed for the woods that were on fire. While she was at it, a spectator asked the tiny creature what was the point of her efforts, for the small droplets would not douse the huge flames. She quipped, “When I die, and my life’s record is being read out, my name will appear on the list of those who tried to put out the flames, and not among those who sparked it or did nothing about it.” We must remember that there is a law of cause and effect that guides every act in the universe.

And what a person does unto anyone, he does unto himself. So, while a negative action piles debt on a person, a positive act is an investment in a good future. So, an honest person must hold on to his virtue with courage and patience in testing times. He must empower himself with the unflinching hope that, as night is followed by day, better times will inevitably follow. It is just a matter of time before the clouds will give way to clearer skies. So, keep the faith until the new day arrives.

India’s chip ambitions take shape

SEMICON India 2026 is not just another industry expo; it marks a moment when India can move from announcing semiconductor ambitions to demonstrating a working silicon-to-systems ecosystem.

By bringing policy, capital, talent and global partnerships together, the event can accelerate India’s transition from a design-led participant to a credible node in the global chip value chain.

The event comes at an important juncture. Three of the 12 projects approved under Semicon 1.0 have begun commercial production, while an outlay of ₹1,27,500 crore has been earmarked for Semicon 2.0. This indicates that the next phase is being treated as an industrial strategy.

A persistent bottleneck remains skilled manpower and applied research. SEMICON 2026’s Workforce Development Pavilion, student hackathon and Women’s Forum can help expand the talent pipeline and make semiconductor careers visible beyond elite institutes.

With global firms participating, India can position itself as a stable, policy-backed ecosystem for long-term investment. The real test will be how quickly India converts the fab ambitions showcased at SEMICON into factory-floor execution and a sustained semiconductor ecosystem.

UPI charge could burden consumers

Digital finance would never have become a habit among Indians unless the trinity of JAM (Jan Dhan, Aadhaar and Mobile Banking) had been introduced in India way back a decade ago. Finally, when Indians are well shifted to the cashless economic model, here comes a novel twist with the Unified Payments Interface (UPI) of the NPCI. As per the Finance Ministry, from now onwards, payments to merchants above two thousand rupees will attract a tax of 0.4 per cent. Although Person-to-Person (P2P) UPI transactions are exempted from this newly introduced tax limit, the ministry has also clarified that the MDR for small merchants will remain tax-free. High-value transactions of Rs 75,000 and above will be capped at three hundred rupees per transaction.

The government’s new tax initiative is, somewhere, going to add another burden on the pockets of Indian consumers. Merchants will similarly transfer this UPI charge burden to consumers, like what is done in the case of GST and other taxes. Or somewhere, the introduction of this charge will promote people to adhere to paying in cash itself. Somewhere, cashless habits are going to become a little costly. Either we will promote cash, or let us be ready to accept more financial burden on the consumer for every cashless transaction.

Politics needs dignity in speech

Reference the news report ‘DMK leaders A Raja, Sekar Babu booked for remarks against TN CM’ (Sep, 16). During an Assembly discussion, Vijay questioned the DMK’s claim that MK Stalin was detained during the Emergency under the MISA Act. He also made a gesture involving Stalin’s jaw, which the DMK members strongly objected to. TVK minister R Nirmal Kumar subsequently challenged the DMK to produce a formal detention order to prove their claim of ‘Stalin’s MISA arrest’. The DMK responded by organising state wide demonstrations, during which the said party leaders made abusive remarks against the CM and his colleague. The DMK leadership is known for its oratorical skills, including abuses hurled at opponents.

In the past, they referred to Kamaraj as ‘Buffalo Skin’, Rajaji as ‘Dwarf Fox’ and MGR as ‘Dumb Hero’, while J Jayalalithaa was subjected to obscene remarks. Recently, LoP Udhayanidhi made a lewd remark linking an actress to the CM, for which he was taken into police custody and released on bail the same day. None disputes that in a democracy there needs to be debates, even acrimonious exchanges in the legislatures, questioning events and their causes. A repeated lie cannot be allowed to become the truth. But when remarks turn abusive in public, the law needs to step in and take deterrent action!

Land justice needs a new procedural framework

From commercial courts to RERA and insolvency proceedings, Parliament has repeatedly redesigned procedures when conventional litigation proved inadequate. With land disputes consuming years and locking up enormous economic value, the case for a dedicated land-justice framework is becoming harder to ignore

VIVEK KUMAR SINGH

Whenever Parliament has concluded that ordinary civil procedure is inadequate for a particular class of disputes, it has redesigned the process. Commercial disputes have stricter timelines and case management. Insolvency operates against a statutory clock. Real-estate grievances have specialised authorities and tribunals. Specific-relief suits have legislated disposal timelines. Arbitration permits tighter control over pleadings, hearings and expert evidence. The common principle is simple: a general procedural framework need not be applied identically to every category of dispute. That is the strongest answer to the objection that a separate law for land justice would be too radical. The question is not whether India knows how to create a special procedural regime. It plainly does. The real question is whether land disputes, given their scale, economic importance and recurring factual patterns, now justify the same legislative attention.

The Commercial Courts Act is perhaps the closest precedent because it works substantially within the civil-court system while changing procedural discipline for a defined class of cases. For specified commercial disputes, the elasticity of ordinary civil procedure is replaced by firmer limits. A defendant who fails to file the written statement within the statutory outer period loses the right to do so. The court is expected to hold an early case-management hearing, identify issues, fix dates for evidence and arguments, and control the future calendar of the suit.

The importance of this model lies less in any one deadline than in the philosophy behind it. Parliament accepted that certain disputes require the judge, rather than the parties, to control the pace of litigation. It also accepted that procedural opportunities cannot remain indefinitely renewable merely because the dispute is before a civil court. That is directly relevant to land litigation.

A partition suit, boundary dispute or title contest is no less deserving of procedural discipline than a commercial contract. Yet ordinary land suits continue to move largely through the general CPC sequence, where extensions and interlocutory stages can accumulate. The Commercial Courts Act shows that the CPC is not an indivisible procedural package. Its rules can be modified for a defined category when the nature of that litigation demands it. That makes a separate land procedure an evolutionary step, not a leap into the unknown.

Time limits are already part of civil justice

Commercial courts establish that procedure can be tightened for a defined class of civil disputes. The Specific Relief Act establishes something further: even an ordinary civil remedy, frequently involving immovable property, can be placed within a statutory disposal timeline, subject to a limited extension for recorded reasons.

Parliament has therefore already accepted that a civil remedy concerning property can be put on a legislative clock. The Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code goes further. Its architecture treats time as an integral component of the remedy itself. Its experience also shows that timelines do not automatically eliminate delay; institutional capacity and appellate intervention still matter. But the design principle remains important: where delay destroys value, the law need not leave time open-ended. Land has an equally strong claim to that principle. A disputed parcel can remain economically frozen for years. The precise duration of a land suit need not be prescribed here. The narrower point is that Indian legislation already recognises that Parliament may impose procedural clocks where delay seriously diminishes the value of the remedy.

Specialisation is an established technique

Timelines address one dimension of delay; specialisation addresses another. RERA demonstrates this route. The Real Estate (Regulation and Development) Act did not merely shorten a few CPC timelines. It identified a defined field, created specialised adjudicatory institutions, specified remedies and linked dispute resolution to the regulatory information of that sector.

Land disputes share many characteristics that make specialisation useful. They recur in familiar forms: title, succession, partition, boundary, possession, validity of instruments, record correction and overlapping civil-revenue claims. The point is not that RERA should be copied, nor that every land case should be transferred to a tribunal. It is that Indian law already accepts purpose-

REPRESENTATIONAL IMAGE

THE REAL ESTATE (REGULATION AND DEVELOPMENT) ACT DID NOT MERELY SHORTEN A FEW CPC TIMELINES. IT IDENTIFIED A DEFINED FIELD, CREATED SPECIALISED ADJUDICATORY INSTITUTIONS, SPECIFIED REMEDIES AND LINKED DISPUTE RESOLUTION TO THE REGULATORY INFORMATION OF THAT SECTOR

built adjudication for recurring categories of disputes. The legislature therefore has more than one institutional option. A land-justice law could operate through designated civil courts, specialised benches or another carefully designed structure. The choice belongs to the design stage. What RERA establishes here is the legitimacy of specialisation itself.

