'Safety compromised at school zone in Otteri'

T. GUNASEELAN

The stretch of New Ferrance Road where a Greater Chennai Corporation-run school and an Anganwadi school are located is not pedestrian-friendly. Vehicles are parked along the walls of the two schools. Children have to walk in the middle of the carriageway.

One of the images shows alcohol bottles found around the compound wall of the Anganwadi school. This might be a shocker to the outside world, but does not surprise those familiar with this stretch. It is a common sight. Further, garbage bins are located a few metres from the school.

'Passengers irked by delayed arrival of trains'

CHARU NETHRA. M

The frequency of suburban electric trains on the Chennai Central-Arakkonam route during non-peak hours as per schedule is 20 minutes. But we notice the schedule is not being followed and their arrival is delayed by 10 to 20 minutes. Passengers have to wait for half-an-hour to 40 minutes, their schedules affected, particularly where passengers travelling to other cities are concerned, as they often miss their connecting express trains.

Moreover, no prior announcements are made at railway stations regarding these delays, particularly at Avadi railway station. Repeated complaints to Avadi railway station master have been of no avail.

I request the Southern Railway administration to look into this issue.

The construction of a vehicular subway at Ambattur railway station is making slow progress. The construction work entailed demolition of the foot overbridge, which has resulted in commuters walking across the railway tracks inviting trouble. High-speed express trains cross the station, making these track-crossing ominous.

The authorities concerned should expedite the work.

'Dumping ground at Koladi Road gets out of hand'

Cows feed on the garbage which contains microplastics, medical waste and raw meat

S.A. RIZWAN

A stretch of Koladi Road in Thiruverkadu near an authorised legacy dumping ground seems to be an extension of the garbage disposal zone.

The waste spills on to the road, making the road difficult to use for pedestrians and motorists.

Further, the place stinks and attracts stray animals and raises the risk of accidents.

This road is frequented by the public because it provides connectivity to Poonamallee-High Road. MTC buses also operate on this road. There is a bus stop close to the dumping ground. Besides, a vegetable market is in the vicinity. Considering the urbanisation and the population around the dumping ground, it needs to be decommissioned. This is a serious health hazard because it offers a conducive breeding ground for vector-borne diseases. Next, the legacy waste must have contaminated the ground water in the region. Yet another grave concern is toxins entering the food chain. Because cattle owners who sell milk allow their cows to feed on this waste which contains microplastics, medical waste, raw meat from slaughter houses and harmful microorganisms. Ingestion of such harmful substances by cattle and their milk when consumed by humans can cause serious health issues. Hence, the authorities concerned should address this issue.

LIFFY THOMAS

A ring-throwing stick-and-catch field sport, born thousands of miles away in Netherlands as late as 2012 and still obscure, is being played by the teachers at American International School in Taramani. And now students of a city college are at it. Students of Sri Kanyaka Parameswari Arts and Science College for Women got introduced to the new sport recently. You.Fo, as the sport is called, is a mixed-gender, non-contact sport played by throwing an aerodynamic ring with specially designed sticks. Combining the features of lacrosse and ultimate frisbee, the sport can be played on the beach sands, playground or any open space measuring 10 by 30 metres.

Cyril Veronis, media and production specialist at American International School, is the ambassador of this sport in Chennai. He got fascinated with this innovative sport. "Most Wednesdays, we teachers would play this sport that was introduced to us by Giovanni Bello, former aquatics director, who had picked it up from the founders directly," says Cyril.

The fitness enthusiast who plays soccer and is regular with every marathon loved You.Fo for the adrenaline rush it brought.

"Something struck me about this sport. May be the speed as I have taken part in more than 50 marathons and cycling events so far and the 10-minute format was easy and fun," says Cyril who is in his late 20s.

He began researching and developed a keen interest in the game, following which Giovanni connected him to the founders. Today, Cyril is playing the role of ambassador and India lead to promote the sport.

"Curious how the game is played competitively, I enrolled for the World Cup last year under the mixed nationality team. This time, the World Cup is scheduled to be held in China in July 2026 and I am keen that India take part in it. The best part is that the

The origins

Developed by Bas Ruysenaars and Giel Bos, You.Fo is one of the fastest-growing sports worldwide, being played in more than 30 countries. You.Fo has been recognised for its innovative character, winning the Dutch National Sports Innovation Award and the PROFIT European Award for Innovation, says a note on the website. The first World Cup was held in the Netherlands in 2023 (with Japan finishing first, Canada second and the Netherlands third). YOU.FO engages teams to move, play and compete together with people across backgrounds, ages and abilities.

sport can be played with a minimum team size of three and multiple teams can represent a country," says Cyril, who studied mechanical engineering before stints in information technology and graphic designing.

