Trump threatens to bomb Iran if talks fail, rules out extension of ceasefire

PTI & ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON/ISLAM-ABAD: US President Donald Trump on Tuesday said he would start bombing Iran if they do not agree to a deal with the US before the end of the two-week ceasefire on Wednesday.

"Well, I don't want to do that," Trump told CNBC's "Squawk Box" when asked if he would extend the ceasefire with Iran to allow time for the peace talks to reach a deal to end the war.

"They have to negotiate. And, you know, the one thing I'll say is this: Iran can get themselves on a very good footing. If they make a deal, they can make themselves into a strong nation again, a wonderful nation again," he added.

Trump said that if the cease-fire ends on Wednesday without an agreement, he is prepared to resume attacking Iran. "I expect to be bombing because I think that's a better attitude to go in with," he said.

The President said he thinks the US is "going to end up with a have no choice," Trump said when asked about his expectations from the second round of peace negotiations with Iran.

"We've taken out their navy,
we've taken out their air force,

we've taken out their leaders," Trump said.
"We've taken out their lead-these leaders are much more rational," Trump said. "It is

While the first round of US-
Iran talks, held on 11 and 12
April, ended without an agreement, uncertainty surrounds the second round.

Two regional officials said Tuesday that the United States and Iran have signalled they will hold a new round of ceasefire talks in Islamabad as a fragile two-week truce was due to expire.

Neither the US nor Iran has publicly confirmed the timing of the talks, with Iranian state television denying that any official was already in Pakistan's capital.

Pakistan-led mediators received confirmation that the top negotiators, US Vice Pres-liament speaker Mohammad Bagher Ghalibaf, will arrive in Islamabad early Wednesday to lead their teams in the talks, the officials told The Associated Press.

The US has instituted a blockade of Iranian ports to pressure Tehran into ending its stranglehold on the Strait of Hormuz, a key shipping lane through which 20 per cent of the world's natural gas and crude oil transits in peacetime.

Iran's iron grip on the strait has sent oil prices soaring, and Brent crude, the international standard, was trading at close to USD 95 per barrel on Tuesday, up more than 30 per cent from Feb. 28, the day that Israel and the US attacked Iran to start the war.

Before the war began, the Strait of Hormuz had been fully open to international shipping, and Trump has demanded that vessels again be allowed to transit unimpeded through the waterway.

Heatwave grips north India as IMD warns of no immediate relief

MPOST BUREAU

NEW DELHI: North India continues to reel under intense heat, with the India Meteorological Department warning on Tuesday that heat-wave conditions across several states are set to persist for at least the next three days.
Punjab, Haryana and Uttar Pradesh remain in the grip of scorching temperatures, while similar conditions are expected to develop in the national capital and parts of Rajasthan later this week.

In Uttar Pradesh, the heat has intensified across districts, with Banda recording the highest temperature at 44.2 degrees Celsius on Tuesday.
The state witnessed widespread dry weather, contributing to harsher conditions. Other cities also reported elevated temperatures, including Sultanpur at 43.4 degrees Celsius, Prayagraj at 43.2 degrees Celsius, and Jhansi and Hardoi at 42.5 degrees Celsius each. Lucknow registered a maximum temperature of 40.2 degrees Celsius, which was 1.1 degrees above normal.

The meteorological department has forecast that dry weather will persist across Uttar Pradesh on Wednesday, with clear skies expected over Lucknow and surrounding areas. Such conditions are likely to increase discomfort and dehydration risks.

The national capital,
while yet to officially record a heatwave this season, is also witnessing rising temheatwave conditions in the city from April 22 to April 24, with maximum temperatures expected to reach 42 degrees Celsius and minimum temperatures hovering around 22 degrees Celsius.

In response, authorities have introduced precautionary measures in schools across Delhi. Government, aided and private unaided recognised schools have been directed to implement a "water bell" system, where a bell will

THRISSUR (KERALA): At least 13 people were killed and several others injured after a powerful explosion ripped through a fireworks manufacturing unit in central Kerala's Thrissur district on Tuesday afternoon, turning a quiet paddy field into a scene of devastation and trig-
for hours amid intermittent blasts.

The explosion occurred around 3.30 pm at Mundathikode, where firecrackers were being prepared in multiple temporary sheds for the upcoming Thrissur Pooram festival scheduled for April 26. Officials said around 40 workers were believed to be present at the time, though the exact number remains unclear as authorities work to account for all those at the site.

Hospital authorities at Government Medical College, Thrissur, confirmed that 13 bodies, including dismembered remains, had been received and counted as individual fatalities.
Several injured persons were admitted for treatment, with at least 13 people undergoing care, including three women. Five of the injured are reported to be in critical condition with more than 70 per cent burn injuries. Continued on P4

Congress moves privilege notice against PM

Venugopal alleges breach of privilege over PM's address to nation, seeks inquiry

OUR CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI: Congress leader K

Narendra Modi before Lok Sabha Speaker Om Birla, alleging that remarks made during a televised national address amounted to a breach of parliamentary privilege.

In his submission under Rule

'Two waste sites in India among top methane emitters globally'

NEW DELHI: Two Indian waste facilities — one each in Telangana, Maharashtra — are among the top 25 such sites, which have been identified as the largest emitters of methane globally, according to a new report.

Methane is one of the main drivers of climate change, responsible for 30 per cent of the warming since preindus-trial times, second only to carbon dioxide.

The report, 'Spotlight on the Top 25 Methane Plumes in by the University of California (UCLA) on Tuesday.

It looked at data gathered by Planet Labs' Tanager-1 satellite and NASA's EMIT instrument on the Interna-

According to the analysis, the waste facility in Telanga-na's Secunderabad emits 5.9 tonnes of methane per hour, while the site in Maharashtra's Mumbai emits 4.9 tonnes of methane per hour.

While the Telangana fac-

ISI operatives nabbed for planning grenade attacks and target killings

OUR CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI: The Special Cell of Delhi Police has arrested two operatives allegedly working at the behest of Pakistan-based gangster and ISI proxy Shahzad Bhatti, with the police unearthing a criminal conspiracy to carry out firing, grenade attacks and target killings in the Delhi-NCR region, an official said on Tuesday.

The accused, identified as Rajveer (21) and Vivek Banjara (19), both natives of Madhya Pradesh's Gwalior, were apprehended by the Special Cell.

"Their arrest foiled planned attacks in the national capital and adjoining areas. The arrests exposed a larger conspiracy orchestrated by Bhatti, who, along with other ISI-linked handlers, was recruiting young people through social media platforms and deploying them for targeted acts of violence in Delhi-NCR," Deputy Commissioner of Police (Special Cell) Praveen Kumar Tripathi said in a statement.

The officer said that a case in this regard was registered on March 31 following inputs about a plan to execute grenade attacks and targeted killings in the region. "Vivek Banjara was first traced and arrested from Dabra in Gwalior on April 16. During interrogation, he disclosed details about his associate Rajveer, leading to the arrest of Rajveer from the Sarai Kale Khan area of Delhi on April 18," the officer added.

The police said Rajveer was allegedly preparing to target a prominent hotel in Delhi-NCR on the directions of his handler Shahzad Bhatti, when he was apprehended. One pistol and six live cartridges were allegedly recovered from his possession. Additionally, two mobile phones containing incriminating videos and voice notes linked to the conspiracy were seized. Sharing profiles of the accused, the police said Rajveer, a resident of Dabra in the Gwalior district, is a young recruit who came in contact with Bhatti's network through social media.

"He was directly handled by an associate of Bhatti, identified as 'Rana Bhai', and was assigned key operational responsibilities. He allegedly played a central role in coordinating movements, collecting weapons and executing planned attacks," the officer said.

» 'Vivek Banjara was first traced and arrested from Dabra in Gwalior on April 16. He disclosed information about his associate Rajveer'

He further said that Vivek Banjara, also from the Gwalior district, was introduced to the network by Rajveer. Investigators said he assisted in logistics and reconnaissance and was actively involved in facilitating travel, receiving weapons and documenting criminal acts on the instructions from handlers.

Both accused were lured with the promises of easy money and were gradually drawn deeper into the criminal network. "In March, Rajveer was instructed to send an associate to Ahmedabad to collect weapons. Accordingly, Vivek travelled there, though the delivery could not materialise. Bhatti had arranged Rs 5,000 for his stay," the officer said.

Subsequently, on April 9, the duo travelled to Amritsar, where they allegedly received a pistol, 15-20 live rounds and Rs 20,000. They were tasked with opening fire at a club in Zirakpur in Punjab, which had allegedly received extortion threats from Bhatti.

On April 11, Rajveer allegedly attempted to carry out the firing but failed due to a mechanical issue in the weapon. Vivek recorded a video of the incident to send to their handler. Rajveer later concealed the weapon while returning to Delhi and shared its location with Bhatti, the police said. "After spending a few days in Delhi-NCR, he travelled to Punjab again, where he collected another pistol and ammunition before returning to the capital. Further investigation is underway to identify other members," the officer said.

67-year-old woman tied, raped by intoxicated son

OUR CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI: Delhi Police has arrested a 36-year-old man for allegedly raping his 67-year-old mother multiple times under the influence of alcohol in north Delhi's Burari area, an official said on Tuesday.

According to the woman's statement, she was tied up and raped multiple times by the accused, who first assaulted his own daughter.

The accused was arrested from his home after the elderly woman managed to free herself and narrated the incident to her daughter, who then alerted the police.

The woman, a domestic help who supports the family by sweeping and mopping houses, lives with her son and 16-year-old granddaughter, according to the FIR.

"My son is an alcoholic and was heavily intoxicated at the time of the incident," the FIR read. The woman alleged that her son slapped her daughter over a domestic tiff on April 17 and went outside. The daughter subsequently left for her aunt's house in the same locality.

"He returned home in a drunken state. I offered him food, but he tied my hands and feet and raped me," the mother alleged.

She said her son raped her through the night. She managed to untie herself around 4 am after the accused fell asleep, and rushed outside to contact her daughter, who informed police. A medical examination of the victim and her granddaughter was conducted. Police said a crime team visited the spot and collected evidence. CM Rekha Gupta welcomes Delhi HC order rejecting Kejriwal's recusal plea

NEW DELHI: Chief Minister Rekha Gupta on Tuesday welcomed the Delhi High Court's decision rejecting a plea by Arvind Kejriwal seeking recusal of a judge in the excise policy case, calling the ruling a strong affirmation of judicial independence.

Reacting to the verdict, Gupta termed the decision "excellent" and said it sends a clear message that the judiciary cannot be questioned on the basis of perception. "We have complete faith in the judiciary. This decision makes it clear that no one can question the judiciary," she said, while alleging that Kejriwal tends to accept court rulings selectively.

Kejriwal had approached the High Court requesting that Justice Swarna Kanta Sharma recuse herself from hearing the matter, citing a perceived conflict of interest linked to the empanelment of the judge's children as Central government counsel. He argued that the situation could give rise to apprehensions of bias.

The Delhi High Court, however, dismissed the plea, observing that the claims were speculative and failed to meet the legal standards required to establish bias. The court stressed that judicial proceedings cannot be influenced by unfounded perceptions and warned against attempts to cast doubts on impartiality without credible evidence.

In a separate statement, Gupta said the order reinforces that the dignity and neutrality of the judiciary must be upheld at all times. She accused Kejriwal of undermining institutional credibility by raising questions over the judicial process.

"When individuals who have held high public office indulge in such conduct, it risks eroding public confidence in the justice delivery system," she said, adding that judicial decisions cannot be accepted or rejected based on political convenience.

The court also cautioned that allowing recusal pleas based on mere allegations could set a damaging precedent, emphasizing that judges cannot be asked to step aside simply due to apprehensions of an unfavourable outcome.

DIPIKA KIROLA

GHAZIABAD: A six-year-old boy who went missing from Budh Nagar Colony in the Ankur Vihar police station area on Sunday evening was found dead in a pond barely 200 metres from his home on Tuesday, officials said.

The child, identified as Atif, a Class II student, had left home around 5 pm without informing his family. Initially, his parents assumed he had gone for his evening tuition, but grew concerned when he failed to return. Upon visiting the tuition centre, they discovered he had not attended classes that day, prompting them to alert the police.

After initial attempts failed, five divers were brought in from Delhi

During the search, local children told the family that Atif had been seen heading towards a nearby cremation ground, reportedly to chase kites. CCTV footage from the area later confirmed the boy entering the premises.

Family members subsequently reached the cremation ground and found his slippers near a pond inside the premises. Suspecting he had fallen into the water, police launched a search operation on Monday morning with assistance from municipal teams, the fire department, the Provincial Armed Constabulary (PAC), and the National Disaster Response Force (NDRF).

Rescue efforts were hampered by the pond's depth—estimated at 30 to 40 feet—and highly polluted water filled with garbage, which severely limited visibility. After initial attempts failed, five divers were brought in from Delhi. Following nearly two hours of intensive effort, the child's body was recovered from the pond.

Police said the family declined a postmortem examination, after which the body was handed over to them.

Counterfeit ENO, Nescafé racket busted

NEW DELHI: Delhi Police Crime Branch has busted a racket involved in the illegal manufacture and distribution of counterfeit ENO sachets and Nescafé products in East Delhi's Madhu Vihar.

The accused—Uttam Das (23), Papai Das Baragya alias Pankaj (19), Nitin Bhardwaj (38), and Sanjay Bansal (50)—were arrested following a tip-off and subsequent raids on two rented 2-BHK units used as production sites. Police recovered around one lakh fake ENO sachets, 50,000 counterfeit Nescafé sachets, and large quantities of raw materials, including 500 kg of coffee powder and packaging equipment. The racket had been operating for nearly two months. MPOST

Two in cop net for Rs 9L share mkt investment scam in Delhi

OUR CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI: The Delhi Police has arrested two men for allegedly duping a city resident of Rs 9.75 lakh on the pretext of offering high returns through share market investments, an official said on Tuesday.

The accused have been identified as Ankit Patel, 44, and Patel Kirtikumar Dwarkabhai, 36, both residents of Gujarat, he said.

According to the police, the accused contacted victims and lured them into investing in the share market by promising lucrative returns.

"In one such case, a complainant, Aditya Sharma, was cheated of Rs 9.75 lakh after being persuaded to invest money through fraudulent channels," the officer said.

Following the complaint, a case was registered on December 23 last year. During the investigation, police analysed the money trail and found that the amount cheated was routed through mule bank accounts. The funds were subsequently withdrawn using ATMs and cheques.

"Analysis of mobile numbers linked to the bank accounts helped police trace the accused to Gujarat. A team was then dispatched, leading to their apprehension.

Police said the accused used multiple bank accounts to receive the defrauded money. Ankit Patel allegedly arranged and operated these accounts, withdrew the funds, kept a commission, and transferred the remaining amount to his associate.

JNUSU calls faculty ward reservation in JNU 'elitist'

ANAMTA FATIMA

NEW DELHI: Jawaharlal Nehru University Students' Union (JNUSU) has strongly opposed a recent decision by the university's Executive Council to introduce a 5 per cent reservation for wards of faculty members in admissions, terming the move "elitist" and against the principles of social justice.

In a statement issued, the union alleged that the decision was taken without consultation with student representatives and despite opposition from the Jawaharlal Nehru University Teachers' Association (JNUTA). It further claimed that the lack of student representation in key decision-making bodies, including the Academic Council, has led to unilateral policy decisions by the administration.

The JNUSU argued that reservation policies in India are intended to address historical injustices faced by marginalised communities such as Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes, and Other Backward Classes.

Extending similar provisions to wards of faculty members, it said, does not align with the foundational objectives of affirmative action.

The union also raised concerns over the proposed 5 per cent quota, stating that such a provision could disproportionately benefit a relatively small and already privileged section, thereby reducing opportunities for other applicants.

Additionally, the statement criticised the administration for not addressing concerns raised in previous forums, including issues related to declining enrolment of women research scholars.

It urged the university authorities to prioritise inclusive policies and restore measures aimed at improving diversity in admissions.

Calling the proposal "reactionary", the JNUSU appealed to the student community to oppose the move and demanded greater transparency and accountability in institutional decision-making processes.

University officials have not yet issued a detailed response to the concerns raised by the students' union.

GNIDA earmarks 673 vending spaces to curb encroachments & ease traffic

DIPIKA KIROLA

GREATER NOIDA: The Greater Noida Authority (GNIDA) has rolled out an ambitious plan to streamline street vending and curb roadside encroachments by earmarking 673 designated vending spaces across key sectors of the city, officials said.

The initiative, part of the authority's street vendor policy aligned with the Street Vendors (Protection of Livelihood and Regulation of Street Vending) Act, 2014, aims to balance livelihood security for vendors with improved urban mobility. Officials noted that unauthorised vending has long contributed to congestion on major roads and public spaces, prompting the need for a regulated system.

Under the plan, the highest number of vending spots—160—has been allocated in Pi-1 and Pi-2 sectors, followed by Omicron-3 with 86 spaces.

“Greater Noida Authority CEO Ravi Kumar NG said the distribution has been carefully planned to align with footfall patterns in residential, commercial zones”

Beta-1 and Delta-1 will have 75 slots each, while Xu-2 has been allotted 70. Other sectors covered include Alpha-2 (47), Xu-3 (45), Omicron-1A (39), Gamma-2 (37), and Delta-3 (34). Beta-2 has received the lowest allocation, with just five vending spaces.

Greater Noida Authority CEO Ravi Kumar NG said the distribution has been carefully planned to align with footfall patterns in residential and commercial zones, ensuring vendors operate from designated areas instead of occupying roads and footpaths.

The policy also introduces a structured fee system. Monthly rent for kiosks up to 4 sqm has been fixed at Rs 3,850, while larger kiosks will be charged Rs 6,050. Stationary vendors will pay between Rs 2,200 and Rs 3,300 depending on space, while mobile vendors will be charged Rs 1,650 per month.

To promote inclusivity, 50 per cent of the spaces are reserved for women, 5 per cent for persons with disabilities, and 33 per cent for landless labourers from Greater Noida. Applications for the scheme will be accepted from April 20 to May 4. Officials expect the move to ease traffic congestion significantly and bring greater order to the city's informal vending ecosystem.

Reliance Power CFO among three held in ₹68 cr fake bank guarantee scam

The accused have been identified as Ashok Kumar Pal (50), CFO of Reliance Power Ltd.; Partha Sarthi Biswal (54), Managing Director of Biswal Tradelink Pvt. Ltd. based in Odisha; and Amarnath Dutta (50), a resident of Kolkata. All three were arrested on April 15 and remanded to police custody until April 23.

According to police, the case—registered via an FIR dated June 24, 2025—originates from a complaint filed by Biblesh Meena, a manager at the Solar Energy Corporation of India (SECI).

The complaint alleges that Reliance NU BESS Ltd., a subsidiary of Reliance Power, submitted two forged bank guarantees worth ₹68.20 crore each during a tender process held between April and June. These guarantees were purportedly issued by foreign institutions, including ACE Investment Bank and FirstRand Bank Ltd.

