Residents flag civic neglect across Pallavaram belt

At a pre-election public forum, citizens of Chromepet, Pallavaram and Pammal call out laxity in management of waterbodies, recurrent sewage-related issues and the lack of a robust civic infrastructure

T. ARVIND

With the Tamil Nadu Assembly elections just days away, residents and activists from Chromepet, Pallavaram and Pammal have voiced strong dissatisfaction over persistent civic issues, underlining a failure to deliver on long-pending promises.

At a grievance meeting organised by television channel Puthiya Thalaimurai in Pammal, participants highlighted concerns ranging from sewage overflow and road encroachments to water stagnation and lack of a robust civic infrastructure.

'Rein in TASMAL outlets'

V. Santhanam, senior activist and founder of People's Awareness Association and the Chromepet Rail Users Forum, raised concerns over alleged violations by TASMAL outlets. He said several shops were operating beyond permitted hours, leading to early-morning public nuisance and safety concerns.

Pointing to the section of GST Road near MIT flyover, he said instances of inebriated persons during morning hours were common. He also flagged liquor outlets near public spaces as a concern, particularly for women, and called for stricter enforcement of timings.

Infrastructure gaps

Water stagnation along GST Road near Vetri Theatre, even after brief spells of rain, was among the key issues. Residents said that while stormwater drains had been laid on one side, the absence of box culverts under the railway tracks was preventing effective drainage.

They noted that funds had already been sanctioned and urged the Railways to expedite the work to prevent recurring flooding.

At the public grievance meeting organised in Pammal

Call for lake restoration

Activists stressed the need to rejuvenate waterbodies in the region. Meenakshisundaram said several lakes in and around Chromepet and Tambaram remained under-utilised. He suggested that desilting and restoration could help divert surplus water from Chembarambakkam Lake and improve water storage capacity by creating a mini reservoir.

Demand for sports facilities

Youth participants highlighted the lack of a dedicated sports infrastructure. Jagan, a college student, said young people were forced to use lands belonging to the Defence and Railways, which offered only temporary access. In fact, there is no big sport stadiums in south Chennai, he said.

He called for integrated indoor and outdoor stadiums in the constituency.

Sewage, traffic concerns

Residents of Pammal pointed to poor road conditions and frequent sewage overflows. Despite multiple flyovers between Pallavaram and Tambaram, traffic congestion persists, they said.

Participants reiterated the demand for an elevated corridor towards Chengalpattu via Kilambakkam, urging the Highways Department to fast-track the proposal.

Push for transparency

Residents also backed the installation of information boards at public works sites, detailing project cost, contractor names and timelines, to improve accountability.

Calling their demands basic, a participant said, "We are not asking for anything extraordinary". Residents expressed hope that the next government would address the issues with better planning and transparency.

Residents submit list of demands to candidates

T.S. ATUL SWAMINATHAN

The office bearers of the residents' welfare associations in Chitlapakkam submitted petitions outlining work to be carried out in the area to the candidates contesting from the Tambaram Assembly Constituency.

They include C. Rajendran from All India Anna Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam; Su. Thamizh Selvi from Naam Thamizhar Katchi; D. Sarathkumar from Thamizhaga Vetri Kazhagam; and R. S. Kiruthikadevi from Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam.

* Sembakkam Lake is included in the Chennai Metropolitan Development Authority (CMDA) lakes' front development project but work is yet to commence.

*Expedite the financial sanction GO for the construction of an underground drainage system in regions coming under the Tambaram City Municipal Corporation.

*Increase the frequency of S3 and S100, and resume share autos from Tambaram Sanatorium railway station, plying via the region.

*Creation of a parking lot on a parcel of the Government's (Central and State) lands in Tambaram Sanatorium (East) along the regional railway station.

*Renaming of Tambaram Sanatorium railway station as Chitlapakkam Sanatorium Station.

Chromepet

Members of the People's Awareness Association, led by its founder, V. Santhanam, called on Indiya Jananayaga Katchi candidate V. Venkatesan for Pallavaram assembly constituency.

* State Government should not release the surplus water of Chembarambakkam River (after it crosses the 120-foot mark) into the sea and divert it to waterbodies in and around the region and the adjoining Pallavaram region.

* Restore the water bodies and the missing channels between the lakes. A reservoir should be created at the foothills of the Thirunermalai Hill to store rainwater.

* Remove encroachments on the interior roads in the region and the GST Road.

* Construct a sports stadium

* Address poor quality of the UGD network. The underground drainage network in the region is in a shambles. The network has been in place for two decades, but within that time, there have been many complaints from residents. The complaints pertain to overflowing sewage caused by poor-quality main UGD pipes.

Saving Nanmangalam Lake Team (SNLT)

* Need a sewage treatment plant; until then divert the sewage entering the lake and treat it.

* Rejuvenate Nanmangalam lake.