Specialisation, however, is only one way to redesign procedure. Arbitration supplies a different lesson: adjudication need not depend on the full conventional sequence of oral hearings and repeated applications in order to remain fair.

Arbitral tribunals can regulate whether issues require oral hearings or can be decided substantially on documents. They can appoint experts, discourage unnecessary adjournments and impose meaningful costs. Civil courts deciding land disputes obviously cannot be converted into arbitral tribunals: questions of title may affect third parties and public records, and judicial safeguards must remain stronger. But the larger lesson survives. Natural justice does not require every dispute to use every procedural device to its maximum extent. Fairness requires notice, opportunity to contest, impartial adjudication and reasons. Within those boundaries, procedure can differ according to the controversy. That is precisely what a separate land law would seek to do.

Technology makes specialisation more workable

These statutory precedents establish the legal possibility of differentiated procedure. Technology now strengthens its practical feasibility in land matters. India has invested heavily in computerisation of Records of Rights, digitisation of cadastral maps, registration systems, georeferencing and parcel identification. Programmes such as DILRMP, ULPIN and SVAMITVA are creating an increasingly digital information environment around land.

Technology does not settle title. A digitised error remains an error, and satellite imagery can show occupation without proving its legal character. But digital land infrastructure changes what a specialised procedural law can realistically require from courts, parties and government departments. The point is not to prescribe the detailed evidentiary architecture of such a law, but to establish that the administrative infrastructure required to support it increasingly exists. Seen together, these developments amount to more than scattered reforms. They provide the legislative building blocks of a separate land procedure. Commercial courts show that a defined category of civil disputes can be subjected to modified CPC rules and active case management. The Specific Relief Act shows that civil property remedies can carry statutory timelines. The IBC shows that Parliament can treat time as part of legal design. RERA shows that recurring disputes can be placed within a specialised framework. Arbitration shows that evidence and hearings can be controlled more tightly without discarding fairness. No single model should simply be transplanted into land law. Nor should speed become an excuse for weakening notice, appeal, judicial review or the opportunity to challenge State records. The value of these statutes lies elsewhere: together they demolish the assumption that ordinary CPC procedure is the only legitimate way to deliver civil justice. The case for a separate land-justice law is therefore not a demand to experiment blindly. It is a proposal to apply lessons that Indian legislation has already tested elsewhere. The question is no longer whether India can create a specialised procedure for land disputes. Its own statute book answers that question. The real challenge is what such a law should contain: which disputes it should cover, which forum should decide them, how civil and revenue jurisdiction should be separated, how evidence should be organised, what timelines should govern each stage, how appeals should be structured and how a final decree should translate into the record, map and possession on the ground. India has already proved that when delay threatens the purpose of a law, procedure can be redesigned. Land justice should no longer be treated as the exception. The question now is not whether a separate law can be written, but how well we choose to write it.

The thin line between dissent and disorder

ASHOK KUMAR

If court decisions make the police and administration hesitant to act against violence and disorder, it may encourage a tendency to violate the law. The recent decision of the Allahabad High Court quashing the arrest of activist Aakriti Chaudhary under the National Security Act (NSA) raises questions that go well beyond the individual case. It concerns the larger responsibility of the police and administration to maintain law and order, protect public safety and safeguard the constitutional rights of citizens.

The Government has reportedly decided to challenge the decision before the Supreme Court. The High Court, while doing so, questioned the evidence presented by the state authorities, described the police version as a "fabricated story" and directed that compensation of ₹5 lakh be paid to the petitioner, including for the manner in which the action was taken by the authorities, particularly the district administration. The Court's observations and the subsequent debate deserve careful consideration. There can be no dispute that the Constitution guarantees every citizen the right to freedom of speech and peaceful assembly. In a democracy, citizens have every right to express their grievances, question the government and demonstrate peacefully. This distinction becomes particularly important in situations where violence appears to have been organised or pre-planned. The Noida incident cannot, therefore, be viewed simply as an ordinary labour protest. During the violence, more than a hundred vehicles were reportedly damaged, several factories were vandalised, and vehicles, including police vehicles, were set on fire. When a large crowd becomes violent, the police cannot simply remain passive spectators.

At the same time, the police response must remain firmly within the framework of law. If an individual has been accused of instigating violence, the State must establish that allegation through credible evidence. Preventive detention under the National Security Act is an extraordinary measure and cannot become a substitute for ordinary criminal investigation or prosecution. If there was insufficient evidence against Aakriti Chaudhary, or if due process was not followed, judicial intervention was entirely justified. But that cannot mean that the administration's entire assessment of a law-and-order situation is automatically rendered baseless.

A functioning democracy requires both strong policing and strong judicial oversight. The two are not contradictory; they are complementary. The police must act decisively when public safety is threatened, while courts must ensure that such action remains lawful, proportionate and supported by evidence. Any abuse of authority by an individual officer must be investigated and dealt with appropriately. If evidence has been fabricated or a person has been unlawfully detained, there must be accountability and justice. However, the larger issue is what message such judicial decisions may unintentionally send to the police and civil administration. Maintaining law and order often requires officers to take difficult decisions in situations where events are unfolding rapidly and where the consequences of inaction can be severe. If officers begin to believe that firm action taken in good faith, even in response to genuine violence, could later expose them to personal consequences without adequate consideration of the circumstances in which the decision was made, it may create hesitation at the operational level.

A police officer facing a violent crowd has to make decisions in real time. The officer must assess the threat to life and property, determine whether the situation is escalating, identify the level of force required and act within the law. These decisions cannot always be judged in isolation, detached from the circumstances prevailing at that particular moment. This does not mean that police action should be placed beyond scrutiny. On the contrary, every use of extraordinary powers must be subject to rigorous review. An accountable police force should not become a fearful or paralysed police force.

The balance between individual liberty and public security is one of the most difficult responsibilities of a democratic State. While protecting the rights of the individual, the State must also protect the rights of millions of other citizens whose lives, livelihoods and property may be affected by violence. The responsibility of the State to protect citizens cannot be reduced to the protection of those participating in a protest. It also extends to the ordinary citizen whose shop, vehicle or home may be damaged; the worker whose factory may be unable to function; the commuter whose road is blocked; and the police personnel who may themselves become targets of violence. This is why the distinction between dissent and disorder must remain clear. A protest against a government decision is legitimate. But setting vehicles on fire in the name of an ideology, attacking police personnel, vandalising factories or damaging public property cannot be justified as an exercise of democratic rights. India's democracy is strong precisely because it accommodates disagreement. But democratic disagreement cannot survive if the rule of law is weakened. Roads, industrial establishments, government institutions and police facilities cannot be allowed to become centres of violence. If such conduct is normalised, the consequences will extend far beyond a single incident or a particular administration. There is also a need to recognise that the relationship between violence and the individuals accused of provoking it must be established through credible evidence.

The answer, therefore, lies neither in giving the police unchecked powers nor in making the administration excessively cautious. What is required is lawful firmness, institutional accountability and evidence-based policing. The State must act decisively against violence, but it must also ensure that every such action is legally sustainable. Police officers must be accountable, but they must also be given the institutional confidence to discharge their responsibilities without the fear that every difficult operational decision will subsequently be viewed in isolation. Courts, too, have a vital role in maintaining this balance. Judicial scrutiny protects individual liberty and prevents misuse of State power. But the larger institutional objective should also be to ensure that legitimate law-enforcement action is not rendered ineffective by an atmosphere in which officers become reluctant to act when public order is genuinely under threat. The police must remain restrained, but not paralysed. The administration must remain accountable, but not helpless. The judiciary must protect individual liberty, while recognising that public order is the foundation upon which those freedoms can meaningfully exist. The day the distinction between democratic protest and anarchy disappears, the consequences will not be borne by the police, administration or judiciary alone. The entire country will ultimately have to pay the price.

