An MTC bus bypassing the Durga Nagar haltover in Tambaram Sanatorium on GST Road. PHOTO: SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT

Many MTC buses do not halt at Tambaram Sanatorium

T.S. ATUL SWAMINATHAN

Every time, V. Arunachalam, a resident of Kovilambakkam, has to travel to Durga Nagar in Tambaram Sanatorium, he asks the conductors and the drivers of 91 series, whether the bus will halt at the designated stop. If not, he disembarks at Chromepet railway station haltover and boards a share auto to reach the locality.

There are four stops between Chromepet railway station and Tambaram Sanatorium haltover: Madras Institute of Technology (MIT) Gate, Chromepet, Chromepet GH (dental wing), National Hospital of Thoracic Medicine (TB Hospital, also known as Durga Nagar haltover), Tambaram Sanatorium, and Tambaram Sanatorium GH. But only a section of Deluxe buses stop at the GH stop.

Commuters have requested Metropolitan Transport Corporation to issue a directive to the crew of buses (plying on GST Road) to halt buses at the stopovers. The other option for commuters is to board whiteboard buses to reach these stops, says Arunachalam.

With MTC operating buses from Madras Export Processing Zone terminus to Chemmanchery, Red Hills, Avadi, Sriperumbudur, and Walajabad, and the buses taking the MIT flyover, it would be better if the buses halted at Sanatorium GH (General), Durga Nagar, and GH (Dental), on both sides; otherwise, commuters have to board buses at MEPZ terminus.

"I took up the issue with the MTC officials at Tambaram Sanatorium, and they said they will do the needful," says Arunachalam. An email from MTC said the suggestion has been noted and forwarded to the concerned department to take necessary action.

'Create a dedicated website for TCMC services'

V S JAYARAMAN

Even after the formation of the Tambaram City Municipal Corporation (TCMC) in November 2021, no effort has been made to create an exclusive website for the civic body, such as the one that exists for Greater Chennai Corporation (GCC).

As a result, the public is forced to put up with the older website under which the municipalities and panchayats are grouped and functioning under the overall superintendence of the Commissionerate of Municipal Administration, tnurbanepay.tn.gov.in

Those who are familiar with the GCC website will find it difficult to navigate through this site. One can find payment details for past property taxes on the GCC website; this information cannot be found on the Tambaram Corporation's current website. One can only find information for the current financial year.

Though the GCC and the Chennai Metropolitan Water Supply and Sewerage Board (CMWSSB) perform different functions, both use the same assessment numbers, or bill numbers, for tax collection.

While at TCMC, though it handles both jobs, it assigns different numbers for property tax and water supply.

The TCMC, in addition to looking after administrative and other societal needs like any other civic body, is also responsible for meeting water requirements, which it sources from the CMWSSB.

Like the GCC, which looks after only the civic needs, the TCMC should be delinked from responsibility for water supply and related services and entrusted to the CMWSSB.

The TCMC should function in tandem with CMWSSB with a clear-cut demarcation of roles. Such a move will improve the respective services.

I understand that a proposal to expand CMWSSB's operational jurisdiction to both Tambaram and Avadi Corporations is pending.

The State government, which will assume charge after the Assembly elections, should implement the proposal in the public interest.

New traffic signal near Vel's University junction

G K RADHAKRISHNAN

On Pallavaram - Thoraipakkam 200-Foot Radial Road, a new 'U' turn signal is coming up near Saraswathi Timbers, located 200 to 300 meters before the Vel's University signal junction.

The junction is heavily congested during peak hours, and this new signal will be a big relief for those travelling from TVS Light House and Featherlite office to reach Kauvery Hospital in Keezhkattalai and Velachery.

An obstacle course in Chromepet

P. VISWANATHAN

Along Dr Rajendra Prasad Road and Raghava Nagar Road in Chromepet, there is a concrete stone block. The stone poses a risk to motorcyclists entering the locality from RP Road. One might hit the stone and sustain injuries if not noticed on time.