Voters urged to keep conscience and palms clean

In East Tambaram and Thiruneermalai, resident associations and activist groups run campaigns to prevent voters from accepting cash for votes

T.S. ATUL SWAMINATHAN

In East Tambaram, Chitlapakkam and Thiruneermalai, posters are up, urging voters to keep their conscience and palms clean.

As part of what is called “My Vote Is Not For Sale” campaign, Chitlapakkam Rising volunteers went from door to door in Chitlapakkam and surrounding East Tambaram area and enjoined voters to refuse money offered for votes and also reject the candidates guilty of this impropriety.

A resident pastes a “My Vote Is Not For Sale” sticker at the entrance of her house in Thiruneermalai.

Sunil Jayaram, a core volunteer at Chitlapakkam Rising, says the group asked the voters to vote for candidates only on the basis of their credentials.

He adds: “Getting cash for votes will create a vicious cycle in which every project undertaken by politicians will be tainted by corruption.

If you allow this to continue, the cycle of corruption will persist.”

On April 13, office-bearers of Chitlapakkam Muthulakshmi Nagar Welfare Association, led by its president L. Sundararaman, took an oath not to accept money for their votes and also to vote without fail, ensuring 100 percent voting from the locality.

“My Vote Is Not For Sale” campaign has had a ripple effect.

On April 12, residents of Thiruneermalai joined hands with ‘Arappor Iyakkam’ to sensitise voters against selling their votes.

Spearheading the campaign, B. Saravanan, treasurer, Federation of Thiruneermalai Residents’ Welfare Associations, says, “Bharathi Kannan, an active volunteer in the movement, handed over a set of pamphlets and stickers (My Vote Is Not For Sale) and asked us to join the campaign.

The pamphlet poses a set of questions to the electorate and provides factual information, prompting them to join the campaign.

The campaign started at River Bund Road (Erikarai Theru), which falls under 47th Ward in Tambaram City Municipal Corporation. The campaign was taken not just to residents but also traders; stickers were pasted on walls of shops, Saravanan points out.

In Ward 31, the message was conveyed to parents through their children.

“If we spread awareness among 100 people, at least twenty people will have a change of heart. The change starts with you,” the young activist observes. Saravanan, along with other residents, pasted stickers at apartments and individual homes, in addition to shop fronts.

Votes go digital at city college

A two-member team from A.M. Jain College in Meenambakkam has designed an electronic voting machine to make elections to the student council less cumbersome and totally error-free

LIFFY THOMAS

Electronic voting machines (EVMs) are the flavour of the season. Amidst the high-stakes EVMs that are set to get busy on April 23 in Tamil Nadu, in a tiny corner of the state, a humble voting machine is garnering a scintilla of attention.

Final year students of the Department of Electronics with Artificial Intelligence at Agurchand Manmull Jain College in Meenambakkam, G. Murali and N. Madhan Raaj, have designed this electronic voting machine based on a request from the Student Welfare Council.

The machine meant for student elections at the college is an answer to the cumbersome, time-consuming manual processes that had long defined student elections at the college. The student voter had to write down the name of the candidate and drop it in a secret box.

The counting had to be done manually. Together, these two processes almost always guaranteed errors. With the guidance of a member of the faculty, Selva Kumar M, they designed a simple device, one bearing three main components: arduino mega board, TFT display and a memory card. After many trials, the machine was put to test in real time, at the Student Welfare Council elections in 2025.

"We bought an arduino mega board and connected it with an eight bit processor and eight switches," says Selva Kumar, assistant professor, Department of Electronics and AI.

The electronic device shows the image of the contesting candidate and gives a beep sound after the press of a button. "The best part is the ballot key that ensures no student votes twice, and the results can be viewed on a pie chart," says Madhan. After it was used in the latest college elections, the two classmates have taken the simple device to other platforms where they have won appreciation for having designed it the way they have.

The duo have won prizes at electronic competitions organised by SRM University and Krishna College in Coimbatore. Murali, who has a YouTube channel where he runs videos of him seen restoring electronic gadgets, says he has been curious about electronic items from his days at Government Model Higher Secondary School in MMDA Colony, Arumbakkam.

Chennai resident Visalakshi Jambunathan suffered a stroke seven years ago. Despite that, she headed to the polling booth in previous elections. This time around, she decided to make it easy for herself by opting for home voting; and she found the process to be easier than she expected it to be

They want to fulfill their duty. And they want to fulfill it from the safety of their home due to their fragile health and advanced age.

Voting for senior citizens above 85 years and for voters with disabilities that have expressed preference to vote from home commenced in all 16 Assembly constituencies in Chennai on April 16.

A team of six comprising a micro observer, two polling officials, a police officer, a videographer and a driver landed at 74-year-old Visalakshi Jambunathan's house at Kalukaran Street in Mylapore around 11 a.m. after a word from the Booth Level Officer.

teacher from Vidya Mandir Senior Secondary School in Mylapore is happy to be the first in her family and friends circles to have voted from home, she was missing something. "We are so used to getting our finger inked after voting, but here they took my signature as proof that I have voted and have scratched my name from the list," says Visalakshi.