The rupee and the school bell

DEBDULAL THAKUR

SHRABANI MUKHERJEE

India has chosen to protect part of its tax revenue for education. Indeed, an important commitment. However, the latest parliamentary data invite a second question: once money is raised for education, does it reach the system at the time when schools can use it best?

On August 10, 2026, the Ministry of Education told the Lok Sabha that the education share of the Health and Education Cess was ₹63,252.86 crore in 2024-25 and ₹65,890.50 crore in 2025-26. It also reported utilisation of ₹40,900 crore and ₹48,049.09 crore through the Prarambik Shiksha Kosh, and ₹11,162.60 crore and ₹10,314.31 crore through the Madhyamik and Uchchatar Shiksha Kosh.

These numbers need care. The gap between annual collections and utilisation cannot simply be called "unspent money". Reserve funds can carry balances across years. A sound assessment requires the opening balance, fresh credits, withdrawals and closing balance. The real policy question is therefore not whether a single year's figures match, but whether the full flow of money can be tracked from collection to eventual use.

It's a long flow. Cess proceeds move through designated reserve funds; schemes receive budget support; States prepare annual plans; approvals are made; State contributions are matched; and releases follow after financial conditions are met. Under Samagra Shiksha, these include the pace of earlier expenditure, audited accounts, utilisation certificates and receipt of the State share. These are legitimate safeguards, not needless paperwork.

However, education has a feature that public finance cannot ignore — timing changes value. A textbook arriving after the first term is not equivalent to one available on the first day. A roof repaired after the rains does not undo classes already disrupted. A delayed payment can affect teachers, vendors or school services even if the account is eventually settled. This is why timeliness should be treated as part of financial performance, not as an administrative afterthought. Significantly, NEP 2020 itself recognised that education funds are often not spent in time at district and institutional levels and called for a "smooth, timely and appropriate flow of funds". The argument, therefore, is not against existing policy; it is for carrying one of its own principles further.

Responsibility is shared. The Centre must make releases as predictable as possible. States must provide their matching share, submit accounts on time, improve procurement and avoid weak execution. A delayed transfer at one level can become an unspent balance at another. Looking Centre and the States. Adequate funding and efficient execution are different policy problems.

The case for better reconciliation is also practical. CAG's 2025 Union Government audit found that Ministry of Finance figures for combined transfers to designated Health and Education Cess reserve funds did not match amounts reflected in the Union Government Finance Accounts for 2018-19 to 2023-24, and called for reconciliation. That is an accounting issue, not evidence of misuse.

Three practical improvements might strengthen the system without weakening accountabil-only at the Centre or only at the States risks confusing where the bottleneck actually lies.

The federal setting makes this more important. The Sixteenth Finance Commission retained States' share of the divisible pool at 41%, while purpose-specific cesses remain outside that pool. It also reported that States' education expenditure was between 2.2 per cent and 2.5 per cent of GDP over 2011-12 to 2023-24. This should not be compared directly with NEP 2020's 6 per cent goal, which refers to combined public investment by the

ity. First, publish one annual reconciliation showing cess collections, transfers to reserve funds, opening and closing balances, scheme allocations, releases and actual expenditure. Second, map major school expenditures to the academic calendar, so time-sensitive items are released before they lose part of their value. Third, create an early-warning dashboard identifying States or components at risk of missing release conditions, allowing problems to be corrected before they affect schools.

The World Bank has similarly noted that delayed fund releases, complex financial requirements and procurement problems can hold back books, teaching materials and other resources at school level. The lesson is modest but important: 'budget execution is part of education policy, not merely an accounting exercise'. India does not need to choose between financial discipline and educational continuity. It needs both. Earmarking can protect the purpose of a rupee; good public finance must also protect its timing.

For a child, this distinction is simple. The value of education spending is realised not when money is collected, but when the teacher, textbook and classroom are available when learning is supposed to begin. After all, the school bell cannot wait for the treasury!

Madras HC refuses stay on bypolls to 2 TN seats

The Madras High Court on Wednesday declined to stay the bypoll to Maduranthakam (SC) and Dharapuram (SC) Assembly constituencies that are scheduled for October 6.

A division bench comprising Justices S M Subramaniam and Krishnanaswamy Govindarajan orally declined to stay the election while hearing a Public Interest Litigation filed by advocate K Suthan.

After Advocate General Vijay Narayan pointed out that similar connected matters were heard by the First Bench headed by Chief Justice S A Dharmadhikari and that orders were reserved, the court directed the Registry to post this PIL also before the First Bench on September 18.

The bypolls were necessitated following the resignation of then AIADMK MLAs K Maragatham Kumaravel and P Satyabama from Maduranthakam and Dharapuram, respectively, before joining the ruling TVK. (PTI)

NEET protest: Delhi HC junks PIL over lathi-charge

The Delhi High Court on Wednesday dismissed a public interest litigation (PIL) over the issue of Delhi Police denying any lathi-charge on students participating in the NEET-related protests despite contradictory media reports.

The petitioner argued that as a citizen and a media professional he has the right to know the truth, which is essential for fixing accountability, and prayed for a direction to Delhi Police to decide his representation on the issue.

A bench of Chief Justice D K Upadhyaya and Justice Tejas Karia, however, observed that PIL jurisdiction was not meant for such cases, and asked the petitioner Nitin Naresh to show his statutory right to seek a decision on his representation. Asserting that a litigant must demonstrate either a dispute or a denial of a legal or Constitutional right, the court remarked, "Everything which will catch your imagination by reading newspaper becomes a PIL. High-sounding words like accountability, transparency are not to be used in vacuum."

"What is your petition? Delhi Police issued a statement. That statement is contradicted by the media and you are asking us to direct an inquiry," the bench added. The Cockroach Janta Party (CJP) protested in the heart of Delhi at Jantar Mantar since June 20 to seek accountability from the government over the NEET paper leak and the resignation of Dharmendra Pradhan as Union education minister. Plea in SC against imposition of MDR on UPI payments of above ₹2,000

■ New Delhi

A public interest litigation (PIL) matter has been filed in the Supreme Court, challenging the Centre's decision to impose a merchant discount rate (MDR) on specified UPI person-to-merchant transactions of above ₹2,000, saying the levy has been introduced without adequate statutory safeguards, transparency or public consultation.

The government has introduced a 0.4 per cent fee on UPI payments of more than ₹2,000 made to merchants from October 15. Under this, a merchant discount rate (MDR) of 0.4 per cent is to be levied on person-to-merchant transactions of above ₹2,000. However, no MDR is to be levied on UPI transactions of up to ₹2,000.

The plea has been filed by advocate Anjan Datta, challenging the Centre's September 14 notification and the MDR framework announced on September 15, which is stated to come into effect from October 15.

SC rejects 271 Govt appeals on disability pension

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

Slamming the Defence Ministry, Supreme Court dismissed a batch of around 271 appeals and special leave petitions filed by the Union Government in cases concerning the grant of the disability element of service pension to several retired army officers. A Bench of Justices PS Narasimha and Alok Aradhe passed the ruling on Tuesday (93 page order uploaded on Wednesday) on challenges by the Government to orders of the Armed Forces Tribunal (AFT) and High Courts granting relief to several retired army personnel who sought disability pension.

"The sad part of this litigation is that, out of around 271 civil appeals and special leave petitions, most of them are barred by limitation. Many similar appeals that were barred by limitation have already been dismissed in the past; the present batch is only a small number that survive. Moreover, it is significant to note that the number of appeals rejected at the first appellate stage, after a dismissal by the RMB, far exceeds those accepted. As per information obtained under the Right to Information Act, 2005, of the 2,997 appeals before the First Appellate Authority, almost 2,855 of the claims were rejected and only 142 appeals are accepted. Before the Second Appellate Authority, out of 456 appeals, 439 were rejected and only 17 appeals are accepted," the Court said.