Dr. Rajendra Prasad Road comes under the jurisdiction of the State Highways Department, while Raghava Nagar Road comes under the Tambaram City Municipal Corporation.

The Corporation and the department must remove the concrete block at the earliest to ensure the safety of motorcyclists. If it is for a reason, fence it.

P. Viswanathan is a resident of Chitlapakkam

'Reduce height of culvert at Nehru Street'

K. DAYANAND

At Nehru Street, Chitlapakkam, the Tambaram City Municipal Corporation demolished the old stormwater drain network culvert and rebuilt a new one. While reconstructing, the culvert height has been increased by 18 inches above the existing road level, making it look like a check dam on the road.

Approaching the area along the culvert and ascending on it is a risk for motorcyclists as they can hit against it and skid and fall. The same situation prevails while exiting the culvert.

No ramp has been provided.

The exit area has a sharp, step-like arrangement that poses a severe risk to motorcyclists and can damage cars, leading to accidents and hindering the free flow of traffic.

I request the civic body officials to inspect the culvert and ensure the height is reduced to match the existing road level.

'Sembakkam, a lost paradise'

R. SATHYA

Ironically, the abundance of natural spaces in the Sembakkam region has emboldened residents to engage in indiscriminate dumping. The local meat shops are notorious for persistently dumping their waste in Sembakkam lake and the Nanmangalam reserve forest. Additionally, the inadequacy of waste collection mechanisms and the leniency of penalties have contributed to the proliferation of dumping in open plots and canals.

Sembakkam's natural beauty is being irreparably damaged. To rectify this situation, the Tambaram City Municipal Corporation must establish a robust waste collection system, enforce stringent penalties for littering, and safeguard the natural environment.

'Escalators needed at Velachery station'

N. SATEESH

Commuters boarding electric trains at Velachery MRTS railway station seem to be out on a limb. There are two entrances to the station premises: one, along the Velachery Bridge from the Vijaya Nagar junction; and the other along the Kaiveli region for commuters from Madipakkam, Pallikaranai, and Perumbakkam regions.

Along both entrances, there is a spacious motorcycle parking lot.

Most commuters from the Madipakkam, Pallikaranai, and Perumbakkam regions prefer the entrance along the bridge.

Commuters do this to avoid climbing stairs, and another issue is crowds thronging the lift during rush hour to board trains and exit the station. The situation prevails when the lifts are not working.

The commuters (on their vehicles) ascend the Velachery bridge, take a left onto Velachery Main Road (one-way towards Vijaya Nagar junction), then another left along the Police booth below the bridge (also one-way towards Southern Sector Inner Ring Road), and take an immediate right (the stretch intersects with Perungudi railway station) to enter a parking lot where commuters can park cars and two-wheelers.

After parking their vehicle in an available slot, a commuter can walk to platform 1 (towards Chennai Beach), then take the subway or use the steps to platform 2 (towards Saint Thomas Mount).

Similarly, while leaving the station and heading to the regions mentioned above, commuters have two options.

They can turn right, then right again, pass a textile showroom, then take a left and another right to enter the bridge.

The other option is to make a left turn after leaving the station, then take a couple of right turns, proceed to Vijaya Nagar junction (first after the bridge), make a U-turn, and enter the bridge to reach the regions.

From Kaiveli, to reach platforms 1 and 2, commuters have to climb nearly 90 steps.

From platform 2, to exit the station via the Velachery entrance, commuters must ascend and descend around 90 steps, or use the subway, which is more than 70 steps. Escalators are a must from platform 2 to the foot overbridge walkway, from the walkway to the entrance along Kaiveli, and from the walkway to platform 1 and the entrance along Velachery.

On morning of April 8, the entrance along platform 4 on the Kaiveli side was opened to commuters and pedestrians, but it is dangerous. Commuters cross the tracks to reach platforms 1 and 2 from Kaiveli and Velachery, and pedestrians use the tracks as a thoroughfare between Velachery and Kaiveli.

Commuters and pedestrians can get hit by a train moving towards the EMU car shed, Mount and Beach.