Seven years ago, following a stroke, the teacher suffered disability in her left leg and since then she uses splint to walk.

"My handicap has not limited me where my routine is concerned. I still go about doing all my work. As this option was available,

I thought, 'Why not use it?'. The officials had come home a month ago to verify the details that I had presented through Form 12D," says the former school teacher who has never missed voting.

Eight-eight-year-old V. Santhanam is always on the go, taking up civic issues with elected representatives and officials.

"I can easily walk down to the booth but I wanted to experience the system and I have to commend how the Election Commission has organised this," says the social activist from Chromepet.

He is of the opinion that many senior citizens are not aware of the "vote from home" option and more awareness about it needs to be created.

Old age homes

At Vishranthi Old Age Home in Palavakkam, five residents availed this option. All of them are bed-ridden but had expressed interest in voting, so the management made all the necessary arrangements. At least six others will be going to the polling booths to cast their vote.

At Anandhanam Old Age Home in Ambattur, one of the first things the management wants the residents to do is update the address on their Aadhar card and other documents. This is helpful to avail various benefits offered by the government to senior citizens, and comes handy during election time. This time, 20 people exercised their vote.

According to a report in The Hindu, with 106 requests, Kolathur has the highest number of persons with disabilities who have availed themselves of the home voting facility in Chennai. Royapuram has the lowest, with just 14 home voters.

Inclusive vehicle to take voters to polling booth

Vidya Sagar, an NGO working for persons with disabilities, has procured an additional vehicle as part of its 'Get Going' initiative that helps those with disabilities travel comfortably in an inclusive vehicle. As in previous years, two of these vehicles will be pressed into service for senior citizens and PwDs wanting to reach the polling booth without any hassle.

The vehicle is equipped with a hydraulic lift and can accommodate up to three wheelchairs with four additional seats. There are specially trained support staff to meet the needs of the special-needs people.

The NGO charges a fee based on distance between the home and polling booth for ferrying the voter. During other times of the year, these vehicles are used to take students on a field trips. The vehicle has to be booked at least a day in advance. For bookings, call 9444398182.

Help at the polling station

If you know someone who would need a wheelchair or a sign language interpreter at the polling booth then ask them to download the Election Commission of India's Saksham App. This tool for persons with disabilities allows them to participate in the electoral process with some degree of ease. It offers them a number of features including how to find their polling station.

The mobile application is currently making sure there is wheelchair support at the polling booth, Indian Sign Language Interpreter and help to deal with other concerns. The App requires one to place a request in advance so that a volunteer can be arranged on polling day.

A sign language interpreter working with the team says they have close to 15 interpreters and the requests placed on the App are by individuals as well as associations working for PwDs.

In the 2024 Lok Sabha Elections, most polling stations only had a booth where one could reach out for any assistance. A sign language interpreter says, "Through a video call made from the stall, we were assisting the deaf and the mute. This time, the plan is to have both."

Special buses

Tamil Nadu State Transport Corporation will ply special long-distance buses from April 21 to 23 to enable people to get their polling booth without much difficulty.

From Kalaingar Centenary Bus Terminus (KCBT) in Kilambakkam, buses will operate to Puducherry, Cuddalore, Chidambaram, Trichy, Madurai, Tuticorin and Coimbatore. At Koyambedu, find buses going to East Coast Road, Vellore, Thi-ruttani and Bengaluru. From Madhavarajam New Bus Stand, there are buses to Andhra Pradesh via Ponneri, Gummidipoondi, and to Trichy, Salem, Kumbakonam, and Thiruvannamalai. The public can book tickets online through www.tnsrc.in and on the official Tamil Nadu State Transport Corporation app.

A host of events on Aquatics Day

Vidhya Sagar Global School recently held its 18th Aquatics Day. Dr. S. Gowtham, MBBS, MD (Pathology), was the chief guest. Many events were performed by the students, including individual, group (relay), aqua aerobic dance, and a water polo exhibition match.

The children's performance was an aesthetic delight for everyone.

The Rolling Trophy for the overall championship was presented to Shanthi House students.

Vikas Surana, correspondent, Suresh Kankariya, treasurer VSI and V.C.Govindarajan, principal, VSGS, graced the occasion.

Academy launches 'India for Global Education' initiative

Panthi Academy, a startup focused on transforming school education, has launched an initiative titled, 'India for Global Education'.

The movement is led by its founder, V. P. Suresh, who has been researching the evolution of education in India, from its ancient foundations to contemporary systems, said a release.

The movement aims to position Indian schools as destinations for global standard education.

Emphasizing the role of teachers in this process, the academy has also established the 'Panthi Institute of Educator Transformation (PIET), which prepares teachers as 'global-standard coaches.' The programme seeks educators to contribute to student development. Panthi Academy has invited educators, institutions, and stakeholders to join the #IndiaForGlobalEducation movement.