Investigators found that the authenticity of the guarantees was falsely supported through fabricated emails and forged Structured Financial Messaging System (SFMS) confirmations, allegedly issued by the State Bank of India (SBI). SBI later denied issuing any such confirmations, exposing the fraud.

» These guarantees were purportedly issued by foreign institutions, including ACE Investment Bank and FirstRand Bank Ltd.

Police allege that Pal conspired with Biswal and Dutta to procure the forged guarantees through intermediaries, paying substantial sums for the creation of fake financial documents and endorsements. Biswal is believed to have acted as a key intermediary, while Dutta functioned as a middleman facilitating the arrangement.

Officials said a dedicated team led by Laxman Kumar and Ghanshyam carried out the investigation under the supervision of Subodh Kumar Goswami.

The investigation is ongoing, with authorities examining the possible involvement of other individuals in the alleged conspiracy.

Govt honours 35 officials with CM Excellence Awards

AFTER CM REKHA GUPTA’S INITIATIVE

AIMAN FATIMA

NEW DELHI: In a major boost to farmers in the national capital, the Centre has approved the resumption of wheat procurement in Delhi through the Food Corporation of India (FCI), ending a four-year gap and ensuring direct access to Minimum Support Price (MSP) for growers.

Chief Minister Rekha Gupta welcomed the decision, thanking Prime Minister Narendra Modi and the Union government for responding swiftly to her request. “This is an important step in prioritising farmers’ interests. With coordinated efforts between the Centre and the Delhi government, farmers in the capital will be able to secure fair value for their produce and become more economically empowered,” she said.

The move comes after Gupta wrote to Union Minister Pralhad Joshi, highlighting that the absence of procurement since 2021-22 was forcing farmers to sell below MSP. Acting on the request, the Centre has directed FCI to begin procurement for the 2026–27 rabi marketing season from April 24 at two locations, the Narela depot and Najafgarh mandi. The decision is expected to reduce farmers’ dependence on markets outside Delhi, cutting transportation and handling costs while ensuring timely payments. It will also help strengthen the Public Distribution System (PDS) by enabling local sourcing of wheat and reducing unnecessary outward movement of grain.

Reinforcing alignment with national priorities, Gupta said, “The Delhi government is equally committed to safeguarding farmers’ interests and ensuring stable incomes. This initiative is a concrete and impactful step in that direction.”

Delhi has approximately 29,000 hectares under wheat cultivation, producing nearly 80,000 metric tonnes annually, creating a surplus beyond local consumption. The resumption of procurement is expected to directly benefit around 21,000 farmers across the Capital.

Farmers will be required to bring Aadhaar cards, land records, and bank passbooks to sell their produce at designated procurement centres.

NEW DELHI: In a major push to strengthen governance and administrative efficiency, the Delhi government on Tuesday honoured 35 officials with the ‘Chief Minister’s Awards for Excellence and Innovation in Governance and Public Service Delivery 2026’, marking the first time such recognition has been instituted in the capital.

The awards were presented on the occasion of Civil Services Day by Lieutenant Governor Taranjit Singh Sandhu and Chief Minister Rekha Gupta, who commended the role of civil servants in delivering effective and citizen-centric governance.

Addressing the gathering, Sandhu said public trust remains the cornerstone of civil services. “In a changing administrative landscape, civil servants must move beyond traditional roles and become more accountable, result-oriented and citizen-focused,” he said, adding that transparency, fairness and efficiency are key to maintaining credibility. Chief Minister Gupta described civil service as a commitment to nation-building and emphasised the government’s focus on last-mile delivery. “We are committed to taking Delhi to global standards through innovation and citizen-centric policies,” she said, adding that officers are the backbone of governance and crucial to ensuring services reach every citizen.

The event, organised by the Department of Administrative Reforms, saw awardees receiving medals and commendation certificates for their contributions to improving governance and public service delivery. The government also announced that the awards will now be held annually, with winners to be declared every April as part of broader administrative reforms.

Officials said the selection process was designed to be transparent, with a high-level committee chaired by the Chief Secretary evaluating nominations based on parameters such as innovation, emergency management and advancements in digital governance.

Awards were distributed across multiple categories, covering government employees, sector-specific officials, and personnel from autonomous bodies, local bodies and public sector undertakings. A total of 35 officials from departments including education, health, public works, revenue, transport and urban development were recognised.

The initiative aims to foster a culture of excellence, encourage innovation and strengthen the overall work environment within the administration, with the government expressing confidence that it will inspire greater efficiency and accountability in public service delivery.

Heatwave conditions likely in Capital from Apr 22–24; air quality moderate

OUR CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI: The national capital reeled under intense heat on Tuesday as it recorded the maximum temperature at the base station Safdarjung at 38.8 degrees Celsius, 1.1 degrees above normal. The city is yet to witness heatwave conditions this season.

Among other stations, Palam recorded a maximum of 38.6 degrees Celsius (normal), while Lodi Road logged 39.0 degrees Celsius, 2.0 degrees above normal. The Ridge station was the hottest at 40.2 degrees Celsius, 1.8 degrees above normal, followed by Ayanagar at 39.8 degrees Celsius, 1.4 degrees above normal.

On the minimum front, Safdarjung recorded 20.5 degrees Celsius, 2.2 degrees below normal, while Palam registered 22.2 degrees Celsius, 1.1 degrees below normal. Lodi Road saw a low of 18.8 degrees Celsius, 3.2 degrees below normal, Ridge 22.3 degrees Celsius, 0.8 notch below normal, and Ayanagar 21.2 degrees Celsius, 1.2 notches below normal.

The India Meteorological Department has forecast heatwave conditions in the city from Wednesday till April 24, with the maximum temperature likely to touch 42 degrees Celsius and the minimum expected to hover around 22 degrees Celsius.

L-G LAUDS IGL’S ROLE IN EXPANDING PNG NETWORK, ADDRESSING GAS SHORTAGE

NEW DELHI: Delhi Lieutenant Governor Taranjit Singh Sandhu on Tuesday praised Indraprastha Gas Limited, saying it has a key role in expanding the piped natural gas (PNG) network across the national capital, including in its outer and rural areas. In a post on X, Sandhu noted that the company was closely involved in strengthening PNG infrastructure and had also contributed constructively in addressing the recent gas shortage in the city. He mentioned that the efforts were carried out in close coordination with the Delhi government, including the facilitation of uninterrupted permissions, waivers of applicable charges and steps to accelerate PNG connections.

ILLEGAL MEDICINE SALE RACKET BUSTED

NEW DELHI: The Delhi government’s Drugs Control Department busted an illegal medicines sale racket in Shahdara and seized 104 varieties of drugs along with 23 expired items, officials said on Tuesday. According to an official statement, the enforcement action was carried out on April 20 at a premises in Rashid Market in Khureji area following specific inputs about the sale of medicines without a valid licence.

Schools add water bells

OUR CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI: Amid rising temperatures, schools in Delhi have been directed to ring a bell every 45-60 minutes to remind students to drink water and pair them up in a “buddy system” to monitor each other’s health.

These are part of fresh precautionary measures issued by the Directorate of Education (DoE) on Tuesday for Delhi government schools, aided schools and private unaided recognised schools. This comes as the India Meteorological Department (IMD) warned of likely heatwave and adverse weather conditions in the national capital in the coming days. Under the “water bell” system, schools have been asked to ring a bell every 45 to 60 minutes to remind students to drink water and prevent dehydration, the DoE circular said. It said outdoor assemblies should either be curtailed or shifted to shaded or indoor areas with minimum duration, while no open-air classes should be conducted.

quate drinking water, and schools have been asked to ensure the availability of safe and cool drinking water at multiple accessible points, it read.

Schools have also been told to avoid outdoor physical activities and conduct short awareness sessions during class hours and assemblies to educate students about hydration, heat-related illnesses and preventive measures, the department said.

Schools have also been directed to create a “buddy system”, under which, each student will be paired with another during school hours to monitor each other’s physical well-being.

It informed that class teachers have been asked to regularly share IMD advisories and heatwave forecasts with parents through class-specific and ensure students are informed through prayer assemblies and notice boards.

Parents have been advised to send children to school in light, breathable cotton clothes and reinforce the importance of personal hygiene, including daily bathing, it said.

Global delegates tour Delhi Assembly

AIMAN FATIMA

NEW DELHI: A delegation of 43 participants from 18 countries visited the Delhi Legislative Assembly under the International Training Programme in Legislative Drafting organised by the Parliamentary Research and Training Institute for Democracies (PRIDE), Lok Sabha Secretariat, on Tuesday.

Addressing the delegates, Delhi Assembly Speaker Vijender Gupta underlined the importance of legislative drafting in democratic governance. “Legislative drafting lies at the core of democratic governance; the precision of a law determines how effectively it secures rights, ensures accountability, and shapes the everyday lives of citizens,” he said.

The delegation included representatives from countries such as Bangladesh, Bhutan, Oman, Kenya, Sri Lanka, the Philippines, and Tanzania. During the visit, participants were briefed on the historical evolution of the Assembly building, constructed in 1912, which earlier served as the seat of the Imperial Legislative Council and later the Central Legislative Assembly.

Recalling key historical milestones, Gupta referred to the election of Vitthalbhai Patel in 1925 as a significant moment in India’s legislative history. He also mentioned the association of Mahatma Gandhi with deliberations held at the venue, noting the Assembly’s role as both a governance institution and a space for democratic expression.

Highlighting recent initiatives, the Speaker informed delegates that the Assembly now operates fully on solar energy and has adopted paperless functioning through the National e-Vidhan Application. He added that digitisation of the Assembly Library is underway, alongside the development of a Sangrahalaya to showcase its institutional journey.

“The strength of a democracy lies in the clarity and precision of its laws,” Gupta said, encouraging participants to exchange best practices and approach lawmaking with responsibility. The visit also included a screening of a documentary on Vitthalbhai Patel and a presentation on the coffee table book Ek Shatabdi Yatra, followed by interactions with Assembly officials to understand legislative procedures.

REVIEWS DISQUALIFICATION AT MEET

Anti-defection law under lens as Speaker’s panel meets in Puri

OUR CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI: A committee of presiding officers constituted by Om Birla on Tuesday reviewed the constitutional and procedural framework governing the disqualification of legislators under the anti-defection law, officials said.

The deliberations took place during the second meeting of the Committee of Presiding Officers in Puri, bringing together key legislative figures and constitutional experts to examine the functioning and interpretation of provisions under the Tenth Schedule of the Constitution of India.

The four-member panel, headed by Rahul Narwekar, was originally constituted in January 2020 to study issues related to the powers and responsibilities of presiding officers in deciding disqualification petitions. The committee is tasked with reviewing existing rules and identifying gaps or inconsistencies in their implementation across different state legislatures.

Other members of the panel include U.T. Khader, Sharin-gain Longkumer, and Surama Padhi. Senior Lok Sabha officials, secretaries from various state assemblies, constitutional experts, and Pitambar Acharya also attended the meeting, contributing to the discussions on legal and procedural clarity.

Officials said that the committee's deliberations are expected to culminate in a set of comprehensive guidelines for presiding officers across all state legislatures. These guidelines aim to ensure greater consistency, transparency, and efficiency in handling disqualification cases under the anti-defection law, which has often been subject to delays and differing interpretations.

Highlights

In her welcome address,

Padhi underscored the importance of the discussions in strengthening the institutional framework that governs the Tenth Schedule. She noted that evolving political dynamics and increasing instances of party defections necessitate clearer norms and robust mechanisms for adjudication.

The meeting also featured sessions focused on broader themes such as reinforcing parliamentary democracy and improving the overall functioning of legislative institutions. Participants exchanged views on best practices and shared experiences from their respective states to build a more cohesive approach to legislative governance.

Following the discussions, the committee decided to convene its next meeting in Karnataka in about two months to continue its review and work towards finalising its recommendations.

Allahabad High Court says timing gap no bar to maternity leave rights ‘Can’t be denied merely because sought within 2 years of first’

OUR CORRESPONDENT

KOLKATA: The Allahabad High Court on Tuesday held that a second maternity leave cannot be denied merely because it is sought within two years of the first, observing that statutory rights under the law override provisions of the financial handbook.

The order was passed by Justice Karunesh Singh Pawar of the high court’s Lucknow bench while hearing a petition by Manisha Yadav, who had challenged an April 4, 2026 order rejecting her request for a second maternity leave.

The petitioner argued that the Maternity Benefit Act, 1961 is a beneficial legislation and its provisions must take precedence. The state government, however, relied on Rule 153(1) of the financial handbook to contend that a minimum gap of two years between two maternity leaves is mandatory.

Referring to earlier rulings, the high court said that the Maternity Benefit Act, being

Over the weekend, Iran said that it had received new proposals from Washington, but also suggested that a wide gap remains between the sides. Issues that derailed the last round of negotiations included Iran’s nuclear enrichment program, its regional proxies and the Strait.

Ghalibaf on Tuesday accused the United States of wanting Iran to surrender and said that, on the contrary, Iran has been preparing “to reveal new cards on the battlefield.” “We do not accept negotiations under the shadow of threats,” he wrote in an X post.

Despite the rhetorical skirmishing between the two sides, Pakistani officials have expressed confidence that Iran will also send a delegation late Tuesday so that the talks could resume.

Pakistani Foreign Minister Ishaq Dar on Tuesday spoke with his Egyptian counterpart, Badr Abdelatty, to discuss the latest regional developments, as part of diplomatic preparations, Pakistan’s Foreign Ministry.

Dar also met with the ambassador from China, which is a key trading partner with Iran, as the Foreign Ministry in Beijing said that the conflict was at a “critical stage of transition between war and peace.”

Meanwhile, historic diplomatic talks between Israel and Lebanon were set to resume on Thursday in Washington, an Israeli, a Lebanese, and a US official said. All three spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss the behind-the-scenes negotiations.

The Israeli and Lebanese ambassadors met last week for the first direct diplomatic talks in decades. Israel says the talks are aimed at disarming Hezbollah and reaching a peace agreement with Lebanon.

A 10-day ceasefire began on Friday in Lebanon, where fighting between Israel and Iranian-backed Hezbollah militants broke out two days after the US and Israel launched joint strikes on Iran to start the war. Fighting in Lebanon has killed more than 2,290 people.

Since the war started, at least 3,375 people have been killed in Iran, according to authorities. Additionally, 23 people have died in Israel and more than a dozen in Gulf Arab states. Fifteen Israeli soldiers in Lebanon and 13 US service members throughout the region have been killed.

during school hours.

The advisory further instructs schools to limit outdoor assemblies or shift them to shaded or indoor areas for shorter durations. Open-air classes have been prohibited as part of the safety measures.

Neighbouring states Haryana and Punjab are also experiencing high temperatures. In Haryana, Bhiwani recorded a maximum temperature of 42.5 degrees Celsius. Other cities reported similar trends, with Gurugram at 41 degrees Celsius, Sirsa also at 41 degrees Celsius, Rohtak at 40.3

degrees Celsius, Hisar at 39.6 degrees Celsius, Karnal at 39.5 degrees Celsius, and Ambala at 38.8 degrees Celsius.

Punjab reported above-normal temperatures as well. Bathinda and Faridkot both recorded maximum temperatures of 41.6 degrees Celsius, while Chandigarh saw the mercury rise to 38 degrees Celsius.

Rajasthan is also facing rising heat, with several cities recording temperatures above seasonal averages. Kota registered the highest maximum temperature in the state at 42 degrees Celsius. Cities including Jaipur, Udaipur, Jodhpur and Bikaner also reported above-normal temperatures.

The weather department has issued a heatwave alert for multiple districts in Rajasthan, including Sri Ganganagar, Hanu-mangarh, Jhunjhunu, Bharat-pur and Dholpur, from April 23 onward. Heatwave conditions are expected to set in across parts of the state from Thursday.

In contrast, Himachal Pradesh has seen relatively milder conditions, with dry weather prevailing since Monday evening. However, the Shimla meteorological office has forecast a wet spell between April 24 and April 27. A yellow alert has been issued for thunderstorms, lightning and gusty winds in the districts of Chamba, Kangra, Kullu and Mandi on April 25.

Meanwhile, in Jammu and Kashmir, seasonal migration has begun under challenging conditions. Hundreds of Gujjar and Bakerwal families have started their traditional biannual movement towards highland pastures in the Chenab Valley. The migration, which began last week, is taking place despite unseasonal snowfall in higher-altitude areas, making the journey more difficult for the nomadic communities and their livestock.

Congress moves

nation after the government failed to secure a majority as “unprecedented, unethical and blatant abuse of power.” He added that questioning elected representatives for discharging their duties amounted to “a direct affront to the authority of Parliament and to the democratic rights of the people of India.”

Venugopal also argued that the defeated amendment bill, presented as a measure for women’s reservation in the Lok Sabha and state assemblies, contained provisions affecting Article 82 related to delimitation. He claimed opposition members opposed the bill over concerns that it could weaken constitutional safeguards and alter the balance of representation.

“It is appalling that aspersions were cast on MPs who were performing their duties and protecting the Constitution,” he said in the notice, adding that such remarks undermine the independence and integrity of legislators.

He further cited parliamentary conventions and Article 105, which protects the privileges of Members, stating that no individual, including the Prime Minister, should reflect on or question the conduct or voting of MPs.

Congress general secretary Jairam Ramesh also criticised the address, saying such speeches are meant to foster unity and confidence. He alleged that the Prime Minister made 59 attacks on the Congress party during the broadcast.

Venugopal urged the Speaker to take “immediate and decisive steps” to uphold the sanctity of Parliament and ensure that such incidents are neither ignored nor repeated.

The complaint relates to Modi’s televised address on Saturday, which came amid the ongoing Assembly elections in five regions.

Polling has already been completed in Assam, Kerala and Puducherry, while Tamil Nadu and West Bengal are scheduled to vote on April 23, with West Bengal’s final phase on April 29. The MCC has been in force since March 15 and will remain until counting on May 4.

CPI(M) general secretary MA Baby and CPI Rajya Sabha MP P Sandosh Kumar wrote separately to Chief Election Commissioner Gyanesh Kumar, alleging misuse of the public broadcaster Door-darshan to air a political message. Nearly 700 activists and citizens have also approached the Commission over the issue.

In his letter, Baby described the broadcast as a “serious violation” and a “flagrant breach” of provisions governing conduct of parties in power. He said using a public platform for political messaging during elections creates an uneven playing field and undermines free and fair polls.

During the address, Modi criticised the Congress and its allies over the defeat of the women’s reservation amendment bill, while reiterating his government’s commitment to women’s empowerment and apologising to women voters.

Despite limitations

Deepak, who also represented various other Hindu organisations in the court like Chetana Conscience of Women, All India Organisations of Lord Ayyappa Temples, besides the head priests of the Sree Padmanabhaswamy and Chilkur Balaji temples, submitted that what cannot be done directly, cannot be done indirectly.

The lawyer told the bench that a legislation should not be used as a back door for courts to test the “rationality” of centuries-old religious traditions.

He submitted that the rights under Article 25(1) of the Constitution extend not just to natural persons but to juristic persons as well and in the context of Hindu faith systems, juristic persons include religious institutions, dei-ties and other objects of worship, such as holy books, relics, natural formations, rivers, mountains, holy sites and in certain instances, even animals.