In this regard, the Court further referred to the 2015 Raksha Mantri Committee of Experts report, which had recommended withdrawal of appeals of this nature pending against disabled soldiers. It noted that the recommendation had "not been faithfully implemented."

"Appeals such as these are filed and continue to be filed, even after the Ministry of Defence accepted the Committee's recommendation for withdrawal of this class of litigation," said the judgment. The retired officers had approached the AFT/High Courts after Release Medical Boards (RMBs) of the army classified their disabilities as neither attributable to nor aggravated by military service (NANA).

This classification meant that the army was held not liable to pay the retired personnel disability pension, since the disability was neither caused nor worsened by their military service. After the AFT and High Courts overturned such classifications and granted the retired officers relief, the Defence Ministry challenged such rulings before the Supreme Court.

By its September 15 ruling, the Court acknowledged that the Entitlement Rules of 2008 removed an earlier presumption that a person is physically fit when he joins military service. However, the Court ruled that this presumption would automatically mean that a disability detected when such an officer leaves the army is unconnected to military service.

The apex court also stressed that the findings of Medical Boards in such matters cannot be brushed aside. It said tribunals dealing with pending claims must closely examine the Board's opinion and the reasons for its findings before deciding whether disability pension should be granted.

In the present batch of appeals, however, the Court found no ground to interfere with the orders under challenge and dismissed the Union's appeals on grounds of both delay and merits. The Court also expressed concern over continued litigation in such cases. Attorney General R Venkataramani appeared for the Union Government.

Advocates Sudhanshu Pandey, MV Mukunda, Brig Shrivastava, US Maurya, Col. Naresh Ghai, Siddharth Agarwal, Girish Kumar, Ajit Kakkar, Praveen Kumar, Aditya Puar, Col IS Singh, Baldev Singh, Maheravesh Rein, Vivekbhai Patel and Kanti appeared for the respondents/ex-servicemen.

Goondas Act used as tool of oppression by UP bureaucrats, State: Allahabad HC

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ Prayagraj

The Allahabad High Court has said that UP Goondas Act is being used as a tool of oppression by Uttar Pradesh bureaucrats and the state despite the court's consistent rulings on the issue and warned the bureaucracy of punitive damages if it does not stop issuing illegal and arbitrary orders.

The court awarded ₹50,000 as damages to petitioner Abhishek Tyagi against whom proceedings under Goonda Act were initiated.

It said the state government was at liberty to recover the damages from the salaries of the bureaucrats concerned. Justice

Sandeep Jain held that the bureaucracy must stop issuing illegal and arbitrary orders, or else it will have to face punitive damages. The court in its order dated September 10 allowed the petition of Tyagi, who had challenged proceedings initiated against him under the Uttar Pradesh Control of Goondas Act, 1970.

The court quashed the orders passed by the Additional Commissioner of Police, Ghaziabad and the Commissioner, Meerut Division.

Proceedings against Tyagi under Goonda Act were initiated on the basis of two criminal cases. The ACP, Ghaziabad by an order dated September 18, 2025 directed Tyagi to reside at his permanent address and mark his attendance at the police station concerned on every second and fourth Saturday for six months.

His appeal against the order was subsequently dismissed by the Commissioner, Meerut Division on December 10, 2025. The court said that despite its consistent stand that a person cannot be branded a 'goonda' merely on the basis of one or two cases, the bureaucracy had "deliberately not noticed this" and was continuing to pass contrary orders.

"Moreover, there is a gap of 3 years in the occurrence of the two criminal cases which shows that he is not a habitual offender," the court added. It then observed, "It is apparent that the Act of 1970 is being used as a tool of oppression by the bureaucracy and the State which is contrary to the objects of the Act of 1970."

The court further said time has now come for a strong message to be sent to the bureaucracy to stop such conduct or face punitive damages.

PIL in SC seeks probe, stringent action against fake drug networks

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

A PIL has been filed in the Supreme Court seeking a comprehensive national framework to curb the manufacture and sale of counterfeit and adulterated medicines, including vaccines and cough syrups.

The PIL, filed on Tuesday by lawyer Ashwini Upadhyaya, made union ministries of Health and Family Welfare, Law and Justice and Women and Child Development, all states and union territories (UTs) and the Law Commission as parties. The plea, filed through advocate-on-record Ashwani Kumar Dubey, sought directions to the Centre and states to complete investigations into fake medicine cases within three months and trials within one year. It also calls for standard operating procedures for search, seizure and sampling, time-bound forensic examination of seized medicines, and mandatory digital recording and videography of investigative proceedings.

"There is no standard investigation procedure, time-bound trial and sentencing policy in cases of adulterated and spurious drinks and drugs. Despite the Drug and Cosmetics Act being in force since 1940, sale and manufacturing of fake medicines, syrup, injection and vaccine continue to rise. There is vacuum in the existing framework..." the plea submitted. It also sought a direction to the Centre and states to "mandatorily do the digital recording and videography of search, seizure, sampling and inventory proceedings". The plea sought directions to the Centre to frame a graded sentencing policy to ensure stringent, proportionate punishment for fake drug manufacturers and sellers.

"Direct the Law Commission of India to prepare a report suggesting the necessary changes in existing laws to prevention fake drugs," it said. The PIL raised concerns over alleged gaps in the enforcement of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940, saying the absence of uniform investigation procedures, dedicated mechanisms for speedy trials and effective financial investigations has hampered action against organised counterfeit medicine networks.

It referred to reported incidents involving counterfeit and adulterated medicines, including alleged fake cancer drugs supplied to hospitals in Bengaluru, seizures of counterfeit medicines and cough syrup-related deaths.

These incidents are cited by the petitioner as examples of the need for coordinated and time-bound enforcement.

Queer partners can take emergency medical decisions if authorised by patient: Govt to Delhi High Court

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

The Centre has told the Delhi High Court that an adult can be permitted to nominate a partner, including the one in a non-heterosexual relationship, to take medical decisions in case of their incapacity while respecting patient's autonomy and continuity of care.

The government made the submission in response to a petition seeking recognition of same-sex couples as medical representatives during medical treatment.

The Union Ministry of Health and Family Welfare and the National Medical Commission (NMC), in their counter affidavit, have submitted that such an approach is "substantially capable of being accommodated within the existing legal and ethical framework", subject to applicable law and appropriate safeguards.

"Permitting a competent adult to nominate his/ her partner, including a partner in a non-heterosexual/ queer relationship, to take medical decisions on his/ her behalf in the event of incapacity would constitute a logical and tailored extension of the same principle, while respecting patient autonomy and ensuring continuity of care, subject to appropriate safeguards and the applicable law," the Centre's affidavit said.

The petition is scheduled to come up for hearing on Thursday before Justice Swarana Kanta Sharma who had questioned the Centre on the last date of hearing for its failure to respond to the plea even after a year.

The affidavit said when a competent adult has nominated or otherwise authorised his/ her partner to act on his/ her behalf in the event of incapacity, there appears to be no medical or ethical rationale for excluding such person merely on account of the sex, gender or sexual orientation of the partners or because their union does not fall within the conventional understanding of marriage, subject always to applicable law and appropriate safeguards.

Supreme Court questions safety of legislative majority test in Shiv Sena row

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

The Supreme Court on Wednesday questioned whether a legislative majority could be considered a "safe test" to determine the ownership of a political party, particularly when disqualification proceedings were pending against the very MLAs who constituted that majority.

The top court posed the question to the Eknath Shinde-led faction, highlighting the legal complexities of relying on the numerical strength of legislators whose status itself was under scrutiny. "Although legislative majority is a relevant test, can it always be the determinative or safe test where disqualification proceedings concerning those very legislators are pending?" a bench comprising Chief Justice Surya Kant and Justices Joymalaya Bagchi and V Mohana asked senior advocate Neeraj Kishan Kaul advancing final arguments on behalf of the Eknath Shinde-led faction. Kaul, at the outset, referred to the test evolved by the apex court to ascertain the majority in a political party and how the Election Commission has been applying it from case to case. "Everyone says that they adhere to the (party) constitution. But what do we find when we examine the organisational structure? "It is a party run in an autocratic manner and marked by adhocism. More than two-thirds of its members are appointed by the party president," he said.

