Modern gym inaugurated in Adyar zone

Following the inauguration, Health Minister Ma. Subramanian tries out the fitness equipment

The Minister for Health and Family Welfare Ma. Subramanian inaugurated a new modern gymnasium in Sastri Nagar, Adyar Zone on February 21, 2026.

Built at a cost of ₹33.50 lakh from Greater Chennai Corporation's capital fund, the modern gymnasium is located Ward 169, Appadurai Nagar, Shastri Nagar Main Road, Adyar Zone, says a press release from Greater Chennai Corporation.

The modern gymnasium equipped is with advanced fitness equipment, the release adds.

The Minister also undertook a fitness activity after inaugurating the facility.

Earlier, he inaugurated and inspected the renovated children's centre located on the ground floor of the same building, the release adds.

The event was attended by Deputy Mayor Mu. Mahesh Kumar; Zonal Officer Senthil Kumar, Superintending Engineer Murali, and several other officials.

Envisioning a future-ready roadmap for Chennai

Citizen-driven insights took centre stage at the Super Chennai Conclave 2026; a series of panel discussions marked the event

The first Super Chennai Conclave 2026 brought together policymakers, industry leaders, entrepreneurs and urban visionaries to translate citizen-driven ideas into an actionable roadmap to strengthen infrastructure, safeguard the coastline, and drive inclusive urban transformation.

Speaking at the inaugural address, Dr. J. Radhakrishnan, Additional Chief Secretary to Government of Tamil Nadu; Chairman and Managing director - TANGEDCO, said: "Sustainability must guide how we design transport, strengthen public health and create economic opportunity. Chennai must lead not by comparison, but by competing confidently on the global stage. That requires alignment between government, private enterprise and citizens. When we move together, collective aspiration becomes measurable progress – and that is how we build a benchmark coastal capital for the future."

Ranjeeth Rathod, Managing Director, Super Chennai, said, "The conclave represents the transition from consultation to implementation. Over the past several months, we have engaged with citizens and domain experts to shape a framework that reflects shared priorities for the city's growth. The discussions here reaffirmed the alignment between policy leadership and industry stakeholders. The focus now is on structured follow-through so that the recommendations translate into measurable progress for Chennai."

T R B Rajaa, Minister for Industries, Investment Promotion and Commerce, Government of Tamil Nadu, took part in the conclave. The event saw powerful participation from leaders across sectors, including Arun Vasu, Managing Director, TT Group; Ashwini Asokan, Founder & CEO, Vue.ai (Mad Street Den Inc.); Hari Ganapathy, Co-Founder, Pickyourtrail; Mohamed Ali, President, CREDAI Chennai; Ramkumar Ramamoorthy, Co-Founder & Partner, Catalincs Partners; Raj Cherubal, Executive Director, Chennai Smart City Limited; Sandeep Nanduri, Managing Director, TIDCO; Soundarya Rajesh, Managing Director, Avtar Group; Sivarajah Ramanathan, Mission Director & CEO, Startup TN; Vikram Cotah, CEO, GRT Hotels; and Vishesh Rajaram, Co-Founder & Managing Partner, Speciale Invest; and filmmaker Gautham Vasudev Menon.

The day saw discussions centered on key pillars critical to Chennai's transformation – investment and industry growth, urban infrastructure, tourism, technology and innovation, entrepreneurship, sustainability, and inclusive development. The conclave witnessed the participation of over 200 delegates, including policymakers, industry leaders, entrepreneurs, journalists and civic stakeholders, reflecting strong cross-sector commitment to shaping the city's future.

A dangerously elevated manhole in Medavakkam

It is located on the arterial
Tambaram Velachery Main Road

R. RAVINDRAN

There is a plethora of challenges for motorists to tackle on the roads without a mound of manhole entering the grim-framed picture.

On the section of Tambaram Velachery Main Road that meets Semmozhi Salai in Medavakkam, motorists have to deal with this additional challenge: a manhole that is too high for their safety.

Poor lighting on this section of Tambaram Velachery Main Road magnifies the danger from this monstrously elevated manhole. The traffic police personnel regulating this section try to defuse the threat in their own jagged way, making use of a prop at their disposal. They place a barricade on the manhole to warn motorists about its presence.

'Cloth bag vending machine is empty'

I came across a cloth-vending machine installed by the Greater Chennai Corporation at Elliotts Beach in Besant Nagar recently. But to my disappointment I noticed that for three consecutive days, during my visits to the beach, the display board at the machine was showing "stock empty."