In January, he conducted a boot camp along with Pace & Blaze running club at Ampa Skywalk to promote the sport. "My focus is in targeting schools and colleges as this sport was developed in co-creation with PE teachers and students, so that we can have multiple teams by the time this sport becomes a part of the Olympics," he says.

The equipment including the ring and the sticks are manufactured in India and Cyril is working to see how these kits can be made more affordable for all.

As when frisbee was in its early years, You.Fo needs sponsors and above all a team that will compete in the real spirit of the sport.

Until then Cyril is happy to be invited to other institutions to introduce the game and its techniques and find like-minded students keen on taking up the sport. "It is a growing game and the organisers have been tweaking it to make it more acceptable for all age groups," says Cyril, a resident of Choolaimedu.

Rich medal haul for Boccia players from TN

K. KEERTHIVASAN

First things first. Boccia is a precision ball sport, the term derived from the Latin word for "boss". It is played by athletes with severe physical disabilities. Recently in Ahmedabad, Boccia Sports Federation of India organised the 10th Senior National Championship in which the Tamil Nadu team consisting of 15 Boccia players bagged four medals under different categories:

Individual Match: S. Dinesh Kumar – silver medal under BC-1 male individual category; M. Mahalakshmi – gold under BC-2 female individual category; and M. Anusuya – bronze under BC-3 female individual category Pair Match: M. Anusuya & K. Umayya Saravanan – bronze under Mixed BC3 Pairs category.

‘Restore late night bus service to Asarkhanpet from Poonamalle’

P. SENTHIL KUMAR

It is more than a year since Metropolitan Transport Corporation withdrew its late night service 54 (Poonamalle - Asarkhanpet in Alandur via Iyyppanthangal, Porur, Ramapuram, and Nandambakkam).

A late night service of MTC is operated from 10 at night to five in the morning.

It is more than a year since Metropolitan Transport Corporation withdrew its late night service 54 (Poonamalle - Asarkhanpet in Alandur via Iyyppanthangal, Porur, Ramapuram, and Nandambakkam).

A late night service of MTC is operated from 10 at night to five in the morning.

It may be noted that Poonamalle is currently the terminal point for west-bound and north-west-bound long distance buses to destinations such as Salem, Vellore, Kanchipuram, Bangalore, and Tirupati.

It is the passengers of these long-distance buses who arrive at Poonamalle during the wee hours rely on this late night MTC service.

However, other late night services operated from Poonamalle are still in operation. These include: 101 Poonamalle-Thiruvottiyur via Koyambedu, Aminjikarai, and Boradway and 66P Poonamalle - Kilambakkam via Kundrathur, Pallavaram, and Tamabaram.

The decades-old late night service, 54 (Poonamalle - Asarkhanpet), is very important because Asarkhanpet is close to Guindy, another important transit point in Chennai from where adequate number of buses to various parts of the city are operated even during the wee hours.

Commuters residing around Guindy such as Jhafferkhanpet, Ekkatuthangal, Ashok Nagar, Saidapet, and Adyar also rely on this 54 (Poonamalle - Asarkhanpet) late night service. Also, sub-urban electric train services and metro train services to different corners of the city are available from Guindy and nearby Alandur.

Further, a new bus terminus at Kuthambakkam meant for handling west-bound and north-west-bound long-distance buses is at the final stage of construction. It will be inaugurated sooner or later. Once it becomes operational, as per plan, long-distance buses currently handled by Poonamalle terminus will be operated by Kuthambakkam terminus. In that case, the late night service 54 will become all the more necessary. At present, Alandur is 15 km from Poonamalle. When the bus terminus shifts to Kuthambakkam, people will have to travel a longer distance, that is 20 km, to reach Asarkhanpet.

Due to the lack of this service, the segment of the public largely relying on public modes of transport are at the mercy of taxi and autorickshaw drivers.

Hence, Metropolitan Transport Corporation should restore the service.