“This inclusivity and elasticity of ‘persons’ within the meaning of Article 25(1) must be borne in mind to accommodate the rights of the objects of worship and the believers since the latter are not just practitioners exercising their own rights but are also agents on behalf of the objects of worship,” he said.

Referring to a 2015 verdict of the apex court, Deepak said it has been held that it is not for the court to entertain writ petitions that challenge religious practices since making law on the subject falls exclusively within the realm of the State, which as stated earlier, does not include the judiciary.

“The role of the judiciary is only ex post facto, that is, after the promulgation of a law, and only on parameters and to the extent permitted by the Constitution. Even when entertaining writ petitions in relation to a State-made law that impacts religious practices and customs, the role of the judiciary is limited to adjudicating on the validity and constitutionality of State action and enforcement of rights against the State but does not extend to adjudication of the essentiality or validity of religious practices and customs,” he contended.

The senior counsel submitted that if a pre-existing religious practice is codified through a statute, it would only amount to statutory acknowledgment of a pre-existing practice or tradition and not make it amenable to a judicial review.

Earlier in the day, the court asked as to who will come to the rescue of a believer who is not allowed to touch the deity and itself answered the question, saying it has to be the Constitution.

The remarks of the judges came after the senior counsel representing the chief priest of the Sabarimala temple in Kerala said when a devotee goes to a temple for worship, it cannot be in antagonism to the characteristics of a deity.

Senior advocate Gopal San-karanarayanan, representing the review petitioners, said the court must examine the broader scheme of Part III of the Constitution that deals with fundamental rights, particularly the interaction between Articles 25 and 26.

He urged the bench to step back from the specifics of the Sabarimala case and instead, consider how religious freedom operates across diverse contexts, from temple entry to practices in other faiths.

The nine-judge Constitution bench is hearing petitions related to discrimination against women at religious places, including the Sabarimala temple, and on the ambit and scope of the religious freedom practised by multiple faiths.

Tuesday was the sixth day of the hearing, which would continue on Wednesday.

In September 2018, a five-judge Constitution bench, by a 4:1 majority verdict, lifted a ban that prevented women between the ages of 10 and 50 years from entering the Sabarimala Ayyappa temple and held that the centuries-old Hindu religious practice was illegal and unconstitutional.

Thrissur Pooram

The force of the explosion sent thick columns of black smoke into the sky and was heard several kilometres away, residents said. At least five sheds spread across several acres were destroyed in the blaze, and nearby houses reportedly suffered damage from the shockwaves.

Rescue operations were complicated by continuing explosions from stored firecrackers, forcing firefighters and police personnel to proceed with extreme caution. Teams initially had to spray water from a distance before entering the site as blasts continued to erupt intermittently.

Television visuals and eyewitness accounts captured the scale of the tragedy, with local residents among the first responders. Many were seen carrying the injured across slushy terrain and assisting in the recovery of remains scattered across the site.

“Parts of bodies were lying scattered. We helped gather them and send them to hospitals,” a local resident said.

Wilson, a worker who survived the blast, described the moment of the explosion. “There was a sudden flash beside me and then fire. After that, I don’t remember anything,” he said, adding that all workers at the unit were Malayalees and that no migrant labourers were employed.

He maintained that the unit had been operating in line with safety requirements and suggested that extreme heat or direct sunlight on stored gunpowder could have triggered the fire. Local officials also indicated that high temperatures may have been a contributing factor, though the exact cause has not yet been established.

Authorities said food had reportedly been arranged for around 40 workers at the site, reinforcing estimates about the number of people present. Some workers managed to escape with minor injuries.

Wadakanchery Municipal Chairman P N Surendran, who visited the site, said there was still no clarity on the total number of workers or injured persons due to the ongoing hazards. He noted that the heat and continuing blasts made it difficult for rescue teams and locals to approach the area safely.

Most of those affected are believed to be residents of Mundathicode and nearby Kundannur areas. The fireworks unit had reportedly been operating in the region for years without any major incident, making the scale of the accident particularly shocking for the local community.

The Kerala government has mobilised multiple departments, including police, fire and rescue services, health, revenue, and disaster management, to coordinate rescue and relief operations. A special mechanism has been set up to monitor the situation.

Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan directed that all necessary medical assistance be provided to the injured and instructed officials to ensure coordinated action across departments. He also said that expert doctors from outside the state could be brought in if required to treat those with severe burn injuries.

State Health Minister Veena George ordered that specialised treatment be ensured for the injured and directed authorities to make necessary arrangements at Government Medical College, Thrissur, and Thrissur General Hospital. Nearby hospitals have also been placed on alert to handle additional cases.

A control room has been opened at the state-run medical college to assist families and coordinate information related to the injured and deceased.

The district administration has ordered a magisterial-level inquiry into the incident. The sub-collector has been tasked with conducting a detailed probe into the cause of the explosion and the circumstances surrounding it.

The state government has sanctioned Rs 50 lakh for rescue and related operations as efforts continue to secure the area, locate any remaining victims, and defuse unexploded firecrackers.

Expressions of grief poured in from political leaders across the country. Prime Minister Narendra Modi conveyed condolences over the loss of lives and announced an ex gratia of Rs 2 lakh for the next of kin of each deceased.

Leader of the Opposition in the Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi and Congress MP from Wayanad Priyanka Gandhi Vadra also expressed sorrow over the tragedy. Union Minister of State Suresh Gopi described the incident as deeply distressing, while BJP Kerala chief Rajeev Chandrasekhar and state Leader of Opposition V D Satheesan also conveyed their condolences.

As smoke gradually cleared from the blast site, families gathered outside hospitals and the affected area, waiting for information about missing relatives. Festive preparations for Thrissur Pooram have been overshadowed by grief, as authorities continue rescue operations and attempt to establish the full extent of one of the most severe such accidents in the region in recent years.

Quota bill: BJP announces massive women’s rally

BJP activists take part in the Jan Akrosh Morcha in Mumbai

PTI

BHUBANESWAR: The BJP’s Odisha unit on Tuesday announced a series of agitation programmes, including a massive rally of women on April 22 to protest the stance of the Congress and its allies on women’s reservation.

Similar protests in various forms will also be held across districts between April 24 and April 29, Odisha BJP Mahila Morcha president Aishwarya Biswal said in a press conference here.

These programmes are part of the BJP’s nationwide protests following the defeat of the Constitution (131st Amendment) Bill, 2026, seeking to implement 33 per cent reservation for women in the Lok Sabha and state assemblies from the 2029 parliamentary polls, in the Lower House of Parliament on April 17.

The Congress, on the other hand, alleged that the BJP is spreading misleading information regarding women’s reservation and alleged that it is not serious about implementing the 33 per cent quota

“A huge Akorsh Yatra will be held in Bhubaneswar on April 22. Women from every section of the society will participate in it. More than 50,000 women will participate in this rally,” the Odisha BJP Mahila Morcha president said.

Small street corner meetings will also be held on this occasion, Biswal said.

Biswal said the “anti-women approach” of the opposition parties will be exposed through press conferences in every district and major cities of the state.

“On April 24 and 25, Akrosh Sammelan will be held in all the organisational districts of the state and from April 27 to 29, Akrosh Padayatra will be held in all the mandals of the state,” she said.

Debates and seminars will also be held in different colleges and universities to protest the alleged injustice done to women, the BJP leader said.

Meanwhile, at a separate press conference here, AICC spokesperson Mahima Singh ridiculed the saffron party over its agitation.

“The Bill was introduced by the BJP as a conspiracy against women’s empowerment. Their cry is not for women’s empowerment, but over the failure of that conspiracy. Ever since the defeat in Parliament, the Modi system is in a state of panic. So, the BJP is spreading false propaganda,” Singh alleged.

“On April 18, while addressing the nation on the taxpayer-funded channel Prasar Bharati, the Prime Minister (Narendra Modi) not only violated the model code of conduct by mentioning the Congress 58 times in 29 minutes, but also demonstrated his state of fear. His anxiety was clearly visible,”

TN polls: Month-long high-decibel campaign ends, all eyes on poll day

Campaign was also marked by acrimonious debates between archrivals DMK & AIADMK

OUR CORRESPONDENT

CHENNAI: The high-intensity poll campaign in Tamil Nadu that saw sparks fly over issues ranging from delimitation, corruption, law and order and charges bordering on personal attacks ended on Tuesday.

The campaign for over a month was dominated by DMK's allegation of AIADMK being under "Delhi's control" and that the poll was a fight between TN and Delhi-NDA.

Chief Minister and DMK president MK Stalin, AIADMK general secretary Edappadi K Palaniswami, Prime Minister Narendra Modi and TVK Chief Vijay among others crisscrossed the length and breadth of 234 Assembly seats to reach out to the voters.

The AIADMK targeted the DMK alleging dynasty and family rule, deterioration of law and order, huge debt burden, alleged prevalence of drugs and lack of safety and crimes against women and children.

The campaign was also marked by acrimonious debates between the archrivals DMK and AIADMK on several issues, even as new kid in the block, TVK chief Vijay announced his entry with an aggressive campaign trail, with engagements that saw impressive turnouts.

dominated the electrifying campaign.

Towards the end of the campaign, delimitation and women's reservation issue and the defeat of the Constitutional amendment Bill became the highlight of the political discourse.

DMK and AIADMK fronts blamed each other and Stalin burnt a copy of the delimitation Bill and dubbed it a "black law", alleging it seeks to make the Tamil people "refugees" in their own land. Later, Stalin alleged PM Modi's attempt to use women's quota as weapon has boomeranged on him.

Joining the campaign at the fag end, Congress leader Rahul Gandhi alleged that AIADMK was just a mask and BJP wanted to install 'puppet CM' in TN to listen to Modi.

Wrapping up his campaign at his constituency of Kolathur here, Stalin reiterated his accusation that AIADMK was in "Delhi's control," and that the polls are a TN versus NDA-Delhi battle.

He said he has slogged all his life for the people and the welfare schemes he has implemented would speak for him and listed those including Rs 1,000 assistance per month for women and the fare-free travel in buses for women.

Kharge's 'terrorist' comment against PM triggers political row

BJP hits back terming the remark as 'crass'

OUR CORRESPONDENT

Congress chief Mallikarjun Kharge addresses an election campaign ahead of the TN Assembly polls, in Chennai

CHENNAI: Congress chief Mallikarjun Kharge on Tuesday accused Prime Minister Narendra Modi of "terrorising" political parties by misusing government machinery and central agencies to stifle the Opposition, triggering strong reactions from the BJP, which attacked the Opposition leader for calling Modi a "terrorist".

Addressing a press conference in Chennai alongside AICC General Secretary (Organisation) KC Venugopal, Kharge initially referred to the Prime Minister as a "terrorist" while criticising the AIADMK's alliance with the BJP.

Questioning how the AIADMK -- a party rooted in the Dravidian ideologies of Periyar and C N Annadurai -- could justify partnering with Prime Minister Modi, Kharge said: "How these AIADMK people, who themselves put the photo of Annadurai... how he is misusing his power and government machinery and abusing, malingering Opposition parties," Kharge said.

The Congress president's remarks drew strong condemnation from senior BJP leaders, who dubbed the remarks "crass" and "a personal insult" to Modi. BJP leader Piyush Goyal also demanded an apology from Congress leader Rahul Gandhi and Tamil Nadu Chief Minister M K Stalin.

"I feel ashamed that the Congress and the DMK have stooped so low that they are insulting the Prime Minister, who is democratically elected by the people of India, by calling him a terrorist," Goyal said on X.

Demanding an apology from Gandhi and Stalin for "this downright insult" to the Prime Minister, the Union minister said the Congress and DMK have humiliated 140 crore Indians, including our 8 crore Tamil brothers and sisters, with this statement.

AAP CHIEF KEJRIWAL TO TAMIL NADU PEOPLE

'If NDA voted to power it'll undo Stalin's good work'

OUR CORRESPONDENT

CHENNAI: National convenor of AAP Arvind Kejriwal on Tuesday cautioned the people of Tamil Nadu to be "wary" of the NDA, saying if by mistake they voted that alliance to power, then it will undo DMK Chief M K Stalin's good work in no time.

Also, the NDA would find a chief minister of its own as they did in Bihar, he said. Arvind Kejriwal criticised the BJP's governance in Gujarat, where, despite ruling for 30 years, the party has not improved the condition of roads, schools, and hospitals. "There is so much corruption... wherever the BJP ruled, the state has been ruined," he claimed.

Citing his experience in Delhi, the former chief minister accused the BJP of undoing all the good work of his government.

"Last year in Delhi, people voted for the BJP, and now they got fed up with the BJP government. All the good work we have done in education, health, infrastructure, road and electricity and water has been undone by the BJP. So, by mistake, if people vote for BJP or NDA or AIADMK, then all the good work of Chief Minister M K Stalin in the last five years will be undone in no time."

Kejriwal told reporters at the end of his two-day poll campaign for the ruling DMK and its allies here.

So, if people wanted the good schemes and welfare activities of the DMK to continue, then they should vote for the DMK, he urged.

He claimed that the people of Tamil Nadu hated the BJP, "its divisive politics, its vicious politics," and that was the reason why the BJP has not been able to make a mark in TN for so many years. "This time they are contesting 27 seats in alliance with the AIADMK, which is completely in the clutches of the BJP," he alleged.

The former chief minister further claimed that "even if BJP wins one seat - I am sure the people will not vote for NDA or AIADMK or BJP - but suppose if they win, theoretically if they win or get one seat, they will find their own CM as they did in Bihar."

Hence, he wanted to convey to the people of the state that they should be "wary of the NDA because NDA is BJP and it is not BJP plus AIADMK" as being projected.

Shah escalates attack on Mamata, promises jobs, Gorkha solution, UCC

OUR CORRESPONDENT

KURSEONG/SALBONI/ KULTI: Union Home minister Amit Shah on Tuesday mounted a multi-pronged offensive against the TMC, seeking to stitch together disparate strands of discontent in West Bengal -- from the Darjeeling hills to the industrial belt of Kulti and the agrarian East Midnapore -- into a single narrative of "change".

In four rallies across north and south of Bengal on the final day of campaigning for the first phase of Assembly polls, he accused Chief Minister Mamata Benrjee of shielding infiltrators, nurturing dynastic politics and presiding over corruption, fear and joblessness.

The sharpest political message came from Kurseong in Darjeeling district, where Shah attempted to strike an emotional chord with the politically crucial hill electorate by promising to resolve the decades-old Gorkha issue within six months if the BJP came to power.

"Within six months of the BJP forming the government

in West Bengal, every Gorkha will have a smile on his face. We will find such a solution to the Gorkha issue that Gorkhas can live in peace," he said.

Though Shah did not utter the words "Gorkhaland" or "statehood", the promise was a clear reiteration of the BJP's long-standing assurance of a "permanent political solution" for the hills -- an issue that has shaped politics in Darjeeling for decades.

The BJP has retained the Darjeeling Lok Sabha seat since 2009, largely on the back of this promise, even as it stopped short of explicitly endorsing a separate state, mindful of the political backlash such a move could trigger in south Bengal.

Seeking to put the TMC on the defensive in the hills, Shah claimed that after becoming the Union home minister, he had convened three meetings on the issue, but "not even once" did a representative of Mamata Banerjee attend those.

"Mamata Didi, we are not dependent on you for a solution to the Gorkha issue. We have appointed an interlocutor who is preparing a report by engaging with Gorkha organisations here and officials of the West Bengal government," he added.

Shah also promised that names of Gorkhas allegedly deleted during the Special Intensive Revision of electoral Rolls would be restored and that "false cases" slapped on Gorkha activists would be withdrawn before July 31, if the BJP formed a government in Bengal.

Palaniswami alleges DMK planned to split AIADMK

SALEM: AIADMK general secretary Edappadi K Palaniswami on Tuesday claimed that the DMK hatched a plan to split his party but it was successfully negated.

Addressing a poll campaign in his native Salem district on the concluding day of campaigning for the Assembly polls scheduled on Thursday, he also questioned the ruling DMK on the investment scenario.

The AIADMK chief charged DMK president M K Stalin with trying to "break" the AIADMK earlier. "When I was chief minister (2016-21), how many issues I had faced. Stalin hatched a plan to break our party, but we shattered that plan into pieces", he said. Reiterating that this Assembly election is a contest between a "single family" that survives by "exploiting" Tamil Nadu and the people of the state, the leader of the Opposition said "people would put an end to this dynastic rule and hereditary politics".

Strong, unsealed rooms shouldn't be opened under any circumstance, says EC

OUR CORRESPONDENT

THIRUVANANTHAPURAM: The Election Commission on Tuesday issued clear directions to all District Election Officers and Returning Officers in Kerala not to open any strong rooms or unsealed rooms in counting centres under any circumstances before the day the votes are counted.

The direction was issued by Kerala Chief Electoral Officer Rathan U Kelkar following reports of a strong room storing EVMs in Perambra constituency in Kozhikode being opened on Monday, and reported plans to open another one in Nenmara constituency in Palakkad.

"It has been reiterated that under no circumstances shall any strong rooms or unsealed rooms be opened or accessed for the purpose of preparing Index Cards or verifying data in the ENCORE portal.

"All concerned officers have been directed to ensure strict compliance with these instructions to safeguard the integrity, transparency, and security of the electoral process," a statement issued by Kelkar's office said.

Responding to a TV channel's query on the matter, senior Congress leader K Muralidharan said that according to election laws and rules, no one is supposed to go near the strong rooms.

"So, why was the materials room kept close to the strong room? There is something suspicious about it. The party and the UDF are looking into the matter very seriously. There has to be a proper probe into the matter," he contended.

"Overall, it appears that steps are being taken by the state and Central governments to sabotage the people's verdict. That is what we understand from these incidents," he claimed.

I will be danger to those who betray TN, hinder progress, says CM Stalin

OUR CORRESPONDENT

CHENNAI: Chief Minister M K Stalin on Tuesday said he will be a "danger" to those who betray Tamil Nadu and want to hinder its growth and said the Centre's aggressive push for delimitation was to "punish" best-performing states like Tamil Nadu.

With two days left for the state Assembly election, Stalin, who is the president of DMK, recalled the Opposition's claim that he was "more dangerous than Kalaigarnar (late Chief Minister M Karunanidhi)" and said that he could never be compared with Karunanidhi, who, more than being a father, was an inspiring leader to him.

"During the Assembly election in 2021, people said

'Stalin is more dangerous than Kalaigarnar'. I can never be compared with him. I addressed him as the leader more often than I called him father. One thing comes to my mind when they say so. I will always be a danger to those who want to deceive Tamil Nadu and want to hinder its growth," he said in a video message posted on the social media platform 'X'.

He asked, "If I am one step ahead of Kalaigarnar in this, isn't that a matter of pride for me?"

"During the past five years, people placed trust in me as the chief minister, and I rose to the occasion by dispensing welfare assistance and even defending the state's interests," Stalin said.