The cloth vending machine was installed as part of Meendum Manjappai campaign by the Tamil Nadu Government, which aims to promote the use of environment-friendly cloth bags and refrain from using the non-decomposable plastic bags.

I request the officials concerned to ensure that the machine is well-stocked.

The field sport You.Fo is regularly played by teachers at American International School in Taramani

LIFFY THOMAS

A ring-throwing stick-and-catch field sport, born thousands of miles away in Netherlands as late as 2012 and still obscure, is being played by the teachers at American International School in Taramani. And now students of a city college are at it. Students of Sri Kanyaka Parameswari Arts and Science College for Women got introduced to the new sport recently. You.Fo, as the sport is called, is a mixed-gender, non-contact sport played by throwing an aerodynamic ring with specially designed sticks. Combining the features of lacrosse and ultimate frisbee, the sport can be played on the beach sands, playground or any open space measuring 10 by 30 metres.

Cyril Veronis, media and production specialist at American International School, is the ambassador of this sport in Chennai. He got fascinated with this innovative sport. "Most Wednesdays, we teachers would play this sport that was introduced to us by Giovanni Bello, former aquatics director, who had picked it up from the founders directly," says Cyril.

The fitness enthusiast who plays soccer and is regular with every marathon loved You.Fo for the adrenaline rush it brought.

"Something struck me about this sport. May be the speed as I have taken part in more than 50 marathons and cycling events so far and the 10-minute format was easy and fun," says Cyril who is in his late 20s.

He began researching and developed a keen interest in the game, following which Giovanni connected him to the founders. Today, Cyril is playing the role of ambassador and India lead to promote the sport.

"Curious how the game is played competitively, I enrolled for the World Cup last year under the mixed nationality team. This time, the World Cup is scheduled to be held in China in July 2026 and I am keen that India take part in it. The best part is that the sport can be played with a minimum team size of three and multiple teams can represent a country," says Cyril, who studied mechanical engineering before stints in information technology and graphic designing.

In January, he conducted a boot camp along with Pace & Blaze running club at Ampa Skywalk to promote the sport. "My focus is in targeting schools and colleges as this sport was developed in co-creation with PE teachers and students, so that we can have multiple teams by the time this sport becomes a part of the Olympics," he says.

The equipment including the ring and the sticks are manufactured in India and Cyril is working to see how these kits can be made more affordable for all.

As when frisbee was in its early years, You.Fo needs sponsors and above all a team that will compete in the real spirit of the sport.

Until then Cyril is happy to be invited to other institutions to introduce the game and its techniques and find like-minded students keen on taking up the sport. "It is a growing game and the organisers have been tweaking it to make it more acceptable for all age groups," says Cyril, a resident of Choolaimedu.

To know more about the sport, visit Instagram page youfoindiaofficial or call 9566093802

The origins

Developed by Bas Ruysenaars and Giel Bos, You.Fo is one of the fastest-growing sports worldwide, being played in more than 30 countries. You.Fo has been recognised for its innovative character, winning the Dutch National Sports Innovation Award and the PROFIT European Award for Innovation, says a note on the website. The first World Cup was held in the Netherlands in 2023 (with Japan finishing first, Canada second and the Netherlands third). YOU.FO engages teams to move, play and compete together with people across backgrounds, ages and abilities.

Rich medal haul for Boccia players from TN

K. KEERTHIVASAN

First things first. Boccia is a precision ball sport, the term derived from the Latin word for "boss". It is played by athletes with severe physical disabilities. Recently in Ahmedabad, Boccia Sports Federation of India organised the 10th Senior National Championship in which the Tamil Nadu team consisting of 15 Boccia players bagged four medals under different categories:

Individual Match: S. Dinesh Kumar – silver medal under BC-1 male individual category; M. Mahalakshmi – gold under BC-2 female individual category; and M. Anusuya – bronze under BC-3 female individual category

Pair Match: M. Anusuya & K. Umayya Saravanan – bronze under Mixed BC3 Pairs category.

RASANAI
Rasanai - From the streets of the South

RASANAI, BESANT NAGAR:
South Indian Street Flavours By The Sea

Besant Nagar remains a go-to destination for Chennai residents and visitors, with crowds gathering along the shoreline, cafés and dessert spots each evening. People come here to stroll, spend time and eat well. Within this familiar rhythm, Rasanai stands out for its vantage point overlooking the sea, offering a different kind of dining pause amid the bustle.