On February 20, electric train commuters were put to hardship due to a massive reduction in services, following redevelopment works at Chennai Egmore railway Station aimed at improving passenger amenities and infrastructure.

The work includes foundation work for track crossing structures at platforms 10 and 11, the parcel Foot Over Bridge (FOB), the arrival FOB, and the departure concourse.

The execution of these works requires the deployment of heavy machinery, cranes and other equipment. Given the magnitude of the work and the continuous day-and-night operations, a minimum block period of 45 days is essential, said a release.

Temporary changes have been made to the train schedule on the Chennai Beach-Chengalpattu section until April 5.

The railway has requested the Metropolitan Transport Corporation (MTC) and Chennai Metro Rail Limited to operate shuttle bus services between Chetpet and Chennai Beach Railway Station and to increase Metro train frequency to facilitate office-goers, students, and the general public.

Envisioning a future-ready roadmap for Chennai

The first Super Chennai Conclave 2026 brought together policymakers, industry leaders, entrepreneurs and urban visionaries to translate citizen-driven ideas into an actionable roadmap to strengthen infrastructure, safeguard the coastline, and drive inclusive urban transformation.

Speaking at the inaugural address, Dr. J. Radhakrishnan, Additional Chief Secretary to Government of Tamil Nadu; Chairman and Managing director - TANGEDCO, said: “Sustainability must guide how we design transport, strengthen public health and create economic opportunity. Chennai must lead not by comparison, but by competing confidently on the global stage. That requires alignment between government, private enterprise and citizens. When we move together, collective aspiration becomes measurable progress – and that is how we build a benchmark coastal capital for the future.”

Ranjeeth Rathod, Managing Director, Super Chennai, said, “The conclave represents the transition from consultation to implementation. Over the past several months, we have engaged with citizens and domain experts to shape a framework that reflects shared priorities for the city’s growth. The discussions here reaffirmed the alignment between policy leadership and industry stakeholders. The focus now is on structured follow-through so that the recommendations translate into measurable progress for Chennai.”

T R B Rajaa, Minister for Industries, Investment Promotion and Commerce, Government of Tamil Nadu, took part in the conclave. The event saw powerful participation from leaders across sectors, including Arun Vasu, Managing Director, TT Group; Ashwini Asokan, Founder & CEO, Vue.ai (Mad Street Den Inc.); Hari Ganapathy, Co-Founder, Pickyour-trail; Mohamed Ali, President, CREDAI Chennai; Ramkumar Ramamoorthy, Co-Founder & Partner, Catalinca Partners; Raj Cherubal, Executive Director, Chennai Smart City Limited; Sandeep Nanduri, Managing Director, TIDCO; Soundarya Rajesh, Managing Director, Avtar Group; Sivarajah Ramanathan, Mission Director & CEO, Startup TN; Vikram Cotah, CEO, GRT Hotels; and Vishesh Rajaram, Co-Founder & Managing Partner, Speciale Invest; and filmmaker Gautham Vasudev Menon.

The day saw discussions centered on key pillars critical to Chennai’s transformation – investment and industry growth, urban infrastructure, tourism, technology and innovation, entrepreneurship, sustainability, and inclusive development. The conclave witnessed the participation of over 200 delegates, including policymakers, industry leaders, entrepreneurs, journalists and civic stakeholders, reflecting strong cross-sector commitment to shaping the city’s future.

Promoting a rare category of student volunteers

With the Board exam season having begun, the need to create a bank of scribes is again being keenly felt

A student appearing for an exam with the help of a scribe. Image used for representational purpose only. PHOTO: PERIASAMY M

LIFFY THOMAS

Sharon Rachel Aby's experience of appearing for Class X CBSE Board examinations last year was largely stress-free for two reasons. One, she is academically bright; and two, her school found a junior who was ready to scribe for her in all the six subjects she was taking exams in.

Sharon has Spinal Muscular Atrophy, a rare degenerative disease that restricts hand movement, which means she debilitatingly slow-paced in her writing speed. At Spartan Exclusive School in Mogappair where she studied, she found Akshith of Class IX to scribe for her, and ensured they both had two to three sessions prior to the examinations to understand each other. Sharon scored 92.2% with a centum in French.

For some, finding a scribe can be a straightforward process, but for many students with disabilities it is a stressful experience, often one that causes them to depend on NGOs and personal networks.