Akhilesh appoints Seema Rajbhar as SP women's wing chief

Signals OBC outreach ahead of 2027 UP polls

BISWAJEET BANERJEE

LUCKNOW: Samajwadi Party president Akhilesh Yadav on Tuesday appointed Seema Rajbhar as the national president of the party's women's wing, a move seen as part of a broader strategy to strengthen its social coalition ahead of the 2027 Uttar Pradesh Assembly elections.

A resident of Ballia, Seema Rajbhar was earlier associated with the Suheldev Bharatiya Samaj Party led by Uttar Pradesh minister Om Prakash Rajbhar. She had served as the district president of the party's women's wing before joining the Samajwadi Party in late 2022.

Her exit from the SBSP came after she accused Rajbhar and his son Arvind Rajbhar of exploitation of women and promoting family dominance within the party.

After joining the SP, she was made national secretary of its student wing.

Seema replaces Juhi Singh, who was serving as the national

Key Points

- » Seema replaces Juhi Singh, who was serving as the national president of the women's wing president of the women's wing. The announcement was made at the party headquarters, with Yadav asking Singh to declare the new appointment and assuring her of a bigger organisational responsibility in the future.

Political observers view the appointment as a calculated attempt by the SP to expand its reach among the Rajbhar community in eastern Uttar Pradesh, a region where the caste holds significant electoral influence. Given Seema Rajbhar's past proximity to OP

Rajbhar, the move is seen as an effort to dent the support base of the BJP ally in Purvanchal.

The decision is also being linked to the party's PDA plank, aimed at consolidating backward classes, Dalits and minorities. By elevating a leader from an OBC community, the SP appears to be reinforcing its social justice narrative while simultaneously targeting a key voter segment.

The timing of the announcement is politically significant. It comes on a day when the BJP held a women's march in Lucknow, accusing the Opposition of being against women's reservation. The SP's move to appoint a new women's wing chief and induce several leaders is being seen as a counter to that narrative.

Several leaders from other parties also joined the SP in the presence of Yadav at the party office. Among them were BSP national spokesperson M H Khan, along with Shyamal Nishad, Vijay Kumar Lal, Akhilesh Pathak, Ishrat Ali Khan and Neelu Satyarthi.

ULTIMATUM DRIVEN DIPLOMACY?

The language of diplomacy has always carried within it the shadow of coercion, but rarely is that shadow articulated as bluntly as it has been in recent days. When Donald Trump openly states that bombing may resume if negotiations fail, diplomacy ceases to be a process of persuasion and begins to resemble an ultimatum backed by force. The fragile ceasefire between the United States and Iran, instead of offering a genuine window for de-escalation, now appears to function as a countdown to renewed conflict. For the global community, this moment is not merely about one bilateral standoff; it is about the erosion of diplomatic norms that have, however imperfectly, attempted to contain war within the boundaries of negotiation and restraint. When military action is positioned as a negotiating tactic rather than a last resort, the line between peace talks and war preparation begins to dissolve, raising unsettling questions about the future of international engagement.

At the heart of the current crisis lies a deeper transformation in how power is exercised and projected. The assertion that Iran has “no choice” but to accept a deal reflects not just confidence, but a worldview in which asymmetry of force substitutes for mutual consent. The destruction of military infrastructure, the targeting of leadership, and the suggestion of indirect regime change together point to a strategy that extends far beyond conventional conflict resolution. It is a strategy rooted in compellence—the idea that sustained pressure can reshape political outcomes. Yet history offers sobering reminders that such approaches often produce unintended consequences. Nations subjected to external coercion do not always capitulate; they adapt, resist, and, in some cases, radicalise. For Iran, a country with a long history of external intervention and internal resilience, the prospect of negotiating under the threat of renewed bombing is unlikely to generate the kind of stable, enduring settlement that the situation demands. Instead, it risks entrenching hostility and perpetuating cycles of confrontation.

For India, the implications of this unfolding scenario are neither distant nor abstract. West Asia remains central to India’s energy security, trade routes and diaspora interests. Any escalation involving Iran carries immediate consequences for oil supply chains, shipping corridors and regional stability. The Strait of Hormuz, through which a significant portion of global energy flows, becomes a potential flashpoint whenever tensions rise. A renewed conflict would not only disrupt markets but also place additional pressure on India’s economic planning at a time when global uncertainties are already high. Beyond economics, there is also the question of strategic positioning. India has traditionally maintained a delicate balance in its relations with both the United States and Iran, navigating competing interests with caution. A scenario in which diplomatic engagement is overshadowed by military brinkmanship complicates this balancing act, forcing difficult choices in a region where neutrality is increasingly difficult to sustain.

There is also a larger institutional concern that extends beyond the immediate conflict. The normalisation of coercive diplomacy risks weakening the very architecture of international law and multilateral engagement. When powerful states signal that agreements must be reached under the implicit or explicit threat of force, smaller and middle powers are left with diminished faith in negotiated outcomes. The credibility of dialogue as a tool of conflict resolution begins to erode, replaced by a more transactional and volatile order. In such an environment, ceasefires become tactical pauses rather than genuine efforts at peace, and negotiations are perceived less as forums for compromise and more as arenas of pressure. This shift has long-term consequences. It encourages an arms race in both conventional and unconventional capabilities, incentivises strategic alliances built on fear rather than trust, and ultimately makes the global system more fragile and unpredictable.

What is required at this juncture is not rhetorical escalation, but a reaffirmation of the principles that make diplomacy meaningful. The success of any agreement with Iran—or indeed any state—depends not merely on the balance of power, but on the legitimacy of the process through which it is achieved. A deal extracted under the shadow of imminent bombardment may deliver short-term compliance, but it is unlikely to secure long-term stability. For the United States, the challenge lies in reconciling its strategic objectives with the need to preserve the credibility of diplomatic engagement. For Iran, the imperative is to engage constructively without allowing negotiations to be framed entirely by coercion. And for the wider international community, including countries like India, there is a responsibility to advocate for restraint, dialogue and a rules-based approach to conflict resolution. The alternative is a world in which diplomacy becomes indistinguishable from threat, and peace is reduced to a temporary interruption in an ongoing cycle of force.

A warrior of immense talent and generosity, Karan’s story warns that personal grievance can distort judgment and lead greatness astray

“What has been done, whether good or evil, must inevitably bear its consequence”.

– Karan Parva, Mahabharata

Among the many figures who emerge from India’s epic tradition, few are as moving, gifted, and tragic as Karan. His life commands admiration not because it is free from contradiction, but because it is shaped by it. He is brave yet wounded, noble yet flawed, generous yet morally compromised. He rises through discipline rather than privilege, earns distinction through effort rather than inheritance, and remains one of the most compelling examples of personal excellence in the Mahabharata. Yet his story also offers a sobering lesson. Individual greatness, however extraordinary, does not by itself guarantee moral rightness. A person may possess talent, courage, loyalty, and benevolence, and still fall short if engaged in the wrong cause. That is what gives Karan’s story its enduring value. It is not merely the account of a warrior’s rise and fall, but a profound reflection on life, ethical conduct, moral choice, and the responsibilities that accompany strength.

Karan’s life begins with a deprivation of identity. Born to Kunti before marriage and abandoned at birth to preserve social honour, he is raised in a charioteer’s household, far removed from the status into which he was actually born. From the beginning, his struggle is not merely material but deeply personal. He knows he possesses the temperament and ability of a warrior, yet the world refuses to recognise him on equal terms. This early denial shapes his emotional life. He is driven not only by ambition but by the search for dignity. He wants to prove that worth does not flow only from lineage, but from merit, discipline, and courage. His story, therefore, affirms a foundational truth. Human worth cannot be reduced to birth, and true stature is not inherited but built.

In this sense, Karan represents the power of the individual contributor. He does not rise through inherited legitimacy or institutional comfort but through personal effort. He trains, perseveres, and sharpens his capabilities despite rejection. Circumstances may influence where one starts, but they do not have to determine what one becomes. Talent, when joined with discipline and endurance, can create stature even in an unequal world. His life, therefore, carries not only a message of resilience but also an institutional lesson of lasting relevance. Organisations and societies must build genuinely meritocratic cultures, for when merit is denied recognition, both the individual and the system are diminished.

Karan’s story reminds us that greatness acquires meaning only when it is guided by principle

Yet his story also teaches that pain, if left unresolved, can distort judgment. The humiliations he faces do not merely strengthen his resolve but deepen his grievance. The insult he suffers at the tournament, where he is not allowed to challenge Arjuna because he does not belong to the Kshatriya lineage, leaves him with more than disappointment. It leaves a wound. Adversity can build character, but injury can also harden into resentment if it is not tempered by inner resolve. Karan’s life reminds us that achievement alone does not heal deep-seated wounds. Without self-respect, self-awareness, and emotional balance, even the most accomplished person remains vulnerable to destructive choices. Healthy competition can refine excellence, but ego-driven rivalry weakens learning agility and leads to poor strategic judgment. That is why leaders and individuals alike must cultivate emotional intelligence, self-awareness, and inner balance.

A defining moment in Karan’s life comes when Duryodhan publicly honours him and grants him the kingdom of Anga. At a time when others deny him recognition, Duryodhan gives him legitimacy and position. Karan’s gratitude is deep, and his loyalty to Duryodhan becomes one of the most striking features of his character. There is genuine nobility in this. He does not abandon the one who stood beside him in his hour of humiliation. His rise also underlines the importance of recognition, mentorship, and sponsorship. A single act of trust can alter the course of a life.

At the same time, this is where one of the deepest ethical warnings of his story emerges. Loyalty is a virtue only when it remains aligned with dharma. When loyalty becomes detached from moral judgment, it turns into complicity. Karan knows that, at important moments, Duryodhan’s path is not righteous, as he subordinates dharma to personal grievance and ambition. He sees the decline of moral order in the Kurukshetra war by sanctioning moral transgression, yet continues to stand with him. Most painfully, during Draupadi’s humiliation in the game of dice, Karan does not rise above the impropriety of the moment. Instead, he becomes part of it. This remains one of the great moral failures of his life. No amount of personal suffering gives one the right to participate in another’s humiliation. A leader is judged not only by loyalty, but by the courage to challenge unethical practices. Silence in the face of wrongdoing is not neutrality but a failure.

This is why Karan’s life cannot be read as a simple tale of victimhood. He is undeniably wronged, yet his responses are not without fault. For leaders in particular, his life is a reminder that one must move from a victim mindset to an ownership mindset. Over time, a legitimate grievance hardens into retribution. His desire to prove himself against those who denied him draws him toward adharma. Instead of allowing pain to deepen wisdom, he allows it to strengthen opposition. In doing so, he misdirects personal hurt to an unrighteous cause. Not every battle deserves our loyalty simply because it gives us recognition. What matters is whether recognition draws one closer to what is right or further away from it. Success, in the truest sense, is not competence alone. It is aligned with the right vision, the right values, and the right moral vision.

And yet, if Karan’s life contains moral error, it also contains exceptional ethical radiance. His generosity is among the most celebrated qualities in the epic tradition. He is benevolent, not out of display, but out of instinct. He gives freely, and often without calculation. Tradition remembers that even while dying, Karan still wished to be generous. In a well-known incident, when he has nothing left to offer, he breaks his own gold tooth to give it to a poor Brahmin who approached him for alms, not knowing that he was actually Krishna in disguise, testing his famed generosity. Even at the edge of death, benevolence does not abandon him. His generosity demonstrates that deprivation did not impoverish his character. Yet his life also teaches that values such as generosity and empathy, however essential, must be guided by discernment. Goodness of heart alone does not prevent error if it is not guided by right judgment. Generosity and empathy, however essential, must be balanced by moral discernment and strategic foresight.

Karan’s life also illuminates a distinctive dimension of leadership through the power of excellence without entitlement. Denied recognition by birth and excluded from formal structures, he did not withdraw from effort. Instead, he forged authority through relentless discipline, mastery, and consistency of performance. This is leadership expressed not through position, but through personal standard, the ability to command respect even before institutions are prepared to acknowledge it. At the same time, his story offers a caution to both leaders and systems. When merit is overlooked, it does not disappear. It finds expression elsewhere, and often with greater force. Real authority does not rest with titles but with excellence. Yet his life is enduring not only because it demonstrates perseverance, dignity, gratitude, and benevolence, but also because it warns against allowing injury to become identity, loyalty to become blindness, and revenge to become purpose. In that sense, Karan’s story reminds us that ethical and moral values matter most when they are difficult to uphold, and that strength itself acquires meaning only when it is guided by principle.

In the end, Karan is remembered not simply for his heroism, his generosity, or the injustices he endured, but because his life illuminates a deeper truth about human conduct. Greatness and talent, by themselves, do not suffice. What gives enduring meaning to a life is the moral direction in which those gifts are placed. Karan possessed rare brilliance and an extraordinary instinct for generosity, yet he allowed personal humiliation and grievance to draw him toward adharma. More than any external circumstance, it was this alignment that led to his fall. His story, therefore, endures not only as one of personal grandeur but also as a cautionary reminder that even the finest qualities must remain anchored in what is right, or they may lead one astray.

Securing India’s Supply Lines

In a fractured geopolitical climate, India’s economic rise will depend on how well it protects shipping routes, energy flows and critical imports

The resurgence of geopolitical volatility in West Asia has, once again, exposed the inherent fragility of global supply chains. As confrontations involving Iran, Israel, and the United States escalate, the fallout extends far beyond regional instability, casting a long shadow over the security of global maritime trade and energy flows.

For India—an economy whose meteoric growth is inextricably linked to global trade and imported energy—these disruptions are more than a logistical headache; they are a pressing strategic mandate. The central question now looms large: how can India safeguard its economic lifelines in an increasingly fractured geopolitical landscape?

From Integration to Exposure
Over the past three decades, the tide of globalisation has allowed Indian industries to embed themselves deeply within international production networks. While this integration has bolstered efficiency and global competitiveness, it has simultaneously birthed a double-edged sword: a profound dependency on external suppliers and vulnerable shipping corridors. In the current climate, these dependencies are rapidly metastasising into strategic vulnerabilities.

The security of supply chains is now inseparable from the security of the nation itself

Chokepoints and the Energy Dilemma

India’s exposure is most acute in the energy sector. With a lion’s share of crude oil imports originating from the Gulf—primarily Saudi Arabia, Iraq, and the UAE—the Indian economy remains tethered to the stability of the Strait of Hormuz. As one of the world’s most sensitive maritime chokepoints, any interdiction in this narrow waterway immediately triggers a domestic shockwave, inflating energy costs and straining the national exchequer.

Similarly, the trade arteries of the Red Sea and the Suez Canal are vital for India’s reach into European markets. The current instability in these waters has forced a costly pivot; shipping companies are increasingly bypassing these routes for the arduous journey around the Cape of Good Hope. The result is a cascading effect of soaring insurance premiums, protracted delays, and inflationary pressures that ripple through every layer of industrial production.

Architecting Resilience

To counter these risks, India is shifting its focus from mere efficiency to systemic resilience. This strategy rests on three critical pillars:

- Aggressive Diversification: Recognising that over-reliance is a liability, India has successfully expanded its energy basket to include Russia, the United States, and emerging producers in Africa and Latin America. This “omni-directional” sourcing ensures that a shock in one geography does not result in national paralysis.
- Strategic Buffers: The expansion of Strategic Petroleum Reserves (SPRs) and stockpiles of essential commodities—such as fertilisers and food grains—serves as a vital shock absorber against global price spikes.

► The “Make in India” Shield:

Strengthening domestic manufacturing in high-stakes sectors like semiconductors, pharmaceuticals (APIs), and defence technology is no longer just an economic goal—it is a security necessity. By reducing the “import-intensity” of its growth, India enhances its technological self-sufficiency.

The Digital and Institutional Frontier

Modern supply chains are too complex for analogue management. India is increasingly leveraging Industry 4.0 tools—Artificial Intelligence, predictive analytics, and blockchain-based tracking—to transform “blind” logistics into transparent, data-driven networks. These technologies allow for real-time risk mitigation and more agile inventory management.

However, technology is only as effective as the institutions behind it. Supply chain security demands a “Whole-of-Government” approach. Seamless coordination between the Ministry of External Affairs, port authorities, and private logistics giants is essential to create a unified national framework capable of responding to crises in real-time.

The Geopolitical Balancing Act

Ultimately, supply chain security is an extension of foreign policy. India’s current strategy of maintaining “principled pragmatism”—balancing relations across competing blocs—is its greatest defence. By engaging deeply with West Asian suppliers while simultaneously strengthening maritime partnerships with global powers, India ensures its trade flows remain uninterrupted by the “camps” of modern geopolitics.

Conclusion: From Efficiency to Autonomy
The emerging global order suggests that supply chains will remain a primary arena of strategic competition. For India, the transition from a focus on just-in-time efficiency to just-in-case resilience is well underway.

As the volatility in West Asia demonstrates, the security of a nation’s supply chain is now synonymous with its national security. By fortifying its domestic base, diversifying its global reach, and embracing digital transparency, India is not just protecting its trade—it is securing its strategic autonomy for the decades to come.

Anatomy of Elite Corruption

The deeper crisis is not merely corruption, but the growing perception that power can shape scrutiny, delay accountability and subtly redefine the rule of law

Corruption does not always begin with the vulgar spectacle of money visibly changing hands. In sophisticated administrative systems, it begins more quietly. It begins with influence, with access, with public power exercised behind impeccable files, with decisions outwardly legal yet inwardly compromised, and with institutional prestige acting as a shield against suspicion. That is why corruption perception is not a superficial matter of image. It is a constitutional concern. A democracy begins to lose faith in the rule of law not only when corruption is finally proved, but when facts, circumstances, networks and delays create the impression that high office can negotiate with accountability from a position of power.

The story of Hero of the Public Sector is especially powerful because it does not narrate corruption as a crude morality tale. It presents a divided public life instead. On one side stands the heroic image of V. Krishnamurthy: the architect associated with BHEL, the force behind Maruti, the reorganiser of SAIL, the public-sector moderniser, the man of discipline, vision and managerial charisma. His story repeatedly shows how he came to embody the mythology of the Indian public-sector success story. It describes his rise through BHEL, his closeness to influential centres of power, his association with the Maruti project under Sanjay Gandhi, and his later transformation of SAIL into what appeared to be a new model. Yet the same story places beside this heroic narrative another one: allegations of foreign commissions, shell companies, linked associates, procurement influence, unexplained financial flows, and a prolonged investigative struggle that seemed always to move within the shadow of power. That duality is precisely where corruption is born.

The first and most important example is the use of stature as insulation. Krishnamurthy was not merely another official. He was represented as a symbol of a modern industrial giant, almost a corporate statesman. His image developed through three iconic sites of success: BHEL, Maruti and SAIL. It portrays him as someone whose personal energy, punctuality, authority and results created a near-legendary aura. But that is exactly what makes the later allegations constitutionally important. When a public figure acquires such reverence, suspicion itself begins to look improper. Inquiry appears almost like ingratitude. The danger for the judiciary lies here. Courts must be vigilant that public mythology does not, unknowingly, alter legal standards. The core lesson of his story is that the celebrated manager and the suspected beneficiary of illicit commissions can, in public imagination, occupy the same body. It is the duty of law to separate reputation from accountability.