He questioned whether such an organisation represents the will of the grassroots workers. "The Election Commission ultimately held that given the peculiar facts of this case, legislative majority was the only workable test," he said. Kaul said it was misleading on the part of the Uddhav Thackeray group to suggest that the Subhash Desai judgment prohibits consideration of the legislative-majority test.

"The Subhash Desai judgment repeatedly recognises that Election Commission, exercising its plenary and expansive powers, may devise a test suited to the peculiar facts and circumstances of a case," the senior lawyer said.

"If, after examining all the available tests, the poll panel concludes that none of the other tests can be applied in the peculiar circumstances, it may adopt the workable test," he said. The organisational structure in Shiv Sena was overwhelmingly composed of nominated members and did not reflect the aspirations of the party or its cadre, he said. "The cadre was too numerous for its individual members to be brought before the Commission. The elected representatives were divided, and some of them faced disqualification proceedings. All three tests, therefore, had limitations," he said. Justice Bagchi observed that if all three tests have limitations, there is another available option. "Neither group needed to be given the advantage of the reserved symbol. Both groups could have been directed to select different symbols and contest on their own strength, not on Balasaheb's strength," he observed.

In appropriate cases, this court has repeatedly recognised legislative majority as a valid test because it may represent the democratic will in the particular circumstances, Kaul replied.

Indians hurt in bus accident

Twelve Indian nationals were injured when a minibus they were travelling in met with an accident on the Jomsom-Muktinath corridor in Nepal on Wednesday.

The minibus overturned while heading towards Kagbeni on the way to Upper Mustang from the famous Muktinath Temple in Mustang district, according to police. Vedpal Sharma, 68, a resident of Delhi, and 11 others, mostly elderly people, sustained injuries in the incident, police said. There were 25 passengers in the minibus, of whom 13 have not sustained any injuries. The injured passengers are undergoing treatment at Provincial Hospital in Jomsom, Mustang district. Police have detained the Nepali bus driver and initiated further investigation into the incident. (PTI)

Naqi nominate for PoK President

The ruling Pakistan Muslim League-Nawaz on Wednesday nominated Dr Najeeb Naqi Khan as its candidate for the election of the "President" of Pakistan-occupied Kashmir. The so-called election would be held on September 24, after which votes would be counted on the same day. "(PML-N) President Nawaz Sharif has nominated Naqi for the post of President and directed him to submit his nomination papers for the office," Punjab Senior Minister Marriyum Aurangzeb said in a post on X.

Khan, a resident of Sudhnoti district, is most likely to win the election as the PML-N has a clear majority in the recently elected assembly.

India had described the recent so-called local body elections in PoK as a "complete farce," asserting that such "hollow" exercises cannot hide the ground reality in the region. (PTI)

Chilime project search ends: Five bodies found in Nepal

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Kathmandu

The mortal remains of five persons were recovered from the Chilime hydropower project's tunnel in Nepal on Wednesday after Indian and Nepali rescue teams reached the powerhouse following several days of clearing slush and mud, India's Ambassador to Nepal Naveen Srivastava said.

The teams were unable to find any survivors, said the diplomat.

Flash floods, triggered by an ice-rock avalanche near the Nepal-Tibet border on August 26, devastated towns and villages in northern and central Nepal. The Bhotekoshi River, which flows south from the Himalayan border region, carried the floodwaters downstream, sweeping away homes, vehicles, roads and bridges and damaging hydropower projects.

"After several days of challenging hard work in clearing the slush and mud from the tunnel, the Indian and Nepali teams were able to reach the power house this morning. Unfortunately they were not able to find any survivors. Mortal remains of 5 persons were extricated," Srivastava said in a post on X.

Authorities said the operation involved constructing a road on debris and through the river, clearing slush to gain access to the tunnel, tackling huge boulders and seepage water, and eventually carrying out deep diving. The Indian Army and Nepali Army teams had to overcome the challenges while operating with helicopter support, they said.

Six workers had earlier been believed to be trapped inside the Chilime tunnel following the recent floods, with rescue teams working to reach the underground powerhouse.

Nepal flood death toll crosses 1,400

The death toll from the devastating flash floods in Nepal crossed 1,400 on Wednesday, with more bodies recovered in the flood-affected districts, while rescuers continued their search for more than 6,000 people who remain missing, officials said.

According to a bulletin issued by the Nepal Police, the death toll has surged to 1,404. While more than 13,700 people have been rescued so far, around 6,150 remain missing, officials said. Flash floods, triggered by an ice-rock avalanche near the Nepal-Tibet border on August 26, devastated towns and villages in northern and central Nepal. The Bhotekoshi River, which flows south from the Himalayan border region, carried the floodwaters downstream, sweeping away homes, vehicles, roads and bridges and damaging hydropower projects.

The floods also killed 43 people on the Chinese side, where more than 500 remain missing, according to Chinese media. In Nepal, 364 bodies were recovered in Chitwan district alone, the highest among all districts, followed by 232 in Nawalparasi East and 222 in Nawalparasi West. The rest were from Nuwakot, Rasuwa, Gorkha, Dhading and Tanahun districts, officials said. Identifying the dead has emerged as a major challenge. Of the total bodies recovered, only 104 have been handed over to families so far after identification, authorities said.

Bodies recovered after being swept downstream have often been severely damaged, decomposed or recovered only in parts, making identification by face, clothing or personal belongings difficult, officials said. Prolonged immersion in water and exposure to mud and debris can destroy identifiable features, while some remains have been fragmented or mixed with other remains.

Building collapse in Gaza kills 21

ASSOCIATED PRESS ■ Cairo

A building housing displaced Palestinian families collapsed in Gaza City on Wednesday, killing at least 21 people, and Saudi Arabia said it intercepted a drone headed toward the holy city of Mecca.

The Gaza City building that collapsed had been partially destroyed in an Israeli strike earlier in the war. At least 21 people, including 11 children, died Wednesday, said Zaher al-Wahidi, a spokesperson for the Gaza Health Ministry.

It was not immediately clear what caused the collapse. At least 14 were injured, al-Wahidi said.

Such incidents have become a major hazard in Gaza, where the majority of buildings have been damaged or destroyed.

There's been no reconstruction work since the ceasefire from nearly a year ago. Israel has said that it won't allow any rebuilding until Hamas disarms.

Oil flows through the Strait of Hormuz have recovered somewhat as tankers risk using a southern route near the coast of Oman with guidance from US forces.

Estimates vary because the ships turn off their location systems, but range from 5 million to 7 million barrels per day on average, compared with 15 million barrels per day before the US-Iran war began on February 28.

Saudi Arabia's East-West pipeline - another key oil route - was hit by a drone attack last week. The damage is expected to take weeks to repair, potentially cutting Saudi exports from the Red Sea port of Yanbu by 2.5 million to 2.7 million barrels per day. Hundreds of oil trucks were stranded in northeastern Syria after demonstrators blocked a major highway near Tal Tamr to protest recent fuel price increases of 30 per cent or more. The government announced increases for gasoline, diesel and other petroleum products Sunday, citing rising global fuel prices as a result of the US-Iran war as well as repairs being done at the Baniyas refinery on Syria's coast.

Syria produces around 100,000 barrels of oil per day, while it needs about 325,000 barrels per day for domestic consumption and relies on imports to make up the difference.

US House concludes debate on Russia sanctions bill, set for vote

SAGAR KULKARNI ■ Washington

The US House of Representatives on Wednesday concluded discussion on the bill that would authorise President Donald Trump to impose sanctions on Russia and steep tariffs on its trading partners in oil and gas, including India and China.

Piloting the Lindsey O Graham Sanctioning Russia and Iran Act of 2026, Congressman Michael McCaul, a Republican from Texas, argued that passing the bill would put maximum pressure on Russian President Vladimir Putin to bring him to the negotiating table to end the war in Ukraine. Opposing the bill, Congressman Gregory Meeks, a Democrat from New York, questioned the rationale for handing over more power to the President to impose sweeping tariffs.