Opening the entrance along platform 4 is not a solution; the solution is to provide escalators.

Place a signage at Vengaivasal Main Road bus stop to avoid confusion

GUNASEKARAN S

On Vengaivasal Main Road, near a community hall (lane towards Tambaram), there are two bus stops for route 31G, about 50 meters apart.

Commuters can be seen waiting at both stops, making it difficult for them to know where the bus will stop. This not only causes inconvenience but also results in delays in boarding. I request that the concerned authorities to take necessary action to remove one of the bus stops or provide clear instructions or signage.

Commuters seek bus services from Vandalur railway station

They point out they are at the mercy of autorickshaw drivers who charge exorbitant fares; they seek better coordination between Southern Railway and MTC

T. ARVIND

Railway commuters using Vandalur railway station have urged the authorities to resume bus services to Kilambakkam, citing the absence of reliable last-mile connectivity and the prevalence of overcharging by autorickshaw drivers.

Hundreds of EMU and MEMU train passengers, including office-goers, tourists and weekend visitors to the Arignar Anna Zoological Park, depend on the station for its relatively faster access along the congested GST Road corridor. However, commuters say the lack of affordable onward transport has become a major concern.

Reliance on autos

"Passengers are forced to pay steep fares even for short distances," said Selvam, a regular commuter. Autorickshaw drivers allegedly charge ₹100 to the zoo, located about one kilometre away, and up to ₹250 for a trip to Kilambakkam, around three kilometres from the station.

Activists pointed out that Metropolitan Transport Corporation (MTC) had operated bus services between the railway station and Kilambakkam until a few years ago. "The services were discontinued without any clear explanation, leaving commuters at the mercy of autorickshaw drivers," an activist said.

Commuters' plight

Beena, another commuter, said the issue has worsened as there is no bus stop at the Vandalur Railway station junction on both sides. Passengers cannot rely on train connectivity to Kilambakkam at present since the halt station might take a few more months to be completed. "With the next station being Urapakkam, commuters have no option but to spend on autorickshaws," she said, alleging that a group of drivers often dictates fares.

College students travelling along the Vandalur-Kilambakkam Road are particularly affected. "They are often forced to share autos at high rates during peak hours," she added.

Safety concerns

Activists also flagged safety issues near the station, noting that many pedestrians avoid using the road overbridge and instead cross tracks at grade, risking their lives. "Proper signage and security measures are needed to encourage use of the bridge. At present, poor usage has led to concerns over anti-social activities," a commuter said.

Meanwhile, Southern Railway has opened a parking lot exclusively for cars near the station. It may be noted during December last year, a spacious two-wheeler parking stand was opened benefitting hundreds of commuters. While commuters have welcomed these initiatives, they stressed the need for better coordination between the Railways and the MTC to restore bus connectivity to Kilambakkam.

Metrowater replacing old pipelines in Nanganallur

At First Main Road in Nanganallur. PHOTO: SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT

On account of the work, MTC buses have been diverted; commuters complain of a lack of display boards mentioning the changes in bus routes

The Chennai Metropolitan Water Supply and Sewerage Board has been replacing the old underground sewer pipes in Nanganallur. The work, which started on 100-Feet Road, Civil Aviation Colony in Nanganallur, has been completed, also in Voltas Colony, Lakshmi Nagar, and on the Fourth Main Road. Currently, work is underway at First Main Road.

Diversion of bus routes

To facilitate the work, Metropolitan Transport Corporation has diverted route numbers 14M and 76 towards NGO Colony and Chennai Mofussil Bus Terminus from Medavakkam bus terminus through Balamal Nagar Main Road, and then through Murugappa Nagar Main Road, Ganesh Nagar Main Road, Balaji Nagar Main Road, and Southern Sector Inner Ring Road in the Ulagam and Puzhuthivakkam regions.

"On Second Main Road, there was no board indicating a change of routes to inform commuters. Even the traders did not inform about the changes. Recently, I stood for nearly an hour, thinking the buses would come," said J. Venkatesan, a commuter.