The second example concerns procurement-linked influence. Krishnamurthy's attempted arrangements with Siemens in the late 1970s during the BHEL period, and later the much graver allegations involving Combustion Engineering (CE) and APTEN. It is found that one David Barrett, a vice-president of Combustion Engineering (CE), described Krishnamurthy as an "unpaid adviser" and said that Krishnamurthy's link with the firm went back to his BHEL days. He then introduced Benoy Jacob to CE. David Barrett also refers to negotiations around technology and cooperation that were worked out during his visits to India in 1984. What is striking here is not merely the allegation of illegality, but the classic anatomy of elite corruption: procurement decisions and technological collaborations do not appear, on their face, to be criminal; they are clothed in the language of industrial policy, efficiency, cooperation and modernisation. Yet, if a public officer uses his position to influence contracts in favour of firms connected to hidden commission structures, then corruption has infected the bloodstream of official decision-making while preserving the outward respectability of the file. That is precisely why courts must look beyond formal approvals and ask who influenced the choice, who stood behind intermediaries, and who privately benefited from ostensibly public decisions.

A third and far more concrete example of this is the role of intermediaries and shell entities. The narrative identifies Benoy Jacob and "Sandy" Chandra as pivotal figures. It describes Jacob as a Hong Kong-based operator who, along with Chandra, was alleged to have set up or used a network of shell companies, including Link Universe Company Ltd. and later Goldstride Company Ltd. The account shows that Link Universe was purchased in 1985 and that Barrett was briefly made a director before later tensions emerged. It then explains how Goldstride was formed and how shareholdings and corporate control shifted. These details are legally significant because they show how sophisticated corruption almost never moves in a straight line. It does not require a suitcase of cash. It requires structures. It requires people who can create a corporate distance between the public functionary and the money trail. It requires nominee relationships, offshore incorporations, seemingly commercial entities, and a chain of control difficult to decode without painstaking investigation. The judiciary, in dealing with such matters, cannot insist only upon naive proof of direct personal receipt. It must be alert to beneficial ownership, the function of proxies, the timing of transactions, and the possibility that the visible company is merely a mask for invisible benefit.

Corruption in high office rarely appears crude; it hides behind procedure, reputation and delay

The fourth example from his story is the sheer scale and multiplicity of foreign accounts. One of the most striking aspects is the list of accounts allegedly linked to Link Universe and Benoy Jacob: numerous accounts in the Bank of Credit and Commerce International, Union Bank of Switzerland, Hong Kong banks, a Standard Chartered account in Singapore, an account in BCC Australia and Macao, and even an Irving Trust account in New York in the name of another entity. The story further notes telegraphic transfers said to have been made to V. Krishnamurthy, including transfers in October 1988 and March 1989, with one reference to a remittance of USD 400,000 to International Engineering and another of USD 38,000 from a Link Universe account. Whether these were ultimately proved in court is a different matter. For present purposes, what matters is the significance of such a narrative. When a story sets out a pattern of multiple offshore accounts, layered transfers, fixed deposits, and cross-border corporate vehicles, the public no longer sees an isolated accusation; it sees a system. The constitutional injury begins when such a system appears to surround a holder of great public office while the law seems unable to produce a timely and visible resolution.

A fifth example lies in the linkage between public office and private commercial empire. The Krishnamurthy story is not seen as confined to one transaction. It expands into a broader map of associated corporate ventures. It refers to the Ergo Dyne group, to acquisitions, to business expansion through linked companies, and later to the Bharat Technologies holding structure under which the DCK group is said to have come together. It also notes allegations that large sums of money were introduced into country funds like the Krishnamurthy family investment vehicle, and that some of this money was connected with a Sanwa Bank account later frozen. This is important because elite corruption often does not remain confined to the original public contract. Once illicit or questionable influence-derived capital accumulates, it migrates. It enters new ventures, new companies, new acquisitions, new layers of respectability. The judiciary must therefore understand corruption as potentially developmental in structure: public office may serve as the source, but the proceeds may later appear in unrelated private sectors. To examine only the original file and ignore the later commercial ecosystem is to miss the full architecture of abuse.

A sixth example, directly relevant to corruption perception, is the account of alleged Japanese commissions. It refers to investigations into contracts awarded to Japanese corporations such as Sumitomo, Mitsubishi, Mitsui, Marubeni and Nishio Iwai in relation to major power and industrial projects, including the Teesta Canal Falls project, the Srisailem Left Bank Pump Storage project, the Andhra Pradesh Thermal Power project, and the Aurya Gas Turbine project.

The CBI believed V. Krishnamurthy played an important role in the award and execution of some of these contracts and that bribes may have been paid, directly or indirectly, to Link Universe. The importance of this for a judicial lecture is immense. The public sector contract is not simply a commercial event; it is an exercise of sovereign trust. When that trust is suspected to have been mediated by concealed inducements from foreign corporations, the damage extends beyond a particular balance sheet. It affects national confidence in the integrity of governance itself. The public then begins to wonder whether industrial modernisation was guided by public interest or by the invisible geometry of commissions.

A seventh example is the role of "respectable" intermediaries who normalise access. The description of Barrett, Jacob and Chandra is important in this regard. Barrett appears as the executive link from Combustion Engineering. Jacob appears as the operator in Hong Kong who set up corporate structures and managed relationships. Chandra appears as the insider with connections to the Prime Minister's Office and the Indian High Commission in Hong Kong, and later as a participant in the relevant companies. Here we see the anatomy of advanced corruption: not crude extortion, but a network of people whose value lies in translation between public office, corporate interest and international finance. None of them, in isolation, may appear to be the decision-maker. Yet together they form the mechanism through which public influence can be monetised. The law must therefore examine not just the final recipient, but the ecology of facilitation. The corruption of systems often depends less on the visible sovereign actor than on those who stand in the wings, converting authority into transaction.

An eighth example is investigative frustration and delay. The story is particularly sharp in describing the CBI's struggle to move the matter forward. It refers to the filing of an FIR in November 1992, the request for a letter rogatory, the need to seek evidence from Japanese corporations and foreign banks, and the reluctance or resistance encountered in the process. It even recounts diplomatic hesitation, including reported remarks attributed to high-ranking officials suggesting caution about cooperation with the CBI inquiry. The narrative further recalls how procedural questions over the letter rogatory and whether central government clearance was needed slowed the process. This is perhaps one of the most important corruption-perception lessons.

Grand corruption does not always survive because it is invisible. It survives because it is slow. Delay becomes an ally of influence. Public memory weakens. Documentary trails cool. Witnesses become unavailable or hostile. Complexity begins to resemble innocence. For the judiciary, this is a profound warning. Courts must ensure that the process is not turned into a mausoleum in which politically inconvenient truths are gradually buried.

A ninth example is the moral framing of the public servant who becomes indistinguishable from the sociological person. This insight is not incidental. The transformation of the public-sector titan into a figure who seemed to absorb the ethos of commission culture, licensing influence and the pursuit of power through commercialised networks represents a collapse of older distinctions between public duty and private ambition. The suggestion is that in the public sector, unlike the private market, one person's commission is often another person's abuse of office and a loss to the public exchequer. This insight should be central to judicial reasoning. Corruption in public law cannot be assessed merely by asking whether a transaction had commercial features. The relevant question is whether public discretion was exercised under a fiduciary obligation or whether it was contaminated by private interest. The public servant is not a free market actor. He holds entrusted power. The conversion of that entrusted power into a revenue-generating opportunity, whether direct or concealed, is the essence of corruption.

A tenth example, subtle but legally powerful, is the finding that image and morality may diverge. Krishnamurthy is portrayed as disciplined, energetic, visionary and transformative. Yet the narrative repeatedly asks whether precisely such success can coexist with moral corrosion. That question goes to the heart of judicial responsibility. Courts in corruption matters involving eminent figures must resist two equal temptations: the temptation of romantic exoneration and the temptation of dramatic condemnation. The former says that greatness rules out impropriety. The latter says that power itself is proof. Both are wrong. But one must be warned against the first temptation more urgently, because elite Indian public life too often mistakes achievement for innocence. A person may build institutions and still compromise them. He may modernise an industry and still monetise influence. He may deserve historical recognition for some acts and legal scrutiny for others. Constitutional adjudication must have the maturity to hold these truths together.

The challenge to the judiciary, therefore, is not merely evidentiary. It is civilisational. The court does not confront only an accused individual. It confronts a structure of reverence, power, memory, bureaucracy, diplomacy and financial opacity. If it moves timidly, the public sees weakness. If it abandons standards, it ceases to be a court. Its task is harder and nobler: to preserve due process while demonstrating that no myth, no office and no industrial legacy can place a person above scrutiny.

Corruption perception becomes especially dangerous when the citizen notices a pattern. The poor accused is investigated quickly; the powerful accused is investigated delicately. The minor official is arrested; the major one becomes the subject of international legal intricacy. The local case moves; the grand case travels through letters rogatory, diplomatic caution, jurisdictional puzzles and institutional hesitation. It is this contrast, more than any individual scandal, that wounds public faith. The citizen then asks whether justice is a principle of equality or an instrument calibrated to hierarchy. Once that question takes root, the judiciary itself comes under perceptual strain.

That is why courts must evolve a jurisprudence capable of dealing with modern corruption. They must recognise that illicit gain may travel through foreign consultancies, fixed deposits, nominee companies, cross-border transfers and trusted associates. They must appreciate that the absence of a crude cash seizure does not imply innocence where there is a pattern of hidden benefit. They must insist that investigating agencies pursue such matters with seriousness equal to the stature of the accused, not diminished by it. And above all, they must prevent time from becoming a shield for power.

The lesson of the Hero of the Public Sector is ultimately not confined to one individual. It is about the republic's recurring vulnerability: the ease with which public success can become a cloak for private suspicion, and the difficulty institutions face when they are asked to investigate those they once celebrated. That is where the judiciary must stand firm. It must not deny achievement, but neither must it convert achievement into immunity. It must not indulge suspicion, but neither must it be intimidated by eminence. Its constitutional duty is to ensure that public office remains a trust and not a franchise for concealed gain.

In that sense, corruption perception is not merely about what the public thinks. It is about what the constitutional order signals. If allegations of serious abuse linked to shell entities, foreign accounts, intermediary networks, procurement influence and delayed investigation can coexist indefinitely with public glory, then the law begins to look ceremonial. But if courts insist on transparency, equal scrutiny and disciplined adjudication, then even in the face of complexity, the republic retains its moral centre. When it does not, then as a member of the Planning Commission, when he was just minus, bereft of authority, he, V. Krishnamurthy, extorted 25 lakhs each from Harshad Mehta, the Bull, Goenka of CEC Kolkata, C. K. Birla of Birla Motors, and Vijay Malloya of Kingfisher fame, and still escaped conviction, though not prosecution by the CBI. His past image, his past aura, and his status as a former holder of high office furnished him the needed immunity from conviction. Corruption in a man of influence, a bestower of favours to his fellow travellers while in high office, aids him in remaining shielded. This was happening under Prime Minister Narasimha Rao. It became a regular feature in his tenure.

The siphoning of Rs 133 crore in the Urea scam, planned and executed by India's top bureaucrats, did not even end in their arraignment, let alone their investigation and prosecution.

DEAR

Haryana's victory at the 13th Senior National Rugby Sevens Championship deserves recognition not only for the result but for what it represents for Indian sport. Their hard-fought 17-12 win over Maharashtra reflects the growing competitiveness and maturity of rugby in the country. The fact that the final was closely contested and that teams like West Bengal continue to perform consistently indicates a widening talent base and improved standards across states. Equally encouraging is the individual brilliance on display, with players like Rajan Rawat setting high benchmarks. As Rahul Bose rightly pointed out, the game is becoming faster, more structured and tactically aware. However, such progress must now be matched with greater visibility, investment and grassroots support. Rugby in India is clearly evolving. It is time it received the attention it deserves.

ARMY'S STERN WARNING TO PERPETRATORS OF TERRORISM

Families battle loss year after Pahalgam attack

OUR CORRESPONDENT

New Delhi: The Indian Army on Tuesday issued a stern warning to the perpetrators of terrorism on the eve of the first anniversary of the Pahalgam attack, asserting the response is decisive when "boundaries of humanity are crossed" as families of the victims said they are still coming to grips with the loss.

As a tribute to those who lost their lives in the attack that took place in the meadows of Baisaran valley, a memorial has been erected in the hill resort of Pahalgam.

Built of black marble, it bears the names of the 26 victims - 25 tourists and local ponywallah Adil Shah - and has been constructed along the banks of the Lidder river.

For the family of N Ramachandran, one of the tourists killed, nothing has changed and the family is yet to recover from his untimely death.

Ramachandran, 65, on holiday in Kashmir with his wife, daughter, and grandchildren, was gunned down by terrorists in the attack on April 22 that sent shockwaves across the country, prompting India to launch Operation Sindoor, a military response targeting year has gone by, everything is the same. So, I don't want to comment anything about it. Right now I am not in a state to comment on anything. I am so sorry," she told a news agency in Kochi.

Ahead of the anniversary of the dastardly act, the Army in a post on X, said, "When boundaries of humanity are crossed, the response is decisive. Justice is Served. India Stands United. #SindoorAnniversary #JusticeEndures #NationFirst."

The post, heavily symbolic, also carried a digital poster bearing a silhouette image of the map of India with the caption "SOME BOUNDARIES SHOULD NEVER BE CROSSED."

The 'O' in the word 'CROSSED' was depicted by a bowl carrying a dash of 'sin-

Pawan Khera not flight risk, counsel tells Gauhati HC

A single bench reserved the final order after hearing both sides

OUR CORRESPONDENT

Pawan Khera

GUWAHATI: Pawan Khera is not a flight risk and there is no need for his arrest, his counsel argued in the Gauhati High Court, which on Tuesday heard the Congress leader's anticipatory bail plea over an FIR lodged by the Assam CM's wife for alleging she held multiple passports.

A single bench of Justice Parthiv Jyoti Saikia reserved the final order after hearing both sides for over three hours.

Senior advocate Abhishek Manu Singhvi, who appeared for Khera via video conferencing, argued that the remarks made by Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma in response to the Congress leader's allegations point to political vendetta, especially in the context of the Assembly elections in the state.

Singhvi submitted that the petitioner isn't a 'flight risk' and there is no necessity and need for his arrest.

Khera, in his petition, had alleged that the complainant's husband, who also happens to be the incumbent chief minister, has on numerous occasions (in press interactions) and otherwise repeatedly claimed that he will assault the petitioner (once he is in police custody) and will spend his last days in custody.

He also alleged in his petition that the complainant's spouse used derogatory language against him, which "reflected terribly" upon the constitutional office held by the chief minister.

Senior Counsel KN Choudhary, who moved the high court on Khera's behalf on Monday, described the allegations against the Congress leader as 'scandalous'.

"The manner, tenor, and packaging of the allegations unmistakably show that they were made with deliberate malice", he submitted.

He also contended that, at best, it is a case of criminal defamation, which can only be pursued through a private complaint.

Assam Advocate General Devajit Lon Saikia opposed granting any relief to Khera, submitting that this is not a simple defamation case, as the matter involves the forgery of documents and title deeds.

Saikia pointed out that the dominant offences are cheating and forgery. He argued that Khera is not entitled to interim protection as he is a "flight risk".

The AG submitted that the petitioner had submitted fake and manufactured documents, seals and stamps to gain political mileage and defame the chief minister and his entrepreneur wife.

The Congress spokesperson had moved the Gauhati High Court on Monday seeking anticipatory bail in connection with the case registered against him by the CM's wife Riniki Bhuyan Sharma for alleging that she possessed multiple passports and undisclosed properties abroad.

Trafficking of bonded labourers: SC asks labour ministry to file affidavit

OUR CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI: The Supreme Court on Tuesday asked the secretary of the Ministry of Labour and Employment to file an affidavit giving details of the action taken to address the issue of inter-state trafficking of bonded labourers, including minors.

A bench of Justices Vikram Nath and Sandeep Mehta said the affidavit should also indicate what further directions were required from the apex court in the matter.

The top court was hearing a petition seeking enforcement of fundamental rights of people trafficked as bonded labourers.

Attorney General R Venkataramani, who was earlier requested by the apex court to assist it in the matter, told the bench that quite a few developments have taken place.

SC was hearing a petition seeking enforcement of fundamental rights of people trafficked as bonded labourers

"Why don't you ask one of the secretaries to file an affidavit," the bench told Venkataramani. The bench noted the attorney general has placed a note before it which reflected the action taken by the ministry and also about the status of the scheme.

"We feel it would be appropriate that an affidavit is filed by the secretary of the Ministry of Labour and Employment," the bench said, adding that the affidavit be filed within three weeks.

"The affidavit will also indicate what further directions are required from this court so that appropriate orders can be passed on the next date," the bench said and posted the matter for hearing on May 19.

Senior advocate H S Phoolka, appearing in the matter, said around 11,000 children were rescued from different states but only 971 of them were paid immediate financial assistance.

While hearing the matter in November 2024, the top court had said the secretary of the ministry should convene a meeting with their counterparts from all the states and Union Territories to come out with a proposal which addresses the issue regarding inter-state trafficking and grant of release certificate.

BJP stands for development, not vote bank politics, says CM Saini

MPOST BUREAU

CHANDIGARH: Haryana Chief Minister Nayab Singh Saini said that BJP's politics is not based on taking votes, but on ensuring the dignity and development of every citizen.

The government does not believe in appeasement, but works towards empowerment. It does not create vote banks, but 'development banks'. He urged the people of Punjab to be ready for change and work towards making the state prosperous. He added that once BJP forms the government in Punjab, those involved in the illegal drug trade will run away from the state.

The Chief Minister said this while addressing a delegation of the Rai Sikh community at Sant Kabir Kutir, Chandigarh, on Tuesday.

When compared with Punjab, Haryana's model of good governance is an excellent example of service

Saini said that while the Punjab government has made only attractive promises, the present Haryana government has implemented 'reservation within reservation' on the ground, ensuring appropriate representation of Rai Sikh youth in government and administration according to their population. Compared to Punjab's situation, Haryana's governance model is a fine example of service. He said that although there is a significant population of the Rai Sikh community in Punjab as well, policies there are still confined to announcements.

Meanwhile, CM Saini said that the positive impact of the state government's industry-friendly policies is now clearly visible. In this direction, Daikin Air Conditioner Company is making an investment of approximately Rs 1,000 crore in Manesar, which will create new employment opportunities for more than 500 youth in the state.

HOODA VISITS HANSI GRAIN MARKET

Every section of society troubled by BJP, alleges Bhupinder Hooda

Chandigarh: Former Chief Minister and Leader of the Opposition, Bhupinder Singh Hooda visited the Hansi grain market on Tuesday and interacted with farmers, laborers, and commission agents as a part of his ongoing tour of grain markets across the state.

In addition to listening to their grievances, Hooda also held discussions with officials and issued directives to streamline the arrangements.

Addressing a press conference, Hooda lashed out at the BJP by presenting concrete statistics.