The bill is expected to be put to a vote later

Wednesday. "The President calls himself the 'Tariff Man'... why should we hand over this tariff man more authority," Meeks said.

"It does not give what Ukraine needs at this moment. They need to have the munitions to protect themselves and continue to do what they are doing to preserve their country and democracy," Meeks said.

Meeks had moved amendments to the bill that sought to scrap the entire section authorising the president to impose secondary sanctions on Russia's trading partners.

However, the amendment was defeated at the House Rules Committee. Similarly, the amendments to limit the sanctions to 11 countries including China, India and Türkiye, and to extend USD 15 billion to Ukraine to purchase munitions were also defeated when put to a vote by the House Rules Committee.

The Lindsey O Graham Sanctioning Russia and Iran Act, passed by the US Senate

by an overwhelming 86-11 vote last month, seeks to impose sanctions not only on Russia's leadership and energy sector, but also on the "shadow fleet" of vessels that enable Moscow to evade sanctions on oil deliveries.

It also seeks to authorise Trump to impose stiff tariffs on China, India and other countries to reduce their dependence on Russian oil and gas, as well as additional sanctions on Iran.

Republican Congressman McCaul said the provision for tariffs would give Russia's trading partners a choice to stop supporting Putin's aggression. "Pursuant to the bill's rule, only the top five importers of Russian oil will be tarified. If a country falls off the top five list, the tariffs are removed. It incentivises the race to the bottom," McCaul said. "Putin believes he can keep financing this war indefinitely. We need to change that calculation and bleed his regime economically dry... If Putin is rewarded for invading a sovereign nation... his Army will move into Moldova, Georgia and to the Baltic States," the Republican said.

The Bill cleared a procedural hurdle on Tuesday and advanced to the discussion and voting stage in the House after a 214-211 vote with two Democrats breaking ranks with the party and supporting the Republicans.

The Bill has faced considerable opposition on Capitol Hill since its introduction in April 2025, but got the approval from Trump to move ahead in July, days before the sudden death of Senator Lindsey Graham, the prime mover behind the initiative, on July 11. (PTI)

FIVE KILLED IN ATTACK ON BALOCH TRIBAL ELDER'S CAMP IN PAKISTAN

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Karachi

Five people, including a policeman, were killed when unidentified gunmen carried out a heavy weapons attack on a camp set up by a Baloch tribal elder in Pakistan's Balochistan province on Wednesday, police said.

Mir Shafiq Mengal, who was also a leader of the Pakistan Peoples Party (PPP), was not present at the camp in Khuzdar district when the attack took place, according to Station House Officer (SHO) Abdul Fateh.

The attackers, riding motorcycles, opened fire on a security checkpoint at the camp in the Aranjai area near the Quetta-Karachi highway, he said. The attackers initially killed four security guards and abducted a policeman, who was later shot dead and his body dumped before the assailants fled the area, Fateh said. Law enforcement agencies reached the site following the attack and shifted the bodies and an injured person to the district hospital, officials said. The attack came two months after a similar assault on Mengal's residence in Khuzdar.

Couple win UK legal claim over detention

ADITI KHANNA ■ London

A Muslim man and his Hindu wife who had sought asylum in the UK on the grounds of feared persecution over their interfaith marriage have won a claim over being separated while in detention ahead of being deported to India.

High Court judge Simon Tinkler ruled on Tuesday that the couple may be owed damages from the UK Home Office over a breach of their right to family life under Article 8 of the European Convention on Human Rights (ECHR). While their challenge against being denied asylum was rejected, the London court concluded that there had been a "serious failure" when the married couple were held separately.

"The claimants were a husband and wife. During the period when they were at the Immigration Detention Centre they were accommodated separately in the male and female accommodation areas, respectively," reads Justice Tinkler's judgment.

"They said this was an unlawful interference with their Article 8 rights to family life... The claimants are therefore successful in seeking a declaration under Ground 3 that their separation in detention was an unlawful interference with their Article 8 rights," it reads.

The hearing before Tinkler was not listed to assess the "quantum of damages" and a claim to assess those damages, "if any", will now be transferred to a lower court.

The couple, who are referred only as FNB for the wife and FNN for the husband under the anonymity granted in asylum cases, claimed asylum in the UK on the basis of "feared persecution in India because of their interfaith marriage".

The wife initially arrived in the UK in 2022 on a student visa, with her husband joining her as her dependent. Their claim for asylum was refused by the Home Office in August last year after the "human rights grounds and humanitarian protection claims were certified as 'clearly unfounded'."

"That meant that there was no right of appeal. FNB and FNN were detained on 11 September 2025 pending removal to India. They were housed separately with FNB in a female accommodation area and FNN in a male accommodation area. "The principal reason given was that they were shortly to be removed and, as such, any interference with their Article 8 rights was proportionate," the judgment notes. (PTI)

‘Haifa marks bravery of Indian soldiers in WWI liberation’

HARINDER MISHRA ■ Haifa (Israel)

Israel's northern coastal city of Haifa on Wednesday commemorated the valour and sacrifice of Indian soldiers who liberated it from Ottoman forces during World War I (WWI), with Deputy Mayor Sarit Golan-Steinberg saying their "courage and sacrifice" remain an integral part of the city's history.

The Haifa municipality, in association with the Embassy of India, organised the annual Haifa Day commemoration, highlighting the role played by Indian cavalry regiments in the Battle of Haifa on September 23, 1918. "Haifa has not forgotten the courage and sac-rific of the Indian soldiers," Golan-Steinberg said.

Deputy Mayor Sarit Golan-Steinberg

"Their story remains an integral part of the history of Haifa and an important part of the close ties between Haifa and India," she said, highlighting the annual commemorations and memorials across the city as "symbols of the historic connection". As part of efforts to familiarise younger generations with the episode, students from the Ironi Gimel school attended the ceremony and learnt about the Battle of Haifa, the role of Indian soldiers and the enduring ties between India and Israel.

The municipality has also incorporated the story of Haifa's liberation by Indian soldiers in school history textbooks and organises lectures at schools to make youngsters aware of its "real" history, contrary to the belief that the Britishers liberated the city.

History textbooks in Haifa now teach the story to students from classes 3 to 5, while the Haifa Historical Society has been visiting schools over the past decade to recount the role of Indian soldiers in the liberation of the city.

Haifa Mayor Yona Yahav had last year recalled that he grew up believing that British forces had liberated the city until research by the Historical Society established that Indian troops had played the decisive role.

"In every school we are changing the texts and saying that it wasn't the British but the Indians who liberated us," Yahav had said. Meanwhile, Indian Ambassador to Israel J P Singh paid homage to the fallen soldiers at the Haifa Cemetery by laying a wreath and recalled the exceptional courage of Major Thakur Dalpat Singh, popularly known as the "Hero of Haifa". Singh said the Battle of Haifa remained an "important chapter in the shared history of India and Israel".

Major Dalpat Singh was awarded the Military Cross for his bravery. Accompanied only by his trumpeter, he charged an entrenched machine-gun position, killed its crew and captured the gun, along with the commandant of a regiment and another officer. (PTI)

EU chief calls for stronger, independent Europe amid Russia-Ukraine war

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA ■ Strasbourg (France)

European Commission President Ursula von der Leyen on Wednesday called for a stronger and more independent Europe as she warned of an increasingly hostile world marked by Russia's war in Ukraine, conflicts in West Asia, economic competition with China, rising energy costs and growing threats to European security.

In her annual State of the European Union address to the European Parliament in Strasbourg, the French city that hosts the European Parliament's plenary sessions, von der Leyen also referred to Europe's response to threats to Greenland, without naming US President Donald Trump, whose administration has repeatedly expressed interest in taking control of the Danish autonomous territory. The EU has previously voiced solidarity with Denmark and Greenland and stressed the importance of territorial integrity and sovereignty. She also highlighted the impact of the closure of the Strait of Hormuz on Europe's energy security, saying imported fossil fuels had cost the bloc an additional 90 billion euros since the start of the conflict, without adding any energy supply.