School boards such as Indian Certificate of Secondary Education and Central Board of Secondary Education insist that the candidate can use their discretion in either opting for their own scribe/ reader or requesting the examination centre to provide one. They also insist that the qualification of the scribe be one step below the qualification of the candidate taking the examination.

The rules are different in the School Education Department of Tamil Nadu. Government school teachers are selected by the District Education Office to volunteer as scribes for Class X and XII Board examinations. Earlier, it had planned to appoint interested BED students and Illam Thedi Kalvi volunteers, but that GO was dropped on February 19 after many disability groups objected to limited time in taking up this exercise.

In many cases, candidates who are homeschooled or writing exams through the National Institute of Open Schooling (NIOS) have to fend for themselves when it comes to finding a scribe.

E.G. Manikandan, a senior special educator with more than 17 years of experience, helps students with NIOS registration including arranging for scribes. He reaches out to private schools well in advance to help identify student volunteers who then have to go through a scribbling orientation exercise. He says NIOS allows parents and close relatives to act as scribes provided they are registered and meet certain criteria.

"But the challenge is when the parents are not educated and one has to find a suitable volunteer for scribbling," he says, adding that a CBSE school in Mylapore sent him five students last year to scribe.

Having a pool of scribes who can work with students with varying disabilities, including communication-related problems, will go a long way in creating a more empathetic society and it is within the school system that this can be effectively nurtured.

Inclusive schools

"Finding a scribe in an inclusive set-up is easy, and most schools where we work play an important role in promoting inclusion. For instance, at Little Flower School in Kundrathur, announcement is made during the assembly inviting children to volunteer as scribes. They also give certificates to encourage such students," says Kalpana Kumar, founder, Kare Therapy

Centre.

For students applying to study abroad, she says, mention of any volunteering stint as a scribe or efforts to promote inclusion is a bonus and many schools they work with push this agenda to their students, says Kalpana.

A pool of scribes

For many years now, V. Sivaraman, an associate professor at Presidency College, has been asking the office of the Commissioner for Persons with Disabilities to initiate the creation of a common portal for scribes and students. As most colleges have examinations at the same time, depending on students as volunteer-scribes is not always a reliable option. Sometimes, a volunteer would not want to come every day. Though there are many volunteer groups helping find scribes, the professor thinks a portal from the government that lists the needs of the visually challenged and availability of volunteers would be more sustainable.

DG Vaishnav students conduct rural camp

Postgraduate students of the Department of Social Work at Dwarka Doss Govardhan Doss Vaishnav College in Arumbakkam, in collaboration with Florence Home Foundation, conducted a rural camp from February 7 to 13 at Kil-lai Town Panchayat in Cuddalore district. During this camp, several community-oriented activities were carried out, including a free medical camp, a cancer awareness rally, beach cleaning drives, and school wall painting.

Students participated in a beach clean-up drive at the Muthukuthurai coastal area. To promote awareness among school students about cleanliness and social responsibility, murals carrying social messages were painted on school walls. Students presented various traditional and cultural performances for the community.

LITTLE SOI, ANNA NAGAR:

Asian Flavours For A Loyal Neighbourhood

Anna Nagar has long been shaped by a steady and loyal dining crowd. With its mix of families, professionals and long-time residents, the neighbourhood tends to favour restaurants that offer familiarity over fleeting novelty. Against this backdrop, Little Soi's newly refreshed Anna Nagar address arrives as a notable update to the area's dining landscape, introducing a space that feels distinctly new.

An all-new interior feels fresh yet familiar, anchored in contemporary design and softened with natural textures. Woven lamps, chairs and subtle red accents add warmth, while Little Soi's signature Thatha and Paati illustration brings charm, keeping the space relaxed and understated.

This sense of renewal carries through to the menu. Newly curated and more focused, it charts a fresh journey through Southeast Asia's street food cultures. Drawing inspiration from the neon-lit bylanes of Singapore, the night markets of Bangkok, and the vibrant food scenes of Vietnam and Malaysia, the offerings feel sharper and more confident. The range balances variety with restraint, encouraging exploration while keeping flavours playful and clearly defined.

What ultimately distinguishes the restaurant is how seamlessly this refresh fits into Anna Nagar. The updated space and menu align closely with the neighbourhood's expectation of consistency and places worth returning to.