He pointed out that in 2013, the Congress government had procured over 8.7 million metric tons of wheat. However, ever since the BJP assumed power, the figures for government procurement have witnessed a steady decline.

"This year as well, the government has set a procurement target of merely 7.2 million metric tons, a figure significantly lower than the total production output. In terms of yield and the area under cultivation, the situation today remains largely the same as it was in 2013; yet, when it comes to government procurement, there has been a drastic drop," he pointed out.

Hooda stated that he is consistently visiting grain markets across the state. "The ground reality is that farmers are facing delays of 5 to 8 days in receiving their payments. So far, out of a total payable amount of Rs 2,714 crore, farmers have received only Rs 741 crore. This means that payments amounting to approximately Rs 1,972 crore are still outstanding," he said.

According to procurement agencies, approximately 8 million metric tons of wheat is expected to arrive in the markets this season. However, about 2.5 million metric tons of wheat is currently awaiting procurement, while another 2.7 million metric tons is lying in the markets, waiting to be lifted (transported away).

Quitting tobacco could give economic boost to over 20.5 mn households in India: Analysis

Seven million middle-income families may also stand to benefit from quitting tobacco, the estimates published in the British Medical Journal (BMJ) Global Health suggest

OUR CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI: An analysis has estimated that quitting tobacco could help 11.5 per cent or 20.5 million households in India move up one economic class, with rural areas and the poorest households possibly seeing the greatest impact.

Seven million middle-income families may also stand to benefit from quitting tobacco, the estimates published in the British Medical Journal (BMJ) Global Health suggest.

Researchers, including those from the Tata Institute of Social Sciences, Mumbai, and Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR)-National Institute of Cancer Prevention and Research (NICPR) in Noida, said the findings show the direct economic benefits of tobacco cessation and that tobacco control needs to be integrated with poverty reduction strategies through increased taxation, cessation support programmes and awareness campaigns.

The team added that treatment of tobacco-related disease and productivity subsequently lost due to illness and premature death add up to global economic losses of more than USD one trillion every year -- money spent on tobacco means less for essentials, including food and education.

Around 80 per cent of tobacco users live in low and middle income countries, where a significant proportion of household income is spent on tobacco products, they said.

The analysis looked at over 261,000 households from the Indian National Sample Survey (NSS) 2022-23 Household Consumption Expenditure Survey (HCES), to quantify the long-term economic benefits of quitting tobacco for households in the countries and estimate how many families could therefore be lifted out of poverty.

Consumption of tobacco products, including bidis, cigarettes and gutka, was recorded for seven-day periods and monthly household expenditure was estimated.

The poorest households were noted to allocate the highest monthly expenditure per head to tobacco (6.4 per cent), as were households in rural areas (6.6 per cent).

Further, the proportion of a household's spend on tobacco was found to fall with increasing income -- 4.4 per cent in poorer households, 3.6 per cent in middle income households, 2.8 per cent in richer households and two per cent in the richest.

"Tobacco cessation could uplift 20.49 million households (10.6 per cent) to higher economic classes, with (a) greater impact in rural areas (11.64 per cent; 17 million) against urban regions (7.26 per cent; 3.5 million)," the authors wrote.

"Among the poorest households, 12.4 per cent (5.62 million) could improve their economic status, enabling spending on essential needs. Middle-income households demonstrate substantial upward mobility potential (16.8 per cent; 7.1 million)," they said.

Acknowledging the study's limitations, the researchers said the study is an observational one and that money not spent on tobacco may not necessarily mean that it would be spent on essentials.

They said nevertheless, tobacco consumption functions as a significant barrier to economic advancement for millions of households and that support for quitting tobacco should not be considered as only a health intervention but also as a poverty reduction strategy.

CHANDIGARH: Continuing global outreach to promote investment and deepen international partnerships, the Punjab Chief Minister Bhagwant Mann undertook a series of engagements to further strengthen economic cooperation and fostering people-to-people connect.

During strategic interaction with the Netherlands India Chamber of Commerce & Trade, led by its Chairperson, Edith Nordmann, the Chief Minister batted for enhancing bilateral business linkages and promoting investment flows between Punjab and the Netherlands.

He also highlighted Punjab's strategic focus on value addition, export-led growth, and integration with global supply chains, particularly in sectors such as food processing and manufacturing. Mann invited NICCT to play a proactive role in connecting Punjab with Dutch enterprises and facilitating sector-specific engagements and business delegations.

Meanwhile, during the investment Road show in The Hague, the Chief Minister further showcased the state's industrial strengths and emerging opportunities in the event, which witnessed participation from industry leaders, business representatives and stakeholders from across the Netherlands. Bhagwant Mann highlighted Punjab's transition towards value-added manufacturing, industrial growth, and export-led development.

He also showcased the state's strong fundamentals, including its robust manufacturing ecosystem, skilled workforce, progressive policies, and investor-friendly governance framework.

The Chief Minister also underlined the strong historical and cultural ties between Punjab and the Netherlands, reflecting shared values of resilience, openness and innovation.

He also underscored the state government's proactive and reform-oriented approach towards investment promotion and ease of doing business adding that the Industrial & Business Development Policy 2026 is one of the most competitive in the country. Mann also apprised them about the effectiveness of the Fast Track Punjab Portal in ensuring single-window clearances and time-bound approvals.

The CM invited global investors to "come, invest and grow in Punjab," while appreciating the shared cultural values and entrepreneurial spirit between Punjab and the Netherlands.

CEREMONIES ACROSS THE COUNTRY BEGIN WITH THE SOUNDING OF SIREN

Israel pauses for Memorial Day, public day for mourning in shadow of war

TEL AVIV: Israelis marked the country's annual Memorial Day on Tuesday, a somber day of reflection filled with ceremonies at cemeteries and sirens when the whole country stops for two minutes of silence to remember the fallen.

In downtown Tel Aviv, many people visited an informal memorial that sprouted up around a sunny, circular fountain immediately after the Oct 7, 2023, Hamas attack that killed more than 1,200 people.

Surrounding the fountain are photos, artwork, candles, and stickers memorializing the fallen, now faded by the sun and wrinkled by time, surrounded by trendy coffee shops that typically are filled with people chatting and working on laptops.

The dichotomy of so many photos of young people who have been killed next to people bantering with friends and sipping iced coffee is part of what makes Israel what it is, left many feeling weary and worried about the country's future.

"Being Israeli is regulating emergencies, memorial days, wars. We keep on living, we can't pause our lives to wait till the war will end," he said.

He hopes the photos will also help remind people the price that has been paid, and hopefully, to start working toward ending the wars and building a different future.

The Tel Aviv memorial is considered a "secular gravesite" by Alon Aizer Rosenfeld, who came with his wife, Rinat, to light a candle for his wife's cousin, a 20-year-old soldier who was killed in the Oct 7 attack in southern Israel.

Noga Kamhaji, 28, an artist and industrial designer, brought the three blue plastic boxes that families of fallen soldiers receive from the military with their loved ones belongings.

It's part of a performance piece to memorialize her brother, Dan, a reserve soldier who was killed in northern Israel two years ago. The boxes still house his belongings, each in a separate plastic bag as her family received them. AGENCIES

US forces board sanctioned oil tanker in Indian Ocean: Pentagon

WASHINGTON: US forces have boarded an oil tanker previously sanctioned for smuggling Iranian crude oil in Asia, the Pentagon said Tuesday, as it puts into place a global warning to track down vessels tied to Tehran.

US forces "conducted a right-of-visit maritime interdiction" and boarded the M/T Tifani "without incident," the Pentagon said on social media.

The Tifani was captured in the Bay of Bengal — between India and Southeast Asia — and was carrying Iranian oil, according to a US defence official who spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss an ongoing military operation.

The US military will decide in the next four days what to do with the vessel, such as tow it back to the US or turn it over to another country, the official said.

It's the latest move in the US war on Iran to stop any ship tied to Tehran or those suspected of carrying supplies that could help its government, from weapons and oil to metals and electronics.

'The Tifani was captured in the Bay of Bengal — between India and Southeast Asia — and was carrying Iranian oil'

The announcement comes ahead of the expiration of an already tenuous ceasefire between the US and Iran, and as Pakistan attempts to broker talks between Washington and Tehran. It is the second vessel linked to Iran that has been interdicted by the US military.

The US Navy attacked and seized an Iranian-flagged cargo ship Sunday that it said had tried to evade its blockade of Iranian ports, with President Donald Trump saying an American destroyer blew a hole in the ship's engine room.

The Pentagon on social media described the Tifani as "stateless" despite it being a Botswana-flagged vessel. AGENCIES

HPCL SEES NO MATERIAL IMPACT

Oil Ministry’s 4-member team probes Rajasthan refinery fire

OUR CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI: A four-member team constituted by India’s oil ministry is in Rajasthan to investigate a fire at a refinery, even as HPCL said the incident is not expected to have a material financial or operational impact, and that all units are structurally safe with no effect on other sections.

The fire broke out on April 20 at the refinery of HPCL Rajasthan Refinery Limited, a day before it was to be inaugurated by Prime Minister Narendra Modi. The fire in the crude distillation unit - the main unit of a refinery - was likely caused by a hydrocarbon leak from a valve or flange in a heat exchanger circuit, Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Ltd (HPCL) said.

The blaze was confined to the heat exchanger stack and was quickly brought under control by the site’s emergency response team. There were no casualties or injuries.

The crude distillation unit, vacuum distillation unit and associated sections were isolated as a precaution. The scheduled April 21 dedication of the refinery has been postponed, with a revised date to be announced.

Sujata Sharma, Joint Secretary in the Ministry of Petroleum and Natural Gas, said the team led by former MRPL managing

“The team has reached Barmer,” she told reporters, adding that the delays, if any, in the commissioning timelines will be known once the investigating team completes its probe.

“An unfortunate accident occurred (on Monday) at around 1.55 pm at HPCL Rajasthan Refinery Ltd (HRRL) at Pachpadra, Balotra. There was a fire in the Crude Distillation Unit (CDU) section of the refinery complex. Prima facie, it appears that leakage of hydrocarbons through one of the valves/flanges in the heat exchanger circuit caused the fire,” HPCL said. The fire was promptly brought under control by the emergency response team of HRRL with support from the local administration.

There is no loss of life or injury to any personnel, it said, adding the fire was localised in the heat exchangers stack.

Crude Distillation Unit (CDU), Vacuum Distillation

Unit (VDU), and all other units of the CDU section were quickly isolated. All are structurally safe and unaffected. “No other section of the refinery has suffered any impact.” The cause of this fire and its impact on the Unit are being assessed and investigated by a team of internal and external experts, it said.

“An investigation has been initiated to ascertain the cause of the incident and to undertake necessary remedial measures,” HPCL said. “The financial and operational impact, if any, is being assessed and prima facie is not expected to be material.”

All are structurally safe and unaffected, it said. “No other section of the refinery has suffered any impact.” A major fire broke out near the main unit of the newly built Rs 79,450-crore Rajasthan refinery on Monday, a day before the scheduled inauguration by Modi.

Refineries worldwide are highly susceptible to fires, explosions, and catastrophic failures during the commissioning and startup phases, as this period involves introducing hydrocarbons into new or maintained high-pressure, high-temperature systems.

For this reason, inauguration ceremonies are performed after all units (a refinery typically has several units that turn crude oil pumped out of the ground or below the seabed into fuels like petrol and diesel at high temperatures) are safely commissioned and operations stabilised. The refinery project was scheduled to begin commercial operations from July 1, according to a Government of India statement issued on April 8, announcing approval of the Union Cabinet to enhance the cost of the project.

This is not the first time a fire has broken out at a refinery under commissioning. On January 30, 2016, a major fire broke out at Indian Oil Corporation’s (IOC) Paradip refinery’s atmospheric vacuum unit (AVU), just over a week before its scheduled inauguration by Prime Minister Modi on February 7, 2016. No injuries were reported even then.

The Rajasthan refinery will be India’s 24th and the second most complex unit yet in India.

The refinery-cum-petrochemical complex, located in Rajasthan’s Balotra district, is designed as a 9 million tonnes per annum facility with a strong petrochemical focus, reflecting India’s strategy to boost value-added output and reduce import dependence.

It features a Nelson Complexity Index of 17 and petrochemical yields exceeding 26 per cent, aligning with global benchmarks for efficiency and sustainability, according to an official statement.

Markets soar nearly 1% as Sensex up 753 pts, Nifty ends over 24,550

OUR CORRESPONDENT

MUMBAI: Stock markets advanced for the third consecutive day on Tuesday, with Sensex jumping by 753 points and broader Nifty closing above 24,550 following a drop in crude oil prices and hopes for progress on peace talks between Iran and the US.

The 30-share BSE Sensex jumped 753.03 points or 0.96 per cent to settle at 79,273.33. During the day, it surged 846.78 points or 1.07 per cent to 79,367.08.

The 50-share NSE Nifty climbed 211.75 points or 0.87 per cent to end at 24,576.60. Among the 30-Sensex firms, Trent rose the most by 3.55 per cent. Hindustan Unilever, ICICI Bank, Bajaj Finance, HDFC Bank and Axis Bank were the major winners.

Bharat Electronics, Titan, Reliance Industries and NTPC were among the laggards.

Brent crude, the global oil benchmark, traded 0.75 per cent lower at $94.76 per barrel.

“Indian equity markets traded on a positive note, as investors positioned for a potential near-term de-escalation in the Middle East. Energy markets remained in a consolidation phase, as traders balanced hopes of a near-term resolution and a potential reopening of the Strait of Hormuz against ongoing uncertainty around ceasefire negotiations,” Ponnudhi R, CEO of Enrich Money, an online trading and wealth tech firm, said.

A total of 2,531 stocks advanced, while 1,760 declined and 162 remained unchanged on the BSE

Broader markets also advanced with the BSE Mid-Cap Select index jumping 0.73 per cent and SmallCap Select index by 0.29 per cent.

Among sectoral indices, FMCG rallied the most by 2.23 per cent, followed by Realty (2.17 per cent), MidSmall Private Banks Quality Tilt (1.71 per cent), Private Banks index (1.67 per cent), Top 10 Banks (1.66 per cent) and Bankex (1.46 per cent).

Capital Goods emerged as the only laggard.

A total of 2,531 stocks advanced, while 1,760 declined and 162 remained unchanged on the BSE.

In Asian markets, South Korea’s benchmark Kospi, Japan’s Nikkei 225 index, Shanghai’s SSE Composite index and Hong Kong’s Hang Seng index ended higher.

Markets in Europe were trading in positive territory. US markets ended marginally lower on Monday.

Foreign Institutional Investors (FIIs) offloaded equities worth Rs 1,059.93 crore on Monday, according to BSE data.

“Amid hopes for progress in Iran-US peace talks and supportive global cues, India’s equity markets rebounded strongly,” Vinod Nair, Head of Research, Geojit Investments Limited, said.

On Monday, the Sensex closed marginally up 26.76 points or 0.03 per cent at 78,520.30. The Nifty edged up 11.30 points or 0.05 per cent to settle at 24,364.85.

‘India should aim for 100% ethanol blending’

Corporate Average Fuel Efficiency III standards, which will be implemented from April 1 next year, will have little impact on electric & flex-fuel vehicles

NEW DELHI: Road Transport and Highways Minister Nitin Gadkari on Tuesday said India should aspire to achieve 100 per cent ethanol blending in the near future, as vulnerabilities in oil exports amid the West Asia crisis have made it necessary for the country to become self-reliant in the energy sector.

Gadkari further said the Corporate Average Fuel Efficiency (CAFE) III standards, which will be implemented from April 1 next year, will have little impact on electric and flex-fuel vehicles.

“In the near future, India should aspire to achieve 100 per cent ethanol blending... Today, we are facing an energy crisis due to the war in West Asia, so it is necessary for us to become self-reliant in the energy sector,” he said, while addressing the Indian Federation of Green Energy’s Green Transport Conclave.

In 2023, Prime Minister Narendra Modi launched petrol blended with 20 per cent ethanol.

Currently, Indian vehicles can run on E20 petrol with minor changes to the engine to prevent corrosion and other issues.

Countries like Brazil have 100 per cent ethanol blending.

Gadkari said India relies on imports to meet 87 per cent of its oil requirement.

“We import fossil fuels worth Rs 22 lakh crore, which is also causing pollution... so we need to work on increasing production of alternative fuel and bio-fuel,” he said.

Noting that green hydrogen is the fuel of the future, Gadkari said there is a need to reduce the cost of running a hydrogen fuel station to make it financially viable.

“Transport of hydrogen fuel is a problem. Also, we need to produce 1 kg of hydrogen at $1 dollar, to make India an exporter of energy,” he said.

The minister said that there is a need to produce hydrogen from waste.

He also pointed out that by focusing on the circular economy, India can create more employment opportunities.

While observing that there is a need to discourage the use of petrol and diesel vehicles, Gadkari said, “But we can not force people to stop buying petrol and diesel vehicles.”

On growing concern on social media about E20, Gadkari said the petroleum sector is lobbying against this move.

He asked automobile companies to focus on quality, not on cost, as it would help them penetrate new markets. PTI

RBI allows issuers to map existing e-mandates if cards are reissued

The RBI said recurring transactions up to Rs 15,000 may be authorised without additional factor of authentication

MUMBAI: The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) on Tuesday allowed card issuers to map existing e-mandates to reissued cards.

In the consolidated directions on digital payments governing the e-mandate framework, the central bank directed issuers to provide details of the grievance redressal in a post-transaction notification to the customer.

The changes in instructions on e-mandates were based on feedback from stakeholders, the RBI said.

The notification also said no charges shall be levied on customers for availing of the e-mandate facility for recurring transactions, and an acquirer shall ensure compliance with directions by merchants onboarded by them.

As per consolidated directions, the Reserve Bank of India said an appropriate dispute redressal system shall be put in place by the issuer to facilitate the customer to lodge grievring transactions, and an acquirer shall ensure compliance with directions by merchants onboarded by them.

As per consolidated directions, the Reserve Bank of India said an appropriate dispute redressal system shall be put in place by the issuer to facilitate the customer to lodge grievances, and RBI instructions on limiting liability of customers for unauthorised transactions shall be applicable to recurring transactions under e-mandates as well.

The central bank said recurring transactions may be authorised without additional factor of authentication (AFA) up to Rs 15,000 per transaction.

Transactions above this amount shall be subject to AFA.

Payment of insurance premiums, subscription to mutual funds, and credit card bill payments may be made without AFA up to Rs 1 lakh per transaction, the central bank said. PTI

UltraTech to cross 200 MTPA capacity in India with 3 new units

NEW DELHI: UltraTech Cement Limited, the cement flagship of the Aditya Birla Group, announced that it will surpass 200+ million tonnes per annum (MTPA) of installed cement manufacturing capacity in India, with the company set to commission three new cement grinding units on Tuesday, with a cumulative capacity of 8.7 MTPA. With this, UltraTech will become the world’s largest cement company, outside China.