Von der Leyen said Europe must reduce its dependence on imported fossil fuels, China and other external suppliers, while strengthening its defence capabilities, industries and internal market. "The state of our Union is the strongest it has ever been. The state of our Union can also feel as precarious as it has ever been," she told lawmakers.

The EU chief also proposed an "Emergency Security Protocol", modelled on NATO's Article 4, under which a security incident in one EU member state could trigger consultations among all member states to coordinate a response, deter further escalation and mitigate its impact.

Separately, she said the EU should establish a European Security Council involving partners including Canada, Norway, Ukraine and the UK. The annual State of the European Union address is one of the European Union's key political events. The practice began in 2010 and Wednesday's address was von der Leyen's sixth.

European Parliament President Roberta Metsola presided over the debate, while Canadian Prime Minister Mark Carney attended as a guest of honour.

In a major foreign policy announcement, von der Leyen on Wednesday proposed that Canada become the EU's first "associate member", offering a new level of cooperation in areas including defence, energy, critical minerals, batteries, AI, quantum technology and cyber security.

AI consolidated loss widens to ₹22,238 crore in FY26

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

Air India's consolidated loss widened to ₹22,238.23 crore in the fiscal ended March 2026 from ₹10,858.83 crore in the year-ago period amid multiple headwinds.

During the same period, total income declined to ₹71,869.94 crore against ₹78,635.61 crore in 2024-25, according to regulatory filings. The consolidated figures include financials of Air India Express.

Air India has been grappling with multiple challenges, including the fatal AI171 accident in June last year that killed 260 people, as well as geopolitical disruptions, airspace closures, fuel price volatility and various operational issues.

The regulatory filings showed that on a consolidated basis, total expenses jumped to ₹93,733.31 crore in the last financial year from ₹89,317.12 crore a year ago.

In 2025-26, aircraft repair and maintenance costs increased to ₹14,976.45 crore from ₹13,901.82 crore, while fuel expenses fell to ₹26,871.80 crore from ₹29,023.37 crore in the year-ago period. Foreign exchange loss rose to ₹7,388.23 crore in the last fiscal against ₹1,545.01 crore, the filings showed.

In the last fiscal, exceptional items stood at ₹429.05 crore, including an amount related to the fatal AI171 plane crash. According to the filings, the parent company is adequately covered under its aviation hull and liability insurance policies.

"The parent company has received the agreed amount from the insurer towards loss of aircraft and related incidental costs under its hull insurance. The net impact after the derecognition of the aircraft has been presented as an exceptional item," one of the filings said. The filing said that based on the information currently available, the management believes that any financial liability arising from such claims is expected to be substantially covered by the parent company insurance policies.

"Accordingly, no material financial impact on the company's reserves and losses is presently expected..." it added. The financial statements for the 2025-26 fiscal year were approved on June 1, 2026.

On a standalone basis, Air India's loss widened to ₹15,367.75 crore in the fiscal year ended March 2026 from ₹3,975.75 crore in the year-ago period.

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ Guwahati

Jitendra Prasad, VSM, Additional Director General, Border Roads Organisation (Additional DGBR), addressed a special session on Wednesday at the Infra Build Northeast Conference organised by Indian Infrastructure at Guwahati on 16 September 2026.

Speaking on building roads in remote and difficult terrain, Prasad shared field insights from his 36 years of BRO's experience in the most challenging sectors, including the Northeast region.

He further stressed four key themes: Firstly, key challenges during the planning and execution stage: Quality of DPRs, quality assurance, and maintenance post-construction were the challenges highlighted by him, secondly, new techniques & technology: use of LiDAR & drone surveys, AI and digital twins for project management, use of mechanised and automated machines/equipments, new generation pavement material, precast modular construction technology and specialised tech like Rejupave (Bio fuel) for cold climate and high altitude area were highlighted, thirdly bottlenecks and strategies: delays in utility shifting, extreme monsoon and short working season causes hindrances and frequent disruptions. He emphasised that all stakeholders should work in a synchronised manner to overcome them and, fourthly, priorities and upcoming opportunities: prioritising strategic frontier connectivity, development of alternate axes to create redundancy, by-passes to towns & cities, connecting tourism centres. He apprised regarding huge upcoming opportunities like high-speed economic corridors, road connectivity with ASEAN countries, Bridges over the Brahmaputra & other major rivers.

In his closing remarks he said, "Let us build the Infrastructure — that connects the remote villages — connects the border to meet the National Security — Connects the economic hubs to ensure economic growth & more importantly that connects aspiration with opportunities, North East with Nation, India with the World & for the India of 2047."

Govt seeks to end advance tipping on cabs

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

The Government has ordered cab aggregators to stop providing advance tipping options even before booking a ride as the practice is misleading and unfair, Consumer Affairs Secretary Nidhi Khare said on Wednesday. The secretary's comment comes a day after the Central Consumer Protection Authority (CCPA) slapped a Rs 10 lakh penalty on ride-hailing platform Rapido for various unfair business practices, including advance tipping for drivers.

The authority is currently examining the business practices of Uber and Ola.

Responding to queries related to taxi ride aggregators, Khare on Wednesday said the National Consumer Helpline has received a lot of complaints against them. "Consumers were) basically alleging that actually even before taking the ride, there was a concept of introducing an advance tip," she said, adding that consumers were being cajoled that unless they pay the tip, they will not get the ride.

"Now this we found to be misleading and also an unfair trade practice. And after detailed investigation into the matter and also after hearing, we have ordered discontinuation of this kind of you know built-in mechanism," said the secretary, who also heads the CCPA.

Customs should accelerate AI use: CBIC chief

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE
■ New Delhi

The Customs department should accelerate the deployment of artificial intelligence, machine learning, and real-time analytics to reduce physical interface with trusted taxpayers, Central Board of Indirect Taxes and Customs (CBIC) chairman Vivek Chaturvedi said on Wednesday.

Outlining 5 pillars for the Customs department to follow over the next decade, Chaturvedi said the CBIC intends to create a "unified, trusted taxpayer ecosystem" which records consistent compliance by businesses in GST, customs and other indirect tax payments. This would bring synergy across the indirect tax division.

CBIC chairman Vivek Chaturvedi

The CBIC chief also asked the customs department to handhold MSMEs and conduct outreach programmes so that small businesses can reap the benefits of customs deferred duty payment schemes like Eligible Manufacturer Importer (EMI) and also the Authorised Economic Operator (AEO).

Chaturvedi said technology should act as a "great enabler" for customs and the ambition should be to move towards a near-touchless, near-paperless experience for businesses registered as AEOs. Currently, there are over 6,000 entities, including importers, exporters, logistics providers, custodians or terminal operators, custom brokers and warehouse operators with AEO certificates.

AEO is a voluntary compliance programme, which enables Indian Customs to enhance and streamline cargo security through close cooperation with the principal stakeholders of the international supply chain.

Asian Games boxing medallists to get direct Worlds entry

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
■ New Delhi

Indian boxers finishing on the podium at the upcoming Asian Games will directly qualify for next year's World Boxing Championships, which is the first Olympic qualifier for the 2028 Los Angeles Games, the BFI announced on Wednesday.

The Boxing Federation of India (BFI) has released an expansive selection policy focused on having the maximum number of boxers for the LA Games. The policy lays down a four-stage pathway based on the qualification system developed by World Boxing and approved by the International Olympic Committee (IOC), the BFI said in a media release.

According to the World Boxing criteria, the 2027 World Boxing Championships will be the first qualifying event, followed by the Asian Qualifier in China and two World Qualifying Tournaments in 2028.

"Asian Games 2026 medallists will be selected as the main entry in their respective weight categories. The gold medallists of the 10th Elite National Championships shall serve as the reserve entry in that weight category," said the circular issued by BFI this week.

India's Lovlina Borgohain

According to the policy, for weight categories in which India has not won a medal at the Asian Games as well as for LA 2028 Olympic weight categories that were not part of the Asian Games, the gold medallist of the 10th Elite National Championships shall be selected as the main entry. Boxers who reach the quota bout round but fail to win a quota place at the World Championships will receive direct entry to the Asian Qualifiers.