The restaurant focuses on South Indian street food, drawing from small mess kitchens, roadside stalls, toddy shops and hole-in-the-wall eateries across Tamil Nadu, Kerala, Karnataka, Andhra Pradesh and Telangana. These are flavours shaped by repetition and local loyalty. By bringing together select regional specialities under one roof, Rasanai allows diners to experience a broad slice of South Indian street cooking without travelling across states.

With the sea in view and an easy, open setting, the space offers beachgoers an alternative to the usual café circuit. Paired with well-crafted mocktails, the experience encourages guests to linger a little longer.

In a neighbourhood defined by movement and variety, Rasanai introduces a more rooted, street-led perspective on South Indian cuisine, all within sight of the Besant Nagar shore.

A ten-member team from FOMRRA presented its best practices at the India Civic Summit held at IITM Research Park

Fixes for OMR's pain points

SRIDEVI KOTHANDAPANI

The Third India Civic Summit, hosted by Oorvani Foundation on February 14 at IITM Research Park, marked a transformative moment for the Federation of OMR Resident Associations (FOMRRA).

Elevating from mere grievance reporters to strategic urban partners, FOMRRA showcased data-driven solutions amid politicians, councillors, urban planners, NGOs, activists, civic groups and research organisations.

Unlike typical Resident Welfare Associations (RWAs) stuck in complaint mode, FOMRRA highlighted its water and transportation studies backed by surveys and actionable plans. High-level interactions shifted the conversation from "What can the government do for us?" to "How can we solve this together?" – a collaborative problem-solving with decision-makers and civic enterprises.

A ten-member team from FOMRRA attended the summit showcasing the team's recent Last-Mile Mobility audit, the water security management systems at Central Park South, the numerous BookSwaps and literary events among others.

The interactions sparked numerous sustainable infrastructure collaborations. Hats off to the Oorvani team for curating a solution-focussed network that fostered real action plans.

This event cements FOMRRA's model of blending activism, research and partnerships, as a blueprint for Chennai RWAs.

Ferruginous Pochard sighted near Chennai

A lone Ferruginous Pochard was found among a flock of Common Pochards at Amoor lake near Sirudavoor

Two Common Pochards and (below) a Ferruginous Pochard at Amoor lake on February 14. Photos: Saravana Manian and Sundaravel Palanivel

PRINCE FREDERICK

A sleepy town can be thrust into the limelight when a motorcade of VIPs roll into it. On the trail of these hallowed wheels, might roll wheels of a lesser god. These are the star-struck seeking a glimpse of the glitterati, the shimmering specks of their stardust flying about in the air. Sometimes, just sometimes, a lone VVIP would have slipped in unnoticed among the motorcade, their identity coming to light only when the motorcade screeches to its final halt at the town.

This scenario is playing out at Amoor lake off Tiruporur-Thirukazhukundram Road. Just a couple of kilometres from Sirudavoor lake, Amoor lake became a destination of choice for birders over the last couple of weeks. The VIPs that have been pulling in wheels from Chennai are a sizeable flock of Common Pochards, a rarity in these parts. The lone VVIP that has heightened the level of interest in this waterbody is a lone Ferruginous Duck (also known as Ferruginous Pochard) that has tagged along with the flock of Common Pochards. A Ferruginous Pochard is more than a rarity anywhere near Chennai, let alone within it.

On February 14, three birders from Chennai, Sundaravel Palanivel, Sivakumar Shanmugasundaram and Saravana Manian spotted a female Ferruginous Pochard when they were training their cameras with those incredibly elongated lenses on the flock of Common Pochards. They did not conclude the odd one out was a Ferruginous Pochard straightaway. They posted images of the different-looking duck in bird identification forums, a firm word was out that the bird in question was indeed a Ferruginous Pochard. The record was also up on eBird.

Where the Common Pochard (Aythya ferina) and the Ferruginous Pochard (Aythya nyroca) are concerned, the females can get mixed up in a birder's head, the female of one species being mistaken for the female of the other. This confusion crops up often as the Common Pochards and the Ferruginous Pochards are both diving ducks that are hugely affable towards each other, hanging out together even when they have flown to their winter destination. And they are also known to take this friendship sometimes to a different level, in other words, ending up as more-than-just-friends. And that takes you to a whole new category called Ferruginous Pochard (Hybrid).

When the Pochard literates in these bird identification groups were peering at the images of the lone Ferruginous Pochard from Amoor lake, they had to consider the possibility of it being a hybrid. That possibility was ruled out without an iota of lingering doubt. The verdict is: Ferruginous Pochard female. And that makes it the second time that this species has been sighted in the Chennai Metropolitan Area; the earlier sighting had happened at the Pallikaranai marsh in 2023, that record is also up on eBird.