The three new cement grinding units — located in Shahjahanpur (Uttar Pradesh), Patratu (Jharkhand), and Vizag (Andhra Pradesh) — have been strategically positioned to strengthen regional supply, serving North India’s booming construction corridor, the industrial heartland of Jharkhand, and the rapidly urbanising coastal belt of Andhra Pradesh. With these additions, UltraTech’s India capacity stands at 200.1 MTPA and its consolidated global capacity at 205.5 MTPA, which includes 5.4 MTPA from its operations in the UAE, Bahrain, and Sri Lanka.

The speed of UltraTech’s growth is as significant as its scale. It took 36 years to reach 100+ MTPA, a milestone achieved in 2019. The next 100 MTPA took less than seven years. A pace that speaks to both the Company’s execution capability and the depth of India’s infrastructure ambition.

Speaking on the occasion, Kumar Mangalam Birla, Chairman, Aditya Birla Group, said: “Over a decade ago, our Prime Minister, Narendra Modi, articulated a defining vision through Make in India — a call to rekindle our nation’s manufacturing ambition and elevate it to global scale, as a driver of growth, jobs, and self-reliance. UltraTech has translated this vision into action by matching ambition with execution, and domestic strength with global competitiveness, to help anchor India’s infrastructure story.”

LEH: Lieutenant Governor of Ladakh, Vinai Kumar Saxena, on Tuesday met Union Road Transport and Highways Minister Nitin Gadkari in New Delhi to fast-track key infrastructure projects aimed at improving connectivity and driving development in the region.

Saxena flagged several projects requiring early approval, including pending works under the Central Road and Infrastructure Fund (CRIF) worth Rs 1,465.88 crore, stressing their importance for connectivity, safety and economic growth in remote and strategic areas.

Reviewing the Zoji-La Tunnel, Gadkari said its final breakthrough is expected by end-May.

The tunnel is expected to ensure all-weather connectivity between Ladakh and the rest of the country. Saxena also underlined the need for avalanche protection along the Zoji-La Top stretch, noting that despite the tunnel, the route will remain in use. He cited a recent avalanche that claimed seven lives.

On NH-03, Saxena said 5.20 km of the 10.08 km Leh-Sindhu Ghat stretch has been upgraded to four lanes, while 4.88 km remains double-lane, causing congestion.

He sought early approval for its upgradation.

He also pushed for the Leh Bypass project, noting that the DPR for the 48.10 km southern alignment, estimated at Rs 1,011 crore, has been submitted, while the northern alignment DPR is under preparation.

Gadkari directed officials to prioritise all Ladakh projects and assured CRIF approvals by May. MPOST

Silver rises by ₹700, gold jumps to ₹1,57,300/10 gms

NEW DELHI: Silver prices rose Rs 700 to Rs 2.58 lakh per kilogram (inclusive of all taxes) in the national capital on Tuesday while gold also edged higher amid geopolitical uncertainty and mixed global cues.

According to the All India Sarafa Association, gold of 99.9 per cent purity gained Rs 300 to Rs 1,57,300 per 10 grams (inclusive of all taxes).

Gold prices saw a slight uptick in the domestic markets as geopolitical tensions in the Middle East continue to escalate, prompting investors to seek safe-haven assets, Gaurav Garg, Research Analyst at Lemonn Markets Desk, said.

However, global trends remained weak. Spot silver slipped 1.29 per cent to $78.69 per ounce, while gold fell nearly 1 per cent to $4,776.85 per ounce.

Spot gold hovered around $4,780 per ounce level on a firmer dollar and uncertainty over US-Iran talks, Praveen Singh, Head of Commodities at Mirae Asset ShareKhan, said. PTI

NEW DELHI: The US has initiated the process of refunding reciprocal tariffs from April 20, and Indian exporters should proactively engage with American buyers to seek a share of the refunded duties, think tank Global Trade Research Initiative (GTRI) said on Tuesday.

The GTRI said that the engagement will be important as the refunded payments go only to US importers, and exporters have no legal right to claim them. Indian exporters will have no direct legal route to claim refunds, it said. The US tariffs, imposed from April 2, 2025, affected export of many Indian products, it said, adding that the total refund is about $166 billion, with roughly $12 billion linked to goods from India.

To get refunds, US importers must file detailed claims online with shipment data, tariff lines and proof of payment. The reciprocal tariff regime began at 10 per cent on April 2, 2025 and was rapidly escalated. Rates for India rose to 25 per cent by Aug. 7, 2025 and to 50 per cent by August 28, remaining at that level until early February 2026.

On February 20, the US Supreme Court ruling invalidated the entire framework of Trump tariffs, making the tariffs legally void and triggering refunds, it said.

About 53 per cent of India’s exports to the US, mainly textiles & apparel, faced these high tariffs, making them the biggest contributors to refunds. “Of the estimated $12 billion linked to India, textiles and apparel may account for about $4 billion, engineering goods another $4 billion, and chemicals about $2 billion, with smaller shares from other sectors,” GTRI Founder Ajay Srivastava said.

He said Indian exporters will not get refunds automatically and payments go only to US importers, and exporters have no legal right to claim them.

“Any recovery will depend on commercial negotiation. For this, Indian exporters should proactively engage US buyers to seek a share of refunded duties, especially where earlier contracts were priced on a duty-paid basis,” he said. To benefit, Indian exporters must negotiate with US buyers, Srivastava said, adding they should seek a share of refunds where earlier prices included tariff costs.

“This can be done by reopening contracts, adding rebate-sharing clauses, asking for price revisions or credit notes, and using invoices and tariff data to show how costs were absorbed. Exporters with stronger bargaining power, especially in textiles and engineering goods, may secure better terms in future orders,” he added. PTI

India accelerates PNG push with 5L+ new connections

With war in West Asia disrupting LPG supplies, govt is pushing households as well as industries to move to PNG

OUR CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI: India has accelerated its shift to piped natural gas (PNG), with more than 5.01 lakh new PNG connections gasified since March and over 5.68 lakh consumers registering for fresh connections, even as authorities manage LPG supplies amid geopolitical disruptions.

With the war in West Asia disrupting cooking gas LPG supplies, the government is pushing households as well as industries to move to piped natural gas — a more convenient alternative whose supplies have not been very badly hit.

LPG users within the reach of a PNG connection have been asked to shift, while orders have been issued for expediting approvals for laying of pipelines that supply gas to burner tips.

“Since March 2026, more than 5.01 lakh PNG connections have been gasified,” said Sujata Sharma, Joint Secretary in the Ministry of Petroleum and Natural Gas, at a news briefing on Tuesday.

Gasified means the start of gas supplies. These connections include ones that may have been applied before the crisis as well as after that.

She said more than 5.68 lakh

LPG users within the reach of a PNG connection have been asked to shift, while orders have been issued for expediting approvals for laying of pipelines customers have been registered for new connections.

Till April 19, about 39,400 PNG consumers have surrendered their LPG connections, she said.

She said domestic LPG supply remains stable, with no dry-outs reported at distributorships. Online bookings rose to 98 per cent across the industry, while delivery authentication code-based supplies increased to about 92 per cent to curb diversion.

Commercial LPG availability has been raised to around 70 per cent of pre-crisis levels, with additional allocations tied to reforms encouraging a shift to PNG. The government has also doubled daily supplies of 5-kg cylinders for migrant workers via the states. Since late March, more than 19.2 lakh such cylinders have been sold, supported by nationwide outreach campaigns.

Sales of commercial LPG stood at about 123,680 tonnes in April through April 20, equivalent to over 65 lakh 19-kg cylinders, with 8,822 tonnes sold on April 20 alone, she said.

Natural gas supply has been prioritised for city gas distribution networks, with full allocation to domestic PNG and transport CNG segments and increased supplies to fertiliser plants and industry.

City gas firms such as Indraprastha Gas Ltd, Mahanagar Gas Ltd, GAIL Gas Ltd and Bharat Petroleum Corporation Ltd have been directed to prioritise PNG connections for commercial users, while regulatory support has been strengthened through faster approvals and new pipeline rules.

HCLTech March qtr net profit rises 4.20% to ₹4,488 cr amid volatile demand environment

OUR CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI: IT major HCLTech on Tuesday reported a 4.20 per cent on-year rise in consolidated net profit to Rs 4,488 crore in the January-March quarter of FY26, even as the management flagged a highly volatile demand environment shadowed by tariffs and softened discretionary spends, giving a FY27 growth guidance of 1-4 per cent.

The Noida-headquartered firm had reported a consolidated net profit of Rs 4,307 crore in the same period of FY25.

The firm’s revenue from operations rose 12.34 per cent to Rs 33,981 crore in Q4 FY26, up from Rs 30,246 crore in Q4 FY25.

The IT major projected its FY27 company revenue growth to be in the range of 1 per cent to 4 per cent in constant currency (CC). The company attributed the broad band of guidance to market volatility, reduced discretionary spend, and two client-specific situations where it expects some ramp-downs.

On a quarter-on-quarter basis, HCLTech’s profit and revenue rose by 10.10 per cent and 0.32 per cent, respectively.

For the full fiscal year of 2025-26, HCLTech recorded a net profit of Rs 16,642 crore, reflecting a 4.30 per cent decline from Rs 17,390 crore in FY25. FY26 revenue stood 11.18 per cent higher at Rs 130,144 crore.

HCLTech CEO and MD C Vijayakumar (aka CVK) termed the year as one of an uncertain demand environment. “During the quarter, our performance came below our expectations due to softness in certain parts of our business, due to lower discretionary spend and delayed decision making.

The firm’s revenue from operations rose 12.34% to Rs 33,981 crore in Q4 FY26, up from Rs 30,246 crore in Q4 FY25

“Our new AI-led service offerings are getting traction in the market and are reflected in annualised Advanced AI revenues crossing $620 million in Q4. Our #1 priority in FY27 is to ensure the company is positioned right to take advantage of AI opportunities for multi-decade value creation,” he said.

The company’s Advanced AI revenue reached $155 million in Q4, he said during the company’s earnings call.

Management acknowledged that AI is causing a deflation of 2 per cent to 3 per cent per year in traditional segments (e.g., a $100 million deal is now being priced at $80 million due to AI efficiencies). However, new AI deal volumes seem to be offsetting this revenue loss.

“Momentum across our advanced AI offerings and overall AI portfolio remains strong, reflecting the strength of our early bets and our continued focus on AI that scales from experimentation to measurable business impact. Our pipeline remains robust and broad-based across segments, verticals, and regions, with AI increasingly integral to nearly all deal conversations,” CVK said.

During the quarter ended March, HCLTech’s IT & Business Services segment grew by 4.3 per cent year-on-year (YoY), while Engineering and R&D Services (ER&D) registered a growth of 3.8 per cent YoY.

The software segment witnessed a sharp decline, with revenue dropping 14.1 per cent YoY.

Geographically, the Indian market grew by 5.3 per cent, while the Americas (USA) grew by 4.9 per cent. The European market witnessed a contraction, declining by 2.9 per cent YoY.

The company recorded a Total Contract Value (TCV) of new deal wins at $1,936 million for Q4, and $9,323 million for the full year FY26.

HCLTech added 802 employees on a net basis in Q4, taking the total headcount to 227,181. The company onboarded 1,712 freshers in Q4, bringing the total fresher intake for FY26 to 11,744. The company did not share its hiring target for the next fiscal year.

On the prolonged West Asia crisis that affected many global businesses, HCLTech said the company’s exposure to the Middle East is very limited, with the region contributing only about 1 per cent to the revenues.

“We saw some impact in the software business during the quarter. Some of the decisions on procurement were delayed. We haven’t seen any (impact) in the services business,” CVK said. Shares of HCLTech settled 0.92 per cent higher at Rs 1,441.55 apiece on the BSE on Tuesday.

The financial results were announced post-market hours.

Adani forms step-down subsidiary for nuclear energy ops

NEW DELHI: Adani Power on Tuesday said it has incorporated a step-down subsidiary, which will be engaged in generation, transmission, and distribution of electricity derived from nuclear sources.

The government aims to reach 100 GW of nuclear energy capacity by 2047 and has made several legislative changes to encourage private players’ participation in the sector.

In an exchange filing on Monday, Adani Power said its wholly-owned subsidiary Adani Atomic Energy Limited (AAEL) has incorporated a wholly-owned subsidiary Rawatbhatta-Raj Atomic Energy Limited (RRAEL) on April 20, 2026.

The entity has been formed to generate, transmit, and distribute power derived from nuclear and/or atomic energy, the filing said.

India’s current nuclear energy capacity stands in the range of 8-9 GW. PFI

Vedanta’s plea indirectly challenges CoC’s commercial wisdom: Adani tells NCLAT

NEW DELHI: Adani Enterprises on Tuesday told the National Company Law Appellate Tribunal (NCLAT) that the resolution professionals’ actions in seeking clarifications from bidders for Jaiprakash Associates were not irregular and questioning them would amount to an indirect judicial review of lenders’ commercial wisdom.

Appearing for Adani, senior counsel Ritin Rai said the evaluation metrics challenged by Vedanta had been disclosed at the outset and accepted by all bidders. He argued that allowing Vedanta’s addendum, submitted after the challenge process closed, would have compromised the integrity of the process. Rai said the committee of creditors (CoC), after identifying ambiguities, had directed the RP to seek clar-ifications from all resolution applicants, which he did via an email on November 5. The RP merely conveyed the CoC’s queries and placed responses before it without taking independent decisions. “Where the RP acts strictly on the CoC’s instructions, such conduct cannot be termed a material irregularity,” he said.

He added that the request for resolution plan (RFRP) clearly provided for evaluation based on multiple metrics, along with feasibility and viability under the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code and CIRP regulations. Both qualitative and quantitative criteria, including their weightages, were known to bidders from the beginning.

Countering Vedanta’s claim of being the highest bidder, Rai said net present value (NPV) was not the sole determinant. “Resolution processes routinely consider multiple parameters. The RFRP does not state that the highest NPV bidder automatically wins,” he said.

Vedanta has argued in its petitions that its revised bid was about Rs 3,400 crore higher in gross value and roughly Rs 500 crore higher in NPV than Adani’s offer. It also doubled its proposed equity infusion from Rs 400 crore to Rs 800 crore in a post-deadline addendum, which was not considered by the CoC. On Monday, Solicitor General Tushar Mehta flagged a possible information leak, noting that Vedanta submitted its addendum on November 8, 2025, after the challenge process had ended.

Rai maintained that participation in the process bound all applicants to its terms, which barred post-deadline changes. He added that the challenge process identifies the highest financial proposal on specified criteria but does not determine the final winner, which is decided under the code, regulations, RFRP and evaluation metrics. A bench led by Justice Ashok Bhushan has posted the matter for Wednesday. Vedanta is challenging the March 17 order of the NCLT approving Adani’s Rs 14,535-crore bid for JAL. AGENCIES

BPTP to invest ₹1,100 cr to build luxury homes in Haryana’s Faridabad

NEW DELHI: Realty firm BPTP Ltd will invest around Rs 1,100 crore to develop a luxury housing project in Faridabad as part of its expansion strategy.

In a statement on Monday, the company said it has launched a new residential project ‘Skynest’ in Sector 80, Greater Faridabad.

BPTP said it will develop 325 units in this project and it is expecting a total revenue of around Rs 1,800 crore. The starting price of an apartment is around Rs 5 crore.

The company did not disclose the total project cost.

However, as per the website of Haryana Real Estate Regulatory Authority (HREERA), the project cost is nearly Rs 1,100 crore.

Vineet Nanda, Chief Business Officer of BPTP Limited, noted that the housing demand remains strong in Delhi-NCR market.

BPTP is one of the leading real estate developers in the Delhi-NCR market. It has developed many housing and commercial projects. MPOST

New Income Tax Act will increase voluntary compliance: Official

NAVI MUMBAI: The simplified, well-structured Income Tax Act, 2025 will increase the voluntary tax compliance, a senior revenue department official said on Tuesday.

“If you have an Act which is simple to understand, it becomes easier to comply. So, voluntary tax compliance will definitely go up because of a simplified Act,” Vikram Sahay, chief commissioner of Income Tax-3, Mumbai said at an event here.

The new Act is both contemporary and well structured, and will help reduce the cost of compliance through simplification and rationalization.

Speaking at the outreach programme for multiple stakeholders including taxpayers, tax representatives, chartered accountants and trade bodies here, Sahay said the original I-T Act dating back over six decades had become voluminous, and extensive cross-referencing after litigations led to the creation of the new Act.

“A time had come and it was felt that we should now embark on the process of simplifying that, simplifying the provisions, which is easier to understand, which will reduce litigation, which will help taxpayers in reading it in a plain language and trying to comply with the provisions of the Act,” he said.

He said the Central Board of Direct Taxes has asked all the Principal Chief Commissioners to conduct as many outreach programmes as possible to create awareness about the new provisions and take benefit of those provisions. PFI

Akasa inducts new aircraft, expands fleet to 38 planes

NEW DELHI: Akasa Air has taken delivery of a Boeing 737 MAX 8-200 aircraft, bringing its total fleet to 38, with seven planes inducted in the first four months of this year.

The airline, which started flying in August 2022, on Tuesday said the sustained pace of fleet additions would help further deepen its network.

“The first leg of the 38th aircraft’s delivery flight commenced from Seattle, USA to Reykjavik, Iceland and concluded with the final leg from Cairo, Egypt, to Bengaluru, India. Bearing registration number VT-YBK, the Boeing 737 MAX 8-200 aircraft arrived at Kempegowda International Airport in Bengaluru on 21st April 2026,” it said in a release.

Rising input costs, falling prices deepen cotton crisis: AIKS urges policy intervention

The organisation also underlined that the decline in farmer incomes has pushed cotton cultivation into severe distress in the country

OUR CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI: Deepening crisis in India’s cotton sector and declining productivity has become a major issue in India. All India Kisan Sabha (AIKS) on Tuesday called for urgent government intervention to address the rising input costs and falling farmer incomes. It also underlined that the decline in farmer incomes has pushed cotton cultivation into severe distress in the country.

In an official statement, AIKS alleged that policy decisions have systematically favoured private seed corporations at the cost of farmers. The central government was blamed for undermining the agricultural research institutions and facilitating what the organisation called the “Rs 35,000 crore corporate plunder of cotton farmers.”

The organisation also stated that the cotton output of India had fallen dramatically from 370 lakh bales in 2017-18 to 294.25 lakh bales in 2024-25, with declining cultivation acreage and consistently low crop productivity levels relative to international benchmarks.

It was further observed that despite the yield staying stagnant, expenses had kept rising, especially the cost of Bt cotton seeds, estimated at Rs 901 per packet in 2025-26. As a result, the expenditure incurred annually on seeds alone amounted to more than Rs 6,000 crore. On the other hand, the price level of cotton in the market has almost been halved from 2021 onwards, sometimes even dropping under the MSP, resulting in a decline in farmers’ income levels, the organisation noted. Moreover, it added that the cost of cultivation had risen to almost Rs 60,000 per hectare of land.