The remaining slots will be filled through a ranking selection trial among the national campers, after the boxers have entered the national coaching camp through the dedicated pathways.

A similar process will be followed for the two World Qualifying Tournaments in 2028, to be held in Italy and Hungary. "This policy has been framed to give our boxers a clear and structured route to Los Angeles 2028, built around consistent performance at the National Coaching Camp and at World Boxing's qualification events," said BFI President Ajay Singh.

The national coaching camp will start with the medallist of 10th Elite National Championships, Asian Games medallists and any wild cards to be selected by the BFI selection committee, as per the provisions mentioned in the policy.

For the non-Olympic weight categories, the gold medallist of the National Championships will serve as main entry to the 2027 World Championships, while the silver medallist will serve as the reserve.

Parveen returns to Asian Games with lost Hangzhou medal on her mind

APARAJITA UPADHYAY
■ New Delhi

Boxer Parveen Hooda is heading back to the Asian Games chasing a medal she once won but can no longer call her own, hoping to replace the bronze taken away from her due to a ban with another podium finish.

The Indian pugilist won that bronze in the 57kg category in the Hangzhou Games in 2023, along with an Olympic quota for India, only to lose both after being handed a suspension.

Since then, Parveen's comeback has involved one adjustment after another -- a new weight class, a coupe of injuries, another move up and a quarterfinal exit at the Commonwealth Games.

"Of course, yes," the 26-year-old told PTI when asked if she has unfinished business at the Asian Games. The bronze has been gone for nearly two years. The memory of winning it has not. Neither has the feeling of what followed.

Parveen was suspended by WADA for 22 months in May 2024 after three whereabouts failures within a 12-month period. The suspension, later backdated by 14 months, cost her the Asian Games medal and the Olympic quota she had secured for India.

Her return has since been less about picking up where she left off and more about finding a new way forward.

When she came back to international boxing in November last year, the 57kg category was no longer hers to reclaim. (PTI)

CM Rekha Gupta unveils finisher medal for Vedanta Delhi Half Marathon 2026

PIONEER NEWS SERVICE ■ New Delhi

Delhi Chief Minister Rekha Gupta on Wednesday unveiled the finisher medal for the Vedanta Delhi Half Marathon 2026 at an event held at the Delhi Secretariat. The Vedanta Delhi Half Marathon will be held on October 18. The event aims to promote fitness, a healthy lifestyle, sportsmanship and social participation. The half marathon will start from Jawaharlal Nehru Stadium, cover a long route and finish at the same venue. It will also feature categories such as the Half Marathon, Open 10K, Great Delhi Run, Senior Citizens' Run and Champions with Disability Run. Delhi Cabinet Minister Kapil Mishra and other dignitaries were also present on the occasion.

Speaking on the occasion, Chief Minister Rekha Gupta said the half marathon held in Delhi is no longer just a sporting competition, but has become a celebration of the city's energy, diversity and public participation. She said that when we talk about 'Fit India' and 'Fit Delhi', such public-participation events become extremely important. Welcoming the Vedanta Group, all partners, volunteers, NGOs and organisations associated with the event, she said the event not only encourages people to adopt a healthy and active lifestyle but also brings society together.

Enthusiasm continues to grow after participation of over 40,000 last year.

The Chief Minister said more than 40,000 people had participated in the event last year and there is considerable enthusiasm among Delhi residents this year as well. Participation by people from different age groups and social backgrounds makes the marathon a truly public-participation event. The participation of different groups, along with participants with disabilities, makes the event particularly special.

CM Rekha Gupta described the growing participation of women in the marathon as particularly encouraging. She said the large number of women coming forward to participate in fitness and running events reflects growing awareness about a healthy and active lifestyle. The increasing participation of women and youth is a sign of positive change in society, and such platforms encourage them to focus on health and confidence and to participate actively in public life.

The Chief Minister urged the Vedanta Group to undertake major social development projects for needy and underprivileged sections in Delhi as well. She said that, in the spirit of 'charity begins from home', work should be undertaken for those sections in Delhi that need it the most. The Delhi Government is ready to extend its cooperation to ensure that the benefits of Vedanta Group's social initiatives reach underprivileged sections in Delhi. The Chief Minister said the Delhi Government would extend all possible support for the Vedanta Delhi Half Marathon. The Metro, Tourism Department and other concerned agencies will provide the necessary support for arrangements related to the event.

The Chief Minister said the 'Fit India' message given by Prime Minister Narendra Modi aims to inspire people across the country to adopt a healthy and active lifestyle. Events such as the Vedanta Delhi Half Marathon take this message forward through public participation. She appealed to the people of Delhi to join the event and see it not merely as a race, but as a commitment to a healthy lifestyle, community participation and a Fit Delhi.

On this occasion, Tourism Minister Kapil Mishra said that the Delhi Half Marathon has now become an important brand event in Delhi's annual calendar. People from all over the world come to participate in this event, and participants from different states across the country also reach Delhi. Such major events promote tourism along with branding Delhi. The Delhi government is fully committed to promoting live events, concerts, and sporting events, and new policies are also being introduced in this direction. He urged everyone to actively participate in the Delhi Half Marathon on October 18 and contribute to fulfilling the resolve to develop Delhi as a major tourism destination.

I am not robot: Samson about competition for top-order

AMIT KUMAR DAS
■ New Delhi

Sanju Samson has learnt to deal with the “outside noise” surrounding his career graph but he admits that the intense competition for India’s top-order spots can be challenging even though players have little or no time to sulk over selection decisions.

Samson smashed a brutal 57 off 22 balls in India’s series-clinching seven-wicket win over Afghanistan in the second T20 here on Tuesday. But he is well aware that the conversations about the trajectory of his career would not end.

“I try to turn off the Wi-Fi. But sometimes the Wi-Fi turns on and I see the comments of the senior players. It’s very normal. I think it’s their choice,” Samson said in the post-match media interaction.

“Sometimes it’s their frame of mind. It’s totally up to them. They can use a positive frame of sentences or they can use a negative frame of sentences. So, I think I have been mature enough and experienced enough how to handle it.

“At first, it feels bad. I am not a machine. I am not a robot. It definitely matters. And you kind of get a bit affected. But then you try to talk to yourself and tell that what you are and what you need to do.”

The wicketkeeper-batter said the scrutiny surrounding Indian cricketers can be difficult to escape but stressed the importance of maintaining clarity about one’s approach.

“I think definitely, yes, outside noise do affect the cricketers in India. But you need to be very clear that what is your mindset... How do you want to prepare... How do you want to play...”

“If I had paid attention to those things, I wouldn’t have been able to bat like this. I would have thought 10 times before batting that if I get out, then there will be a Wi-Fi problem.

“So, I said it’s okay. My international career has been very good. The World Cup has also helped a lot. So whatever pressure you are in, you kind of realize that what type of a player you are and you try to go out there and express yourself, keeping your team in front.”

There is a lot of pressure on Samson with 15-year-old Vaibhav Sooryavanshi breathing down his neck for the opening slot.

Samson was replaced by Sooryavanshi after low scores in Ireland and the early matches in England.

However, with the young batter producing a string of low scores in three matches, Samson returned in the fifth game.

“It’s not easy to run an Indian team. You see, a 15-year-old boy has scored 700-800 runs. My tournament (World Cup) was before that. After that he performed so well and he had to come in in some or the other manner,” said Samson.

“I didn’t perform in 2-3 games and he was in form and we wanted to win games in that series. It was very understandable from a leadership kind of a thing. I have been in this situation and I have taken tough calls as a captain in the IPL franchise. So, I understand that. “That’s where the communication comes in. GG Bhai’s communication was very important. There was a lot of communication in the middle of the England series as well. He spoke to me a lot before this series as well. It’s not easy to take hard decisions, it’s very easy to take popular decisions. But as a leadership group, we have been taking some really tough calls keeping the team in front.”