The problem has been worsened due to increased resistance of the pink bollworm pest to current Bt cotton hybrid varieties, leading to increased expenditure on chemicals by farmers without a corresponding increase in the yield levels. According to AIKS, farmers have thus fallen into a trap of rising costs and reduced output. The official statement further mentioned that there is considerable potential in using straight non-hybrid Bt cotton varieties as an alternative approach. In contrast to hybrid seeds, which require new seeds each time the crop is planted, this approach allows cultivators to save and replant seeds without additional cost implications. According to AIKS, institutes such as Indian Council of Agricultural Research (ICAR), ICAR-Central Institute for Cotton Research (CICR), Vasantrao Naik Marathwada Krishi Vidyapeeth (VNMKV), and Punjab Agricultural University (PAU) have succeeded in developing such varieties with considerable success.

But AIKS pointed out that the red tape has held up the distribution of these genetically modified strains to farmers. In particular, it lambasted the Genetic Engineering Appraisal Committee (GEAC) as being the cause for such holdup. According to AIKS, although other countries such as Pakistan and China have successfully deployed public Bt cotton strains, offering farmers an alternative cheaper seed source, India is still trailing behind due to the lack of policy response.

Furthermore, according to AIKS, even though good quality Bt cotton strains produced in Indian universities are available, their deployment has been delayed, and thus farmers have no choice but to use costly hybrid seeds. According to Kshirsagar, the Indian government was not only neglecting farmers’ welfare but also working against it through its deliberate policy design favouring private monopolies.

In addition, it pointed out rising distress among cultivators in cotton-growing areas, especially those located in certain districts of Maharashtra like Vidarbha and Marathwada, where it alleged that there have been increased instances of farmer suicides.

As an urgent measure, AIKS requested the government to provide access to all the varieties of public Bt cotton available across the country, make them affordable, and streamline the approval process.

The organisation also demanded an increased budget allocation by the government in agriculture research to develop better crop yield, along with launching special missions focused on improving cotton cultivation and encouraging farmers to develop seed systems.

The organisation stated that the need of the hour is to reduce dependence on expensive private hybrids in favour of inexpensive public seed systems that will help restore the cotton industry and give sustenance to millions of cultivators.

135 reasons to fear Abhishek

Abhishek smashes classy ton as Malinga shines with four-for HYDERABAD: Abhishek Sharma butchered a listless Delhi Capitals into submission with a brilliant 68-ball 135 not out as Sunrisers Hyderabad cantered to an easy 47-run victory in an IPL match here on Tuesday.

On a placid Uppal track, Abhishek scythed through Delhi bowling attack with 10 sixes and as many boundaries in Sunrisers' mammoth score of 242 for 2.

The chase was out of question but Sri Lankan Eshan Malinga (4/32 in 4 overs) and Sakib Hussain (1/29 in 4 overs) scripted a middle-order collapse with DC reduced to 107 for 4 from a comfortable 107 for 1. DC never recovered from thereon. In the end, Axar Patel's men managed only 195 for 9 to lose the game comprehensively as SRH consolidated their position in the points table moving up to third place.

The match will be remembered for some serious tactical mistakes made by the DC 'Brains Bank' comprising Director of Cricket Venugopal Rao, head coach Hemang Badani and skipper Axar.

Using a part-time off-spinner Nitish Rana's (0/55 in 4 overs) full quota simply because the top three of SRH consists of southpaws begged belief. Equally baffling was frontline spinners Axar (1/23 in 2 overs) and Kuldeep Yadav (0/30 in 2 overs) only bowled half their quota of overs trying to escape the onslaught from Abhishek.

Three pacers Mukesh Kumar (0/53), Lungi Ngidi (0/44) and T Natarajan (0/40) were also rendered ineffective.

On the other hand, SRH pacers led by Malinga and Hussain used clever variations of pace-on and pace-off deliveries to get wickets at regular intervals save Rana's half-century which was pale in comparison to Abhishek's innings.

Even with a relatively off-colour Travis Head (37 off 26 balls), Abhishek added 97 for the opening stand. Then, skipper Ishan Kishan (25 off 13 balls) joined the party, adding another 79 runs for the second wicket in just 5.5 overs to create a beautiful launchpad for the final assault.

Towards the end as Abhishek seemed a bit tired as strike-rate dropped a touch below 200, Heinrich Klaasen chanced his arms to hit a quick-fire 37 not out off 13 balls.

Delhi Capitals' ploy of starting with an off-spinner, that too a mediocre part-timer like Rana backfired badly as he was given four overs in which he was hit for half a dozen sixes -- all off left-handed batsmen.

The DC coaching staff headlined by Venugopal, Badani have not exactly been at their tactical best throughout the tournament and Tuesday was one such occasion. AGENCIES

CSK's Mhatre out of IPL

NEW DELHI: Chennai Super Kings batter Ayush Mhatre has been ruled out of the remainder of the ongoing IPL season due to a hamstring injury, dealing a major blow to the five-time champions. The franchise said Mhatre, who sustained the injury during CSK's previous game against Sunrisers Hyderabad on April 18, will require a rehabilitation period of six to 12 weeks.

"Ayush Mhatre has been ruled out of the remainder of IPL 2026 due to a left hamstring injury sustained while batting during the match against Sunrisers Hyderabad on April 18. Ayush's injury will require a rehabilitation period of 6-12 weeks," CSK announced on its social media on Tuesday.

The 18-year-old, who came in as an impact substitute, was seen in visible discomfort. AGENCIES

LUCKNOW: The form of the middle order, particularly that of skipper Riyan Parag, will be a key concern as Rajasthan Royals look to arrest a slide after back-to-back defeats when they take on a struggling Lucknow Super Giants in an IPL match, here on Wednesday.

Placed third in the points table, the inaugural edition champions began their campaign with four successive wins but have since faltered in their last two outings.

They suffered a 57-run defeat to Sunrisers Hyderabad after collapsing dramatically, losing five wickets for nine runs against pace.

In their previous match against Kolkata Knight Riders, RR let a strong position slip as Rinku Singh engineered a stunning turnaround to hand KKR their first win in seven matches this season. As for Parag, a surprise choice as their skipper after Sanju Samson's exit, has endured a pathetic run with the bat, registering three single-digit scores in six innings with a highest of just 20 so far.

The top-three, in Yashasvi Jaiswal, Vaibhav Sooryavanshi and Dhruv Jurel, has been RR's main force with the bat this season, but the side has often struggled when they fall.

While Parag is woefully out of touch, veteran Ravindra

Jadeja has looked a shadow of his past self, while Guyanese big-hitter Shimron Hetmyer (39 runs from four innings) is yet to fire.

However, batting coach Vikram Rathour has backed his skipper to come good.

"As far as I am concerned, it is just a matter of time. Not everyone makes runs every time," Rathour had said. AGENCIES

MUMBAI INDIANS ARE BACK ON TRACK?

After ton, Tilak says MI 'can be unstoppable'

NEW DELHI: Tilak Varma credited his match-winning century to "adapting to conditions" and expressed confidence that Mumbai Indians can be "unstoppable" from now on if they execute well, given the number of World Cup winners in their squad.

Tilak's explosive 101 not out powered MI to a commanding 99-run win over Gujarat Titans in Ahmedabad, ending their four-match losing streak in IPL 2026.

"It was very important for the team and for me," Tilak, who has been struggling for form in this season, said.

"Over the last four or five games, the one thing constantly running through my head was that I hadn't spent much time in the middle and hadn't faced many balls, so my aim was to spend some time at the wicket and then adapt according to the team's situation."

With the win lifting MI to seventh, Tilak remains optimistic of a turnaround. "We know what we are capable of. If we execute well, we can be unstoppable. So, it is important to keep our heads down and work hard." AGENCIES

13th Bundesliga title in 14 years:
Bayern operating on a different level

BERLIN: Bayern Munich wrapped up another Bundesliga title, the club's 13th in 14 years, after a record-breaking season that could still get better.

The Bundesliga is just the first of a potential treble of trophies with Bayern next facing Bayer Leverkusen in the semifinals of the German Cup on Wednesday before it takes on defending champion Paris Saint-Germain in the semifinals of the Champions League.

The Bundesliga is seen within the club as the minimum target for the season and this is Bayern's record-extending 35th German championship. Apart from the first in 1932, when it was decided by regional champions in a knock-out competition, all the others came after the Bundesliga's formation in 1963. Bayern are always keen to assert their domestic dominance. Leverkusen's triumph in 2024 was an outlier that spurred Bayern to back-to-back titles and may be the start of another long run.

Bayern bounced back from the trauma of 2012 – when it lost the Champions League final in Munich to Chelsea, as well as the Bundesliga and German Cup final to Borussia Dortmund – by winning the Champions League, Bundes-

Coach Vincent Kompany has proven an inspired appointment for a team that was misfiring

Goals

Bayern smashed their own league record for goals scored in a season by clocking five against St. Pauli to take their tally to 105 goals last weekend. The previous record was 101 goals scored by Bayern's 1971-72 team featuring Franz Beckenbauer and Gerd Müller.

England forward Harry Kane was among the scorers in the title-clinching 4-2 win against Stuttgart on Sunday to extend the record to 109 goals. And there are still four rounds remaining.

Kane took his club tally for the season to 50 against Real Madrid in the Champions League semifinals. It's 51 now. He has 32 goals in 27 Bundesliga games so far.

New signing Luis Diaz chipped in 15 and Michael Olise has 12, but Bayern's goals came from all over the team with Leon Goretzka getting the record-breaking 102nd against St. Pauli. AGENCIES

No French Open for Alcaraz? Spaniard awaits crucial wrist verdict

MADRID: Defending two-time champion Carlos Alcaraz has put his participation at the French Open in doubt because of a right wrist injury.

Medical tests in the next few days will determine whether Alcaraz will be able to play in the Grand Slam tournament in a month, he said on Monday.

"We'll see," he said when asked whether he'll play. The Spaniard was at the Laureus Awards in Madrid with his right wrist immobilized. He pulled out of the Madrid Open last week.

"The next (medical) test will be crucial," the seven-time Grand Slam champion told Spanish television channel TVE.

"We've been trying to do everything we can do to make sure that this test goes well. I'm trying to be very patient. But we are good, we are just waiting a little bit. We have a few tests in the next few days and then we will see how the injury is, and what the next steps will be."

No. 2-ranked Alcaraz withdrew in Barcelona a day after he had his wrist treated during his opening match, a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Otto Virtanen. AGENCIES

AVINASH TIWARY ON 'O SAATHI RE'

'IMTIAZ ALI PUSHED ME TO GO BEYOND VANITY'

The actor described it as one of the most difficult roles he has ever done

Avinash Tiwary said filmmaker Imtiaz Ali pushed him into uncharted territory with their upcoming series, 'O Saathi Re', which he describes as one of the most difficult roles he has ever done.

The series reunites the actor with Ali after the 2018 romance-drama, 'Laila Majnu', which has achieved cult status for its storytelling. The filmmaker had written the screenplay of the film, which was directed by his brother Sajid Ali.

Tiwary credits Ali for altering his perspective on 'vanity and desirability' first with 'Laila Majnu' and now with 'O Saathi Re', a romantic-drama series for Netflix.

"He made me go beyond the idea of the physical self-existing with 'Laila Majnu'. And it has affected me to a point where, post that in my head, the idea of physical beauty became redundant, to my eyes and my understanding, the value for it and the way it's celebrated," the actor told PTL.

He added, "It continues with 'O Saathi Re', where we let go of the physical, is when we get into figuring out what's going on really inside and that is what he's able to do."

Billed as an 'evocative exploration of the vintage feeling of love in contemporary times', 'O Saathi Re' explores themes of love, relationships and human dilemmas. It also stars Aditi Rao Hydari and Arjun Rampal.

What makes Ali's direction unique, according to Tiwary, is his ability to uncover emotional depths that even actors may not be consciously aware of.

"He's someone who brings out the layers that are stuck deep inside, which you are not aware of yourself. I feel that it is possible when you are yourself beyond the idea of physical. It pushed me in that direction. I'm not sure it's the best thing for an actor, but I want to hold on to it because I admire it. That's a really big contribution that he has made," he said.

For Tiwary, working with Ali is a 'blessing' as he simply has to surrender to the filmmaker, who understands the depths of the human psyche better than he does. "Every time action was said, my body would resist and I would run away from the part. So, holding on to him has been really difficult. Thankfully, I'm working with creators who know much more than I do and that is a blessing in itself. I don't have to think much. I just have to bring my 100 per cent into it. But this one was difficult and I really hope it comes through in a good way and it doesn't look like effort has been put into it and looks effortless." AGENCIES

The series reunites the actor with Ali after the 2018 romance-drama, 'Laila Majnu'

Jr NTR's movie with Prashant Neel to come out in June 2027

The first glimpse of the movie will be unveiled on May 20

Telugu superstar Jr NTR's upcoming pan-India movie with filmmaker Prashant Neel will be released in theatres on June 11, 2027.

The first glimpse of the movie will be unveiled on May 20, coinciding with Jr NTR's 43rd birthday.

"When the storm finds its purpose," wrote producer 'Mythri Movie Makers' on 'X' while sharing the announcement. The banner also shared a poster featuring a striking avatar of Jr NTR.

The project, which has been postponed multiple times since it went on floors in April 2025, was earlier scheduled to release in June 2026.

Directed by Neel, who also penned the script, the film is reportedly titled 'Dragon'. It is jointly produced by 'Mythri Movie Makers', 'NTR Arts' and 'T-Series'.

Neel is best known for the blockbuster 'KGF' franchise and 'Salaar Part 1: Ceasefire', the latter releasing

Directed by Neel, who also penned the script, the film is reportedly titled 'Dragon' in December 2023.

Jr NTR was last seen in 'Devara: Part 1', directed by Koratala Siva, which released in September 2024 alongside Janhvi Kapoor and Saif Ali Khan.

YEh PREM MOL LIYA
The film to hit theatres on Nov 27

Filmmaker Sooraj Barjatya's next feature 'Yeh Prem Mol Liya', starring Ayushmann Khurrana and Sharvari, will be released in theatres on November 27, the makers announced.

Sooraj's banner 'Rajshri Productions' shared the news in a statement posted on 'Instagram'. "We have an announcement!! This November, 'Rajshri Productions (P) Ltd.' in association with 'Mahaveer Jain Films', brings to the BIG screen a family entertainer directed by Sooraj R. Barjatya titled - 'Yeh Prem Mol Liya' starring Ayushmann Khurrana and Sharvari, a Himesh Reshammiya musical. In theatres 27th November 2026 - Save the date," read the statement.

The film marks Sooraj's comeback to movies after a gap of four years. The filmmaker, known for making family dramas like 'Hum Aapke Hain Koun..!', 'Hum Saath Saath Hai' and 'Vivaah', last directed 'Uunchai' (2022), featuring Amitabh Bachchan, Boman Irani and Anupam Kher.

Sooraj, who won the National Award for 'Best Director' for 'Uunchai', reunites with composer Himesh Reshammiya on the project. The two last collaborated for 'Prem Ratan Dhan Payo' in 2014.

The film is being positioned as a wholesome family entertainer at a time when mainstream Hindi theatrical cinema has been largely driven by action, horror and historical epics.

'Yeh Prem Mol Liya' brings Sharvari and Ayushmann together on screen for the first time.

Ayushmann has a packed slate ahead of 'Yeh Prem Mol Liya'. His next release is the family comedy 'Pati Patni Aur Woh Do', directed by Mudassar Aziz.

The film is slated to hit cinemas on May 15. Sharvari, meanwhile, is equally busy with multiple projects. She stars in Imtiaz Ali's 'Main Vaapas Aaunga' alongside Diljit Dosanjh and Vedang Raina. It is set to release in theatres on June 12.

She will also feature in 'Alpha', the first female-led film in the 'YRF Spy Universe', co-starring Alia Bhatt and directed by Shiv Rawail.

The movie is set for a theatrical release on July 10. PTL

'Lust Stories 3 will be more poetic'

'I've tried to do something new,' says Vishal Bhardwaj

If 'O' Romeo' allowed him to channel his personal angst through its hero, he will return to his poetic style of storytelling in 'Lust Stories 3', said filmmaker Vishal Bhardwaj.

The 60-year-old acclaimed director, best known for films like 'Maqbool', 'Omkaara', 'Kaminey' and 'Haider' among others, said it was a conscious decision to transform his inner turmoil into Shahid Kapoor-starrer, 'O'Romeo'.

The third chapter of Netflix's popular anthology movie will have four stories

"I've tried to add personal angst in it 'O'Romeo'. For instance, the people you can't kill in real life, so how and where do you express angst? We can't say or do anything. So, I thought of expressing my angst in cinema. 'O' Romeo' gave me the opportunity to explore my personal angst," Bhardwaj told PTL.

'O' Romeo' is a fictional take on the real-life story of gangsters Sapna Didi and Hussain Ustara and is inspired by a chapter of Hussain Zaidi's 'Mafia Queens of Mumbai'.

With 'Lust Stories 3', Bhardwaj said, "I've tried to do something new and make it as poetic as possible." The third chapter of Netflix's popular anthology movie 'Lust Stories 3' will have four stories with directors Bhardwaj, Vikramaditya Motwane, Kiran Rao and Shakun Batra exploring relationships and intimacy with their respective creative lens.

Bhardwaj was talking on the sidelines of the book launch event of Zaidi's new book, 'Mafia Queens of India'. The filmmaker said that the portrayal of violence has always been embedded in storytelling and that it isn't a trend or a recent shift.

"There is toxicity and hyper masculinity in society and that's what is reflected in our films. In our country, from the time of 'Mahabharat', if you read it carefully in detail, you will see there's so much gory violence, so violence has come from there; it's there in our genes. I don't think this is a new thing that we are showing," he said.

Speaking of Aditya Dhar's 'Dhurandhar', Bhardwaj said he genuinely enjoyed the first part of the film, but he has some reservations about watching its sequel. PTL

'AI will be able to do Timothee's job, but not live performances'

Charlize Theron called out Chalamet for his controversial remarks that 'no one cares' about opera or ballet

Hollywood star Charlize Theron called out Timothee Chalamet for his controversial remarks that 'no one cares' about opera or ballet, saying it was a 'reckless comment on art forms'.

Chalamet made controversial comments during 'A CNN & Variety Town Hall Event' right in the middle of his Oscar campaign for 'Marty Supreme' in February, leading to bashing on social media and from the art world.

The actor said that he didn't want theatrical movie going to end up like 'ballet or opera, where artists want to 'keep this thing alive' even though 'no one cares' about it anymore.

In an interview with 'The New York Times', Theron was asked to comment on Chalamet's et's claim when she spoke about her respect for dancers. "Oh, boy, I hope I run into him one day. That was a very reckless comment on an art form, two art forms, that we need to lift up constantly because, yes, they do have a hard time. But in 10 years, AI is going to be able to do Timothee's job, but it will not be able to replace a person on a stage dancing live."

and started dancing at the age of four. She stopped ballet after a knee injury, but still has a lot of respect for what it taught her.

"And we shouldn't * on other art forms. Dance taught me discipline. It taught structure. It taught hard work. It taught me to be tough. It's borderline abusive. There were several times that I had blood infections from blisters that just never healed. And you don't get a day off. I'm literally talking about bleeding through your shoes," she said. PTL
